Zoning issues:

Lombardi suggests forum to see if town favors strict zoning

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Selectman Mark Lombardi wants to know if Winchester residents really want their zoning bylaws strictly enforced.

Monday night, he suggested a town forum be called to find the answer, which no other selectman could provide.

But at previous meetings, other selectmen have addressed the same issue. Frank Sopper complained several weeks ago that the majority of zoning variances requested are granted.

Selectmen have also noted that the town meeting, given a chance to loosen setback rules, turned down the opportunity and stuck with tougher requirements.

Lombardi, however, related his question to an earlier experience. He said he looked at a house in Woburn to give an appraisal but had to say the house would be worth far more if it were in Winchester.

"Due to the lack of zoning enforcement (in Woburn), the town has gone down," he said.

Warning that lax enforcement of its bylaws could lead Winchester down the same path, Lombardi wondered aloud if people really wanted strict enforcement.

"Maybe we could have a rap session with the board of appeals, the planning board, the fire department, the police department," Lombardi said.

"If all those people think the bylaws should be enforced, it would make it easier for the entire town."

Lombardi said loose enforcement reminded him "of Saturday morning TV you watch with your grandchildren. Something like The Mushroom That Engulfed Japan."

"Do you want to have this as a public forum?" chairman Wade Welch asked.

"Yes, to get us all working in the same direction," Lombardi answered.

Lombardi mentioned "bootleg apartments," generally small apartments in private homes located in zones where they do not exist. Existence of such "bootlegs" is hardly a secret, however.

"Some people say bootleg apartments are good. But if they were legal, the people who live in them now couldn't afford to stay in them," Lombardi said.

Sopper, however, said he would rather conduct such a forum first with town boards than with the general public.

Welch said Lombardi apparently wanted to know if the public perceives a problem.

"Right, maybe they'll say there isn't any problem," Lombardi said. "But at least we'll know what the town wants."

No action was taken Monday night.

Conservancy regulations ruin agreement near Leonard Pool

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Boxed in by town zoning bylaws, selectmen were unable to reach any definitive agreement with Gail and Glenn Matthews, owners of The Mill at 50 Cross St., Monday night.

An arrangement reached in January to solve problems for both parties fell apart when town counsel Doug Randall discovered he could not formalize the agreement without violating zoning laws.

In January, the Matthews agreed to allow visitors to Leonard Beach park on their property during the summer while their customers parked on town property the rest of the year.

Both parties were happy and the town had been relieved of responsibility for accidentally paving part of the 50 Cross St. property while working on beach property.

In May, however, Randall found that land in the conservation zone, in this case the beach property, could not be used for commercial parking, no matter how many problems the arrangement would solve.

More than a little angry to learn the selectmen had to "abrogate" the agreement, the Matthews appeared before the board Monday.

Outlining the facts, the chairman of the selectmen, Wade Welch, called the situation "an impasse."

"We're in an awkward situation," town manager Chad Maurer added. "We have permitted something that is not proper under our own zoning bylaw."

After the private property owner's lawyer began to speak loudly and quickly, Welch banged his gavel. "There's no need to go into an attorney mode here," he said. The conversation quieted down.

Mrs. Matthews told about the poor condition of the 50 Cross St. property when she bought in in 1982 and said she had cleaned it up "with my own two hands. These are the hands of a working woman, not a privileged woman."

"Could you men look at me? I'm looking at you," she demanded. Welch hesitated and said the selectmen could look where they wished.

Resuming her speech, Mrs. Matthews said the town had removed five trees about 150 feet tall from her property while she was away and appropriated about 1,100 square feet of her parking lot. She also said town crews "ripped up my surveyor's stakes."

But she said she had never sued anyone.

"I said let's do something here," she recalled. Despite her anger, she said, the town could continue to use her property for parking this summer. "You should be giving me a good citizen award."

Glenn Matthews pointed out that the town made two mistakes, first appropriating land it did not own and then making an illegal agreement In January. "Are you going to restore our land?" he asked.

Randall pointed out that the zoning board of appeals can not legally grant a variance to allow commerical parking on conservancy land.

"A town meeting could vote to move the zoning line," Randall said, but that would take until November at the earliest.

At the suggestion of selectman Bob Deering, the town apparently agreed to put a temporary barricade between the two properties so residents' cars can not park on Matthews land to use the beach. The gates to the road will be locked.

"It seems a shame," Glenn Matthews said.

Agreeing, Welch observed, "It has worked well until now. But sometimes what works well can't be done."

In other business, selectmen:

- Approved a block party on Stowell Road between 4 and 8 p.m. Saturday, June 14, subject to some limitations.
- Learned that the state apparently owes Middlesex County $26 million in back rent for use of the county courthouses for superior court functions.
- Were invited to an Eagle Scout court of honor for Charles Ross Almquist at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 22, at the First Congregational Church.
- Agreed to allow the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority hold a future meeting in the public safety building.
- Agreed to send a letter to the owners of 742-50 Main St., stating that they can not use a portion of town land behind their building for parking, even though they paved the property. The area is actually part of a still-

Goodrich named publisher for The Winchester Star

Chuck Goodrich has been named Publisher of Century Publications Inc., parent company of The Winchester Star.

Goodrich succeeds C. Peter Jorgensen, who has been publisher at Century Publications for 17 years. Peter and Kathryn Jorgensen sold the business to Harte-Hanks Communications on June 2.

"Chuck brings to this job an understanding of community journalism and experience in many different aspects of newspaper publishing," said James W. Hopson, president of Century Newspapers, in announcing the appointment. "His familiarity with this exciting market makes him an ideal person to carry on the legacy of quality journalism and community service that has been established here."

Goodrich joins Century Newspapers from The Middlesex News in Framingham, where he has been marketing director since 1985.

The Middlesex News is also a Harte-Hanks newspaper.

As marketing director, Goodrich was responsible for circulation and promotion at the 50,000-circulation daily newspaper. Previously at the News, he developed advertising sales materials and was a production analyst.

Goodrich spent several years as a daily newspaper reporter and editor in New Hampshire and Maine before returning to his native Massachusetts.

At Foster's (Dover, N.H.) Daily Democrat he was a reporter and later became editor of the editorial pages. He was also a reporter at the Brunswick (Maine) Times Record.

"I've always believed in providing complete, comprehensive local news coverage, and you can be sure that will continue to be the emphasis here," said Goodrich.

Goodrich is a graduate of Bowdoin College and the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

He is past publisher of Careers and the MBA and co-founder of Engineering Horizons, a controlled circulation trade magazine. He and his wife, Marie Buckley, live in Wellesley.

Town housing authority records found inaccurate

By GEORGE DERRINGER

The Winchester Housing Authority failed to follow state regulations in determining rent for authority tenants, state auditor John J. Finnegan reported Friday.

'Rent determinations were carelessly prepared and there was no subsequent review for accuracy,' Finnegan said.

The revelation of poor record-keeping by the authority comes at a bad time for the authority. The current town meeting has approved six of the seven low- and moderate-income housing units the authority needs to keep state "discretionary" money flowing into Winchester.

Finnegan said 13 of 56 rental determinations tested by the audit did not have "adequate documentation for income sources such as interest income, medical expenses or medical insurance.

Rents for housing units administered by the housing authority are determined on the tenants' ability to pay. Rent determinations are made after investigations of each tenant's resources.

Finnegan also said the housing authority made four mathematical miscalculations which resulted in total excess rental payments of $20 per month to the authority.

In two cases, Finnegan said, documentation for a total of $11 a month in interest income was available to the authority but the amount was not included in the authority's determination of the tenants' total income.

"Although the total dollar amounts are not significant, the high percentage of errors indicates that rent determinations were carelessly prepared and that there was no subsequent review for accuracy," Finnegan said.

Finnegan's audit of the housing authority covers a two-year period from July 1, 1983, to June 30, 1985.

Jerry Keefe, executive director of the authority, and board member Bill McCarthy pointed out that during most of the period in question, the former director was a part-time employee in a one-person office. The authority now employees a bookkeeper-secretary who checks all figures and records before another review by the director.

"The comments of the authority are responsive to our recommendations," Finnegan said.

Finnegan also said the authority neglected to provide the appropriate tax forms to contractors working for it. As a result, $10,636 of income may not have been reported to federal and state revenue departments.

"Without the tax forms being issued, all of the income received by contractors may not have been reported," Finnegan said. "This means an added burden may have been imposed on the taxpayers, whose payments subsidize public

Selectmen to wrestle with list of concerns in next few weeks

Winchester selectmen face a busy schedule of business in the next few weeks, according to town manager Chad Maurer.

Maurer listed about 10 items for future action Monday night and selectmen added a couple more.

Maurer said the town must meet with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to negotiate a permanent emergency connection on Forest Street.

The town must also address the question of public access to the Middlesex Fells Reservation, which surrounds the town water supply. Selectmen will meet with the commissioner of the Metropolitan District Commission, which owns the Fells, at 2:15 p.m. June 11, in the commissioner's office. They will ask what kind of increased use is planned for the Fells when a new "interpretive" program is introduced.

During their June 9 meeting, selectmen will consider tougher sewer pipe connection regulations. They are likely to outlaw plastic pipe connections in favor of cast iron pipes, formerly the only kind allowed.

Also June 9, selectmen will consider placing signs in Winchester center to remind motorists to stop for pedestrians in crosswalks. The proposed signs are similar to those in Arlington, Lexington and other area towns.

Again June 9, selectmen will consider beautification plantings for the islands across from the post office. Members of the town beautification design committee will be present.

Probably June 9, selectmen will be sure whether the town hall auditorium will be available Jan. 26-31, 1987, when the Winton Club plans its 66th cabaret show there. Renovation plans for the town hall will apparently allow it, but selectmen want to be sure before giving the go-ahead.

Maurer said a subcommittee composed of members of elected boards should be formed to review plans for condominiums on the site of the former Hudson Industries.

At least part of the site is contaminated with toxic chemicals, according to the state Department of Envronmental Quality Engineering. Maurer said the group should include representatives of the selectmen, planning board and the board of health, as well as the town manager and town engineer.

Maurer said the developer is anxious to get started. Bob Deering is likely to be the selectman chosen for the committee, which, at Deering's suggestion, could also include a member of the conservation commission.

Proposed fee increases for private trash haulers who use the Winchester transfer station are being revised, Maurer said, and the new proposal will be brought to selectmen June 16.

Maurer said he and Dom Serratore, director of the department of public works, plan a meeting "with representatives of the trash-hauling community."

Finally, disposition of the Woburn Loop is high on the selectmen's list of priorities. A proposal is scheduled to be presented to the November 1986 town meeting.

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, said he wants "to solicit proposals for the entire Loop," an abandoned railroad right of way.

A question of whether anything can be built on the Woburn Loop, or if the state department of transportation will allow only "passive" uses has not been resolved.

"We'll have a read on that after we find out if we can build affordable housing on the Loop," Welch said. A town meeting has voted to put two units of state-mandated Section 705 low- and and moderate-income housing on part of the Loop near Cross Street.

Welch said he hopes to present the fall town meeting with "a plan for total disposition of the Loop, a package for the highest and best use of the property." The land is owned by the town but the state maintains an interest in former transportation rights-of-way.

POLICE LOG

Police arrest drunk driver

According to the report, a 1984 Chevrolet Blazer was traveling on Main Street near Stowell Road when it struck a Boston Edison pole and cracked it in half. The crash caused power and telephone lines to fall to the ground.

Damage to Blackburn's car was over $500.

Officers Paul J. DeLuca Kenneth A. Green and Philip Coss responded to the 11:30 p.m. incident.

Blackburn refused a breathalyzer test and was bailed by his father at 12:40 a.m.

Monday, June 2

At 1:06 a.m., officers Jonathan B. Dean, John R. Oliver and Peter A. Hersee Jr. placed a Hemingway Street resident in protective custody.

Police responded to the home and found the man intoxicated. He suffered a cut to his face and wrists, but refused medical treatment. He was taken to Woburn police for lock-up.

Sunday, June 1

At 10:29 p.m., police cited a 16-year-old Squire Road resident for speeding and leaving the scene of an accident causing property damage.

Police stopped a white Pontiac Firebird at Bacon Street and Stratford Road.

The car was travelling west on Skillings Road when the driver lost control, struck a curb and blew out the right front tire, police said.

Damage was done to the tire and the right front end of the car. The car was towed from the scene.

At 11:52 a.m., a Cross Street resident told police someone stole a radio from her car. Entry was gained by breaking a rear car window. The incident happened during the night of May 31.

Saturday, May 31

At 8:01 a.m., a George Road resident told police someone pulled out shrubs and plants in his yard.

At 12:18 a.m., police placed a 17-year-old Fletcher Street resident in protective custody after he assaulted a police officer and two women at Purity Supreme on Main st.

The report said the resident was "extremely violent and irrational," when Best, who was off duty, and the other officers placed the man in custody.

He was taken to Choate Hospital for evaluation and then to Woburn police for lock-up.

The report said the man assaulted two women who were shopping at Purity Supreme.

He was charged with idle and disorderly conduct, assault and assault of a police officer. He was bailed to the custody of his mother.

Friday, May 30

At 10:25 a.m., police responded to a minor car accident at the rotary in downtown center. A Hancock Street resident stopped her car suddenly causing the car behind, driven by a Nelson Street resident, to hit her. Damage to the first car was to the rear passenger side and the bumper. Damage to the other car was to the front fender and the lights.

James L. McKnight, left, is welcomed back to Congress by Rep. Edward J. Markey, for whom McKnight will work in the congressional internship program. McKnight, a 1984 graduate of Winchester High School, served as an intern last fall and has worked in Markey's offices in Washington and Boston. He is on summer break from George Washington University and is the son of Mary McKnight of 5 LaGrange St.

Five graduate at Merrimack College

Five students from Winchester were among those honored at the 36th commencement at Merrimack College in North Andover on May 18.

Amy Elizabeth Dillon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Dillon of 32 Town Way, received a bachelor's degree in business administration.

She was also the recipient of the Rev. William J. Murray, O.S.A. Medal, awarded to a student who represents the ideals exemplified by Murray, former vice president for student affairs and dean of students at Merrimack. The award was presented at a May 17 baccalaureate mass.

Charles Warren McCarthy of 251 High St. also received a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Mark William Carzo of 3 Mason St. received a bachelor's degree in political science.

Elaine Mary Mortenson of 3 Priscilla Lane received a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Nancy Marie Shannon of 12 Cox Rd. received a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Leonard Pool work needs Army permit

The Winchester Department of Public Works is seeking permission from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to place about 300 cubic yards of sand in Leonard Pond to renourish the town-maintained swimming area.

An application for the federal permit was filed with the engineers in compliance with Section 404 of the Clean Water Act, which regulates the discharge of dredged or fill material in waters of the United States, including wetlands.

To assist in evaluating the sand placement, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than June 23.

There's more than one way to finance an education!

With educational expenses on the rise and financial assistance more restrictive, families are looking for alternatives to pay for school. At Winchester Savings Bank, you'll find loans specifically for students . . . loans for parents of students . . . and even loans for students or parents who own homes. And in most cases, there are no restrictions on age, the type of school you're attending (or plan to attend), or if you're a half-time or full-time student.

HELP Loans: Administered by the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation, this federally sponsored program offers low-interest loans to undergraduate and graduate students. Parents are not required to co-sign, the first payment is deferred until after graduation and you have up to 10 years to repay.

PLUS Loans: This is also a locally administered, federally sponsored program that offers below-market rates to parents of dependent undergraduate students as well as to independent undergraduate and graduate students. Payments start within 45 days and the repayment period is negotiated.

Home Equity Lines of Credit: With a Winchester Savings Bank Home Equity Line of Credit, homeowners can use the equity in their homes to pay for the cost of education . . . or for whatever else they want. Lines of credit are available up to $150,000.

To find out more about financing your education, call 729-2130 or visit any office of Winchester Savings Bank.

TRUST DEED VS MORTGAGE

Depending on which state you borrowed money to buy a house, you probably used either a trust deed or a mortgage as the financial instrument for the loan. What is the difference between the two?

A MORTGAGE involves two parties, the borrower and the lender. When the lender loans the money for the property, the borrower is required to sign a promissory note for the amount borrowed. The note creates a lien on the property as security for the debt. The borrower usually retains title to the property.

A TRUST DEED involves three parties; a borrower, a lender, and a trustee. The deed transfers title to the property to the third party trustee to be held pending fulfillment of the obligation. The obligation is ordinarily repayment of the loan to the trustee.

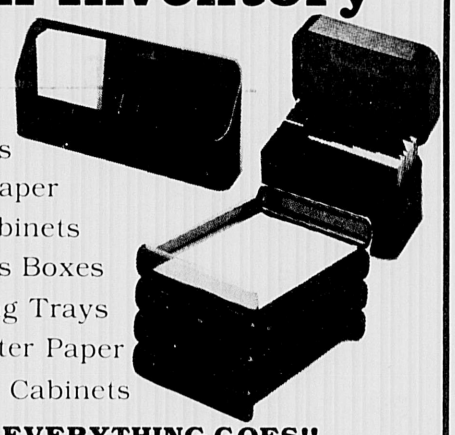

Trust deeds and mortgages are the security that lenders need to protect themselves in the rare cases of buyer default. The preference for one form over the other is usually a matter of local or state law.

A Winchester woman is helping provide free health services to Malden residents.

Kathleen Barnes of Park Ave., a student at UMass/Boston's School of Nursing at the Harbor Campus on Morrissey Blvd., earns six academic credits in family and community health by participating in UMass/Boston's Project: Outreach Nursing, started in 1980.

Students in the program spend two eight-hour days providing a variety of health services to clients of the Senior Center and the Tri-Cap Head Start Program for pre-schoolers, says Dean Ann Kibrick.

Those services vary according to client needs, says Laura Glover, Ed.D., Project Director and Assistant Dean of the Nursing School.

Girl Scouts, chamber, DPW cooperate in clean-up work

A youth group, a business group and a governmental unit got together recently for the benefit of Winchester.

Girl Scouts of Troop 1496-1505, armed with rakes and picks borrowed from the town department of public works, recently participated in the Winchester Chamber of Commerce clean-up project.

The girls picked up trash and debris along the northerly embankment of Swanton and Main streets. In a short time, they filled eight large trash bags for the transfer station. Tree limbs, metal scraps and other large debris were piled neatly for removal by town crews later.

"The service project provided a perfect activity to culminate the Girl Scout community-oriented badge work," troop leaders said.

Dukakis sets district party

The Fourth Middlesex District towns of Arlington, Woburn, Lexington and Winchester will host a fund-raiser for Gov. Michael S. Dukakis from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, June 7, on the lawn of the Jason Russell House, corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Jason Street in Arlington.

The Jason Russell House is Arlington's most historical structure and the site of the fiercest battle on April 19, 1775. The house is owned by the Arlington Historical Society and will be open for tours during the event.

Coordinating the function is the Arlington Dukakis Committee. Supporters from surrounding towns are invited to attend. For further information, contact Susan Keats at 729-9317.

Galbraith Awarded Stratton Prize

At the twentieth annual meeting of the Friends of Switzerland Inc., held at the Harvard Club of Boston May 16, the Julius A. Stratton prize for cultural achievement was presented to Professor John Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard University. For 30 years, Professor and Mrs. Galbraith have maintained a home in Gstaad Switzerland, where Professor Galbraith has done much of his writing.

Making a special trip from Switzerland for the occasion was Dr. Hanskurt Hauswirth, vice president of the commune of Saanen, Gstaad, selected by the community of Saanen-Gstaad to bring greetings to the Galbraiths, his wife, Lisa, his brother, Mr. Adolf Hauswirth, head ski instructor in Gstaad, and long time acquaintance of the Galbraiths, with his wife, Christina.

Joining the group for the celebration were Mrs. Robert F. Kenerson, nee Ruth Hauswirth of Gstaad, sister to the brothers Hauswirth, and her husband, Dr. Robert F. Kenerson.

The occasion afforded the opportunity for a family reunion, and the Hauswirths were the guests of the Kenersons in Winchester for a week including time together at the Kenerson's chalet in Franconia, New Hampshire.

Choate-Symmes Health Services has established a center for the health care and development of the older adult.

The center facilitates an integrated approach to comprehensive services for older adults now available at Choate Hospital in Woburn and Symmes Hospital in Arlington.

The development of the variety of quality programs is in direct response to community needs and is the result of concentrated, longterm planning, program spokesmen said.

Recognizing the increasing number of older adults in its service area, Choate-Symmes made a commitment in 1981 (when the three facilities were consolidated) to expand programs and services to meet their needs.

Trustees designated one member an elderly services representative and adopted an overall plan which has led to the development of the extensive services which exist today.

Another of the board's early actions was to grant approval for the establishment of a Lifeline program. From inital purchase of 25 units, the program now has 175 subscribers, making it the largest affiliated with any hospital in Massachusetts.

Two years ago, in conjunction with Brandeis University and supported in part by a grant from the John Hartford Foundation of New York, a study was undertaken to provide high quality, cost-effective health care to the growing elderly population. The primary objective was to return the elderly patient to his or her pre-hospital level or an improved level of functioning.

According to the findings, "This study validates a new method of caring for the elderly that is a potential solution to the pressures brought on (by today's prospective payment system). Care on the Hartford Units (the name selected for the special care units, in recognition of the foundation which made the study possible) resulted in earlier discharge without attendant complications.

"These are the goals of Medicare's DRG (diagnostically related groups) system. Results also suggest that the manner in which the intervention is implemented significantly affects the outcomes that are achieved...The nurturing, individualized environment produced by the intervention led to outcomes that are beneficial to all involved..."

Based on the study, the decision has been made to expand the 10-bed inpatient geriatric units which were established at each hospital when the study was inaugurated.

Concerned not only with the sick elderly, Choate-Symmes had addressed the need to provide programs to encourage independent living. Lifeline is one example. Medically dependent individuals, many of whom live alone or are alone a great part of the day, are now able to continue to live in their own homes, confident that if they need medical assistance, pushing the call button will immediately signal the Emergency Response Center.

"Older and Growing" discussion groups led by the social work services department are enjoying immense success. Maxine Lyons, Choate-Symmes' coordinator of elder services, schedules regular meetings through area Councils on Aging, inviting older adults to participate by sharing their accomplishments and their concerns.

Comprehensive home care and optional overnight stays (for those who have undergone one-day surgery and feel more secure staying overnight) were introduced last year. Home care services include all levels of nursing care, homemaker services, and companions. Respiratory home care, which includes equipment usage, is entering its third year of success.

Choate-Symmes also provides a variety of health promotion programs. Sunday brunches once a month at each hospital begin with a delicious meal, followed by an educational program or entertainment, all for a nominal cost. Speakers' bureau programs are available to groups and organizations, most without fee, and "Fitness over 50" and other community health classes encourage health awareness.

One of Choate-Symmes' most significant programs is its newest. The Life Care Retirement Community that will be build in Lexington is the only one of its kind to be offered by a hospital in this area. Following more than 18 months of meetings with Lexington town officials and community groups in April, the Lexington town meeting approved Choate-Symmes' request to rezone a 29-acre site on Waltham Street at the Waltham line. Marketing will begin this fall, groundbreaking next spring, and occupancy in the spring of 1989.

Plans call for 205 studio, one, two, and three-bedroom apartments and townhouses, and a 41-bed nursing home. An entrance fee is guaranteed 90 percent refundable to the individual and/or spouse should they decide to leave, or to their estate; and a monthly maintenance fee supports a host of services including congregate meals, transportation, linen and homemaker services, emergency call system, health promotion, and unlimited nursing home use.

Paul Downey, president of Choate-Symmes, stated recently, "The name of our organization — Choate-Symmes Health Services — indicates that we provide health services. We consider housing for the frail elderly, a need which is not presently met in our communities, to be a health service."

Music School now registering students

The Winchester Community Music School is registering students for fall instrumental and voice lessons, eurhythmics and theory classes, and small ensembles.

"We invite students age two to adult to take part," says director Corie Nichols. "Registering in the spring helps us have teachers ready in the fall."

The school offers lessons in banjo, baritone, cello, clarinet, electric bass and guitar, flute, french horn, mandolin, oboe, percussion, recorder, saxophone, trombone, trumpet, tuba, viola, violin, and voice. Small ensembles are available, including a jazz ensemble workshop for high school students, and there are music theory classes.

A successful eurhythmics program will be expanded to include 2-year-olds as well as 3- and 4-year-olds. A parent will join in with the very youngest classes, and learn ways of enjoying music at home with small children.

A recorder ensemble for adults will also be offered. "Our school has grown because of community interest," says assistant director Sandy Thompson. "We welcome inquiries at any time."

ABC plans bottle drive for June 14

Winchester residents can help A Better Chance (ABC) and do spring cleaning at the same time Saturday, June 14, when ABC will conduct a bottle drive from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The drive will be at the Sons of Italy Hall parking lot, adjacent to the town transfer station. All returnable bottles and cans are welcome.

A call to Donna Down of 4 Atherton Rd., Kathy Bodie of 5 Dix Terr. or Sandy Thompson at 48 Samoset Rd. will ensure pickup for those unable to drop off bottles June 14.

Proceeds from the fund-raising event will help motivated minority students gain a challenging high school education to prepare for college and career.

College Marketing Group To Get Venture Capital

Boston-based Summit Ventures, a venture capital firm, has concluded an agreement with College Marketing Group, Inc. (CMG), of 50 Cross st. to provide capital to fuel the future growth of CMG.

Summit has chosen CMG as its 16th investment out of over 4,000 opportunities studied. Summit Ventures is one of the largest venture capital partnerships in the United States, managing over $150 million, and investing primarily in private, profitable companies in the technology and health care industries. Summit also invests in start-up companies and leveraged buyouts.

Founded in Reading in 1968 by Glenn and Gail Matthews, CMG has grown into one of the leading suppliers of marketing information and mailing lists to the information marketing community. Its growth over the past ten years has averaged almost 30 percent per year.

CMG has earned the leading market share in the highly specialized college mailing list market; created an information buyer mailing list data base; opened up a mailing list service bureau and data base management division which specializes in providing highly segmented information according to products purchased and other psychographics meaningful to marketers; and formed a publishing division, the Bret Scot Press, whose first title is the "Encyclopedia of Mailing List Terminology and Techniques," written by Nat G. Bodian, a product manager at John Wiley & Sons of New York.

The venture capital will be applied to furthering CMG's aims of becoming a diversified marketing information company, significantly expanding its marketing strength, completing a state of the art data processing system, and acquiring other proprietary data bases.

Glenn H. Matthews has been promoted to chairman of CMG's Board and David Wetherell has been appointed president. Wetherell, an Ohio Wesleyan graduate, had previously served as founder and CEO of Softrend.

Matthews, a Bowdoin College graduate, is also a graduate of the Harvard Business School's SCMP Program and is a former editor for Prentice-Hall and Addison Wesley Publishing companies.

Belmont Hill Summer School is for kids with smart parents.

BELMONT HILL SCHOOL 1923

Once again this year, the Belmont Hill School is offering its coeducational summer school program.

If you're smart, and you want your kids to be, you'll take advantage of enrolling them in one of the most prestigious college preparatory schools for grades 7-12 in the area.

For a brochure describing our courses and unique style of education, call The Summer School, Belmont Hill, at (617) 484-4410; or write to: Belmont Hill School, 350 Prospect Street, Belmont, Massachusetts 02178. And show your kids how smart you are.

Are you overlooking your best source of credit?

Equity is the difference between your remaining mortgage and your home's current market value. And a Home Equity Loan from Medford Savings is the easiest way to borrow for college tuition, home improvements, starting a business, or for any reason.

We'll lend you up to 80% of your home's current market value minus the balance of your first mortgage. And we'll charge you only 11% plus one point for an Annual Percentage Rate of just 11.15%. But this rate isn't just good . . . it's also guaranteed for three years. We'll even give you up to 20 years to pay us back.*

If you don't know how much equity you've actually built up, relax. One of our appraisal specialists will figure it out for you.

Winton Club celebrates its 75th anniversary

On May 19, 1911, 17 young women met in Winchester to sew linens for the little Cottage Hospital. These women founded Winton Club. The women of The Winton Club have been providing the linens for Winchester Hospital ever since.

The 75th anniversary of this initial meeting was celebrated in conjunction with the 1986 annual meeting of The Winton Club. On May 12, at a flower-and-balloon-festooned Winchester Country Club, more than 160 members of The Winton Club came together to celebrate this occasion and reflect upon another year of service.

The luncheon meeting was called to order by President Eleanor Fitzgerald. She began the festivities by toasting the founders and charter members of Winton Club. The celebration was continued with toasts to the hospital volunteers by Kate Shoemaker, to the hospital by Kay O'Connor, to cabarets past by Ann McGovern and to future volunteers and leaders by Susan Blanchard.

After a luncheon planned by membership chairman Ruth DeSanctis, founding member Marjorie Mason was asked to blow out the candles on a three-tiered birthday cake provided by Winchester Hospital.

Agnes Sarmanian, gift shop chairman, reported a year of record earnings for the shop. Cabaret chairman Maryalyce Norris helped "celebrate" with her glowing cabaret report.

Eleanor Fitzgerald reflected on two active and productive years of her presidency. She also announced Winton Club's pledge of $75,000 in honor of the 75th anniversary.

The following members were honored for ten years of service: Pat Astill, Nancy Haskell, Carol Johnson, Agnes Sarmanian and Irene Larkin.

Mary Vitka, nominating chairman, announced the new executive board of Winton Club. Elected president was Mary R. Barger; vice president, Merideth J. Ciotti; secretary, Janet W. Jones; and treasurer, Joan B. Johnson.

The following committee chairmen were also named: membership, Leslie S. French; nominating, Patricia Harte; cabaret, Diane G. Culver and John B. Kingsbury; gift shop, Mary S.T. Gillespie; activities, Harriet I. Nasson; gift shop volunteers, Helen G. Hudson; gift cart volunteers, Luciana Bares; and coffee shop volunteers, Susan Blanchard.

The new executive board looks forward to serving the hospital in the same tradition that the women of Winton Club have had for the past 75 years.

Outgoing Winton Club president Eleanor Fitzgerald presided May 12 as the club celebrated its 75th anniversary with a three-tiered cake .

Town Receives $2,598 For Its Fluoridation

Winchester currently receives $2,598.86 to help pay annual costs of its water fluoridation, according to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH).

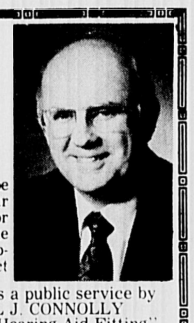

A total of 49 cities and towns in the state which are independent from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority receive local aid funds of $100,000 to help pay for the program, the department said.

State local aid funds pay 43 percent of fluoridation costs while federal funds will pay for 100 percent of the costs to start a fluoridation program.

According to Dr. Gregory N. Connolly, director of DPH's dental health division, each dollar spent on fluoridation saves about $50 in dental care costs.

HAVE YOU HEARD?...
by PAUL J. CONNOLLY
Hearing Aid Specialist

TRENDS IN HEARING AIDS

There's recently been a significant change in the type of hearing aids in use. The preponderance of in-the-ear hearing aids being fit reflects a sharp demand for smaller, yet still powerful hearing aids that offer true sound fidelity. The future of amplification systems appears to be heading toward these more-compact instruments.

However, for the elderly patient with severe hearing loss and without the manual dexterity needed to control the smaller amplification systems, the body aid still affords a reasonable alternative.

The ultimate reason for wearing a hearing aid is to improve the ability to hear and understand. While manufacturers and professionals attempt to miniaturize the instruments, the priority of a dispenser/audiologist is to provide the client with an effective listening tool.

Restaurant violin player selects songs for others

Ann Avakian

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Violinist Ann Avakian doesn't play music she wants to play.

"I don't play things for me; I'm always thinking about what my listeners want to hear," she says.

"I don't have a favorite song. Whatever I play that makes you happy is my favorite."

Arlington native Avakian is the background violinist for the Ristorante Lucia restaurant in Winchester, performing there from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Mondays through Wednesdays.

Music is fun for her.

"Sure, I practiced when I was a kid but music has always been fun. I never really took it seriously," she says.

She has lots of fun every evening, trying to guess the music a particular dinner party would like to hear.

"One night in early February, there was a couple and a child in Lucia's. I played something for the child and then I played something for the couple, even though they hadn't requested anything," she said.

"I played 'Could I Have This Dance for the Rest of My Life?' and it was the right song. They beamed."

Later, the couple asked Avakian if she had heard them wondering if their favorite was included in Avakian's repertoire.

"Oh, no," I said. "I didn't hear you but it's happened again!"

"I could dazzle you with a classical piece — but so could 200 or 300 other musicians in the area," she says. "I'd rather try to guess what you want to hear."

Does the age of the listener influence her decision? "No, last week I played 'I Just Called To Say I Love You' for a group of women in their fifties and later I heard one of them humming it," she said.

Playing background music in a restaurant is not new to Avakian. She played for five years at Lechner's Gourmet Restaurant in Boston and still performs there occasionally.

"This is a different kind of music. I happen to have a violin, but it could be a flute, a guitar or a tin whistle. I play everything from popular music, show tunes, folk and rock to a little classical," Avakian says.

A self-described workaholic, Avakian says performing in a restaurant is "a culmination of my acquired skills and experience."

Her experience is varied. For one season, she moved south to play for the North Carolina Symphony. "I saw the whole state. The Symphony travels all over," she says.

Although she still lives in the same Mass. ave. house where she was born, Avakian also spent two years in Germany as a program director for a special services social club for American servicemen and their families.

And she also worked in a state mental hospital in Gardner as one of the state's first "music and recreation therapists."

"Actually, the job was really just doing what I had been doing all along — having fun with music," she says. At Gardner, fun included organizing a little orchestra of patients and teaching one woman how to play the violin.

Long-time Arlington residents may remember when Ann and her sister Armenie, a pianist, performed together in town. Now Mrs. Najarian, the sister lives in Belmont and performs occasionally.

A third sister, Nevart, also grew up above the Fairmont Market, owned by their father and his brother. "Nevart called the other day from Arizona. She was the audience years ago and she says she still misses listening to her sisters practice," Ann Avakian says.

She has been something out of the ordinary most of her life.

"When I was younger, women usually didn't have the musical opportunities given to men," she says. "I always had to play alongside the guys."

But doing so, in classical orchestras and in dance bands, helped give her the ability to play all kinds of music and to "blend in with the musicians I'm with."

Another effect was providing her with "a healthy respect for all kinds of music."

Today Avakian is one of fewer than a dozen "violin singles" musicians in Greater Boston. "Each has a different personality," she says.

Avakian's style is to avoid being a pest.

I happen to have a violin, but it could be a flute, a guitar or a tin whistle. I play everything from popular music, show tunes, folk and rock to a little classical,' Avakian says.

"I'm not a strolling violinist, like the stereotypes you see on television," she says. "I'm always hoping to please the audience."

Playing in a restaurant can be tricky. "If somebody's eating, I don't play fast music; they'll eat too quickly," she says. "When somebody is studying the menu, I play study-the-menu music, pleasant but not demanding. And if you're talking to the waiter, I play quietly."

If pressed, she describes her role as "a ducking musician. I duck the waiters, duck the people . . ."

Avakian has memorized hundreds of tunes but she's not infallible. "Sometimes I won't be able to recall a tune but when I'm driving home, the whole song will go in front of me."

Her style of music is "not just background music, but a catalyst," she says. "It lets people know it s OK to talk to a stranger." She sometimes plays for baby showers and other occasions where music can soften the mood.

"I try to be sensitive, particularly at Lucia's," she says. "I know some people there haven't seen each other in years and others are there on business. Those people just want to have a good meal and talk."

Some diners, however, are very recpetive to Avakian's music. "I look for clues. Some people smile, hum or tap their feet. That's why it's fun and why I enjoy what I'm doing."

Wagner is Bowdoin graduate

James Gray Wagner of 9 Madison Ave. was awarded a bachelor of arts degree May 24 at Bowdoin College's 181st commencement exercises.

He was graduated cum laude.

A graduate of Winchester High School, Wagner held a double major in English and history and was a dean's list student.

Wagner was named a James Bowdoin Scholar, an award given in recognition of outstanding academic achievement. He participated in a study away program at the University of London through Bedford College.

Wagner was the founder and president of the Young Democrats, and served on the college steering committee. He was a member and the B-team captain of the Bowdoin Men's Rugby Club.

Mulkerin earns economics degree

Mary T. Mulkerin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mulkerin of Winchester, graduated from Trinity College in Washington, D.C., at the 83rd commencement exercises of the college on May 18.

Mulkerin was among 100 women to graduate from the 89-year-old private, Catholic liberal arts college for women. She received a bachelor of arts degree in economics.

Mulkerin also received a departmental honor in economics. Departmental honors are conferred at graduation upon a student who during her junior and senior years has attained a quality ratio of 3.5 in her major field or who has completed other honors requirements in that field to the satisfaction of the department.

O'Brien wins full scholarship

Jeanne O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. O'Brien of 4 York Rd., has been awarded a full four-year scholarship to the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester.

O'Brien will graduate June 8 from Winchester High School, where she received a Presidential Achievement award and other honors for scholastic ability.

She has also been involved in many soccer and youth programs. She was chosen for the state select team and competed last fall in Dallas in a tournament sponsored by Southland Dairies.

During the weekend of May 30, she also competed on an under-19 state team in Baltimore.

O'Brien has also competed for Winchester High School in spring and winter track, taking first places in several events.

Linda Gurrisi graduates college

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Gurrisi of Winchester announce the graduation of their daughter, Linda Marie, June 1 from Massachusetts Bay Community College. She received an associate's degree in management.

Fennell earns degree at Bowdoin

Richard Fennell of 72 Sargent Rd. was awarded a bachelor of arts degree Saturday at Bowdoin College's 181st commencement exercises.

A graduate of Winchester High School, Fennell majored in psychology at Bowdoin.

Fennell was the recipient of the Curtis E. Chase Memorial Fund Award, an award dedicated to the memory of the late 1st Lt. Curtis E. Chase '65, the first Bowdoin graduate to die in Vietnam. It is presented annually to a Bowdoin senior who is "a man of promise with the qualities of leadership that make for citizenship in the best American tradition."

Fennell was made quarterback of the football team as a freshman and was a three-year letterwinner. His sophomore year he was awarded the Winslow Robinson Howland Memorial Trophy as "the member of the varsity team who has made the most marked improvement on the field of play and who best exemplifies the qualities of aggressiveness, cooperation and enthusiasm for the game and fine sportsmanship."

He was a three-year letterwinner in baseball also.

A member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Fennell twice served as its president. He also served as the vice president and as treasurer of the Interfraternity Council at Bowdoin.

The interior design department offers a three-year professional program which includes the associate degree and a professional certificate at the conclusion of the third year.

Cumings leads convention tour

Bob Cumings of Winchester recently conducted a tour of Boston's Hynes Convention Center. The former Hynes Auditorium was demolished, making way for a convention center capable of accomodating over 22,000.

Three graduate at Fitchburg State

Three Winchester residents were among 975 students to receive degrees at Fitchburg State College during the school's 90th commencement exercise June 1.

Laura M. Consales earned a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Tracy Morris earned a bachelor's degree in nursing.

Therese A. Pothier earned a bachelor's degree in nursing.

Poet and essayist David McCord was the speaker and recipient of an honorary doctorate.

Armstrong is Bowdoin graduate

Armstrong is a former resident of Winchester and a graduate of Kents Hill School in Maine.

At Bowdoin she held a double major in English and economics with a minor in history and was a dean's list student.

Armstrong directed the Bowdoin Precision Band, a college band which plays at athletic events, for three years. She also played timpany for the Bowdoin Orchestra and percussion for the Bowdoin Wind Ensemble.

She was awarded JV numerals for basketball.

Armstrong was selected to be a resident assistant for the college apartments for 1985-1986.

A member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, she served as its treasurer for three terms, and as alumni treasurer during her senior year.

IRS forms 1099 were not issued for $7,594 in legal expenses, $1,542 in electrical work and $1,500 in accounting services, Finnegan said.

The state department of revenue and the federal Internal Revenue Service have now been notified, Finnegan said.

Finnegan's report cited several other deficiencies in the authority's operation during the two-year period. He said weak inventory controls and the authority's failure to conduct the require annual physical inventories have resulted in insufficient information to accurately identify and control the authority's assets.

A physical inventory has been taken since July 1985, however, and Finnegan called the action "responsive."

Further, Finnegan said, "inadequate expenditure documentation could result in possible payment of unjustified expenses."

In his report, Finnegan said some of the missing documentation was later found at the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD). The Winchester authority sent the information there without making copies of the itemized expenditure documentation, Finnegan said.

McCarthy said the authority has been responsive to Finnegan's criticisms and the presence of Keefe and a secretary have allowed improved accounting procedures and record-keeping.

McCarthy said the timing of Finnegan's report "could not have been worse," however, and questioned whether state audit reports are regularly sent to news media.

State EOCD assistant secretary Joseph L. Flatley wrote April 30 to selectmen, demanding that Winchester provide seven units of "affordable" housing as it has agreed several times to do. The letter set two deadlines, however, citing "by the end of this town meeting" in one paragraph and "by May 30, 1986" in another paragraph.

Finnegan's audit report is dated May 30, 1986.

The housing authority will meet at 6 p.m. today, June 5, at its office at 13 Westley St. to prepare for the 7:30 p.m. town meeting at the high school.

- Said they will consider changes in the liquor licensing regulations next week. Selectmen have said some restaurants have been serving liquor without requiring food purchases, thereby operating more as a "lounge" than a restaurant.
- Heard a proposal by Mark Lombardi to hold some kind of forum, perhaps public and perhaps only with town boards, to determine "if people really want strict zoning."
- Received a report from Deering about meetings he and selectman Judie Muggia had with the owners of Ristorante Lucia to work out satisfactory arrangements for valet parking at the restaurant.
- Heard Deering request that selectmen adopt some policy about showing videotapes during meetings. Selectman Frank Sopper showed tapes at the May 27 meeting to illustrate the presence of trespassers near the Winchester water supply in the Middlesex Fells Reservation.

Winchester Kernels

It has been a busy three weeks in Winchester with the EnKa Street Fair, the Memorial Day parade, the dedication of Jake Horn Square and Town Day 1986 following each other in rapid succession.

Each event attracted a good number of participants and even more volunteers, all of whom deserve commendation. Town Day was especially pleasing because the rain held off all day.

During the selectmen's meeting Monday night, Mark Lombardi noted the hard work of the Town Day Committee. "I saw them working Friday morning and I saw the very same people picking up litter Saturday afternoon. They deserve commendation," Lombardi said.

He's right.

George and Maureen

Among the Town Day sights was the crew from The Star handing out lollipops, "I'm a Winchester Star" buttons and Town Day sections from last week's paper.

Assistant editor Maureen Quinlan (she's the good-looking one) and editor George Derringer (the not-so-good-looking one), plus several other staff members, manned the Star wheelbarrow once used by T. Price Wilson to deliver papers to the post office. Crack photographer Dennis Antle, usually disguised as an advertising salesman, snapped our photo.

Several folks have said we should print a picture of ourselves so the public can be warned when a reporter might be listening. This is the least overtly egotistical way we could think of.

Hello, Winchester

Earlier this week, The Winchester Star changed hands. This is the first issue published by Harte-Hanks Communications and my first issue as your publisher. A few words are in order.

First, you should know that Harte-Hanks is excited about coming to Winchester. This is an exciting, healthy town with a wonderful personality. It has a strong downtown, good schools and services, and a myriad of attributes that make it a special place. It's a great place to do business, a great place to publish a newspaper.

Second, we're not going anywhere. The Star Building at 3 Church Street, where this paper has been edited and produced for decades, will still be home for both the Star and Century Publications. If you have something on your mind, please feel free to stop by and look me up at that address.

Third, your hometown newspaper isn't going to change. The Star has developed a personality of its own over the past century. It's that local identity, that finger on the pulse of the community, that makes the Star special. And we're committed to preserving that.

Stories, headlines, editing — in short, the activities that make this paper unique — will continue to be generated by Editor George Derrringer, Assistant Editor Maureen Quinlan and other staff members here in Winchester. Our editorial positions will be determined and written locally.

We'll evolve as the needs of our readers change, but our basic mission — that of providing complete information of the town and the things happening around you — will remain unchanged.

I look forward to getting to know you, the people of Winchester. During the coming weeks and months I hope to hear your thoughts about the Star and its role in the community. This an exciting town with an exciting newspaper, and we're excited about continuing The Winchester Star's rich tradition of community service.

What kind of zoning?

Selectman Mark Lombardi asked that question Monday night.

He doesn't know the answer, no other selectman offered a definitive opinion and nobody seems to be sure.

Surely those people who rent out "bootleg apartments," the kind town officials don't exactly know about, can't want strict enforcement. Neither can their tenants.

Zoning laws can also prevent nice arrangements like that worked out in January between the owners of The Mill at 50 Cross St. and the town, which owns the Leonard Beach site next to it. Both sides thought they could accommodate the other but zoning laws won't allow it.

Winchester residents, however, also know zoning can prevent strip development like that on Route 28 in Stoneham.

Lombardi suggested a kind of forum among various groups to see if the town really wants strict zoning enforcement. His idea is good.

The forum should be public, not restricted to a small group of elected officials who were elected largely because of their views on other issues.

Zoning, after all, is supposed to benefit the people of the town. They must be a part of every decision. Democracy takes a lot longer than the alternatives but it benefits all.

Housing woes continue

Revelations of an audit review of the Winchester Housing Authority for a recent two-year period are not surprising.

According to state auditor John J. Finnegan, the authority can't add and doesn't have enough file cabinets.

Basically, the state auditor found that the authority collected $20 a month too much rent from four tenants and may have undercharged another by not including $11 a month in interest income to determine the tenant's financial resources.

The auditor also said the authority should have more documentation, a fancy name for paperwork. Folks at the authority office two and three years ago really should have known enough to make 20 copies of everything. Every other government employee knows that principle.

Instead, the authority sent some of its itemized bills to the state Executive Office of Communities and Development, the bureaucracy which oversees the authority. Finnegan determined the bills were "missing." It turned out that another state office already had them.

Basically, the state auditor faulted the authority for not having enough bureaucracy and for not making copy machine makers rich enough.

To be sure, bureaucracy makes fraud harder to commit. But the department is not accused of fraud; it's accused of not checking arithmetic well enough, not keeping copies of all its bills and not hiring somebody to count all of the authority's property every year.

The authority pleads "guilty" to having done things ineptly from July 1, 1983, to June 30, 1985. As a penalty, the state recommends more people, more paperwork and more bureaucracy.

It's hard to say if that's better.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rotary thanks the dunkees

TO THE EDITOR:

Let us take this opportunity to publicly thank all of the celebrities that donated their time, and in some cases their better judgment, and participated in the Winchester Rotary Celebrity Dunk on Town Day.

The day was a tremendous success and all involved had great fun. The community will benefit greatly from this as the Rotary continues its practice of returning money to the Town through worthy causes.

Jake's family thanks the town

TO THE EDITOR:

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to the members of the Committee for the tribute and dedication of the John T. "Jake" Horn Square on May 24, 1986.

We also thank Wade Welch, chairman, and the members of the board of selectmen, the Rev. John J. Bishop, the Winchester High School Band and color guards from the V.F.W. and police department, and the V.F.W. Post 3719 for the reception after the ceremony.

We appreciate all the generous contributions which were received from individuals, business firms, civic and fraternal organizations which made this memorial possible.

We are grateful that the townspeople have acknowledged Jake's many years of service with this perpetual rememberance, and we are truly honored that the John T. "Jake" Horn Square in Winchester was named in the memory of our husband and father.

Sincerely,
The Family of John T. "Jake" Horn

Larocco thanks prom helpers

TO THE EDITOR:

May I take the vehicle of your newspaper to thank all those who helped to make our senior prom such a success. The spirit of cooperation between students, parents, faculty and various community agencies was a thing of beauty and helped make the world "family" a reality.

While there are too many people to thank individually, I do publicly want to thank Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Nursery for their efforts and beautiful decorations. A tent became a beautiful garden as the result of their contributions.

To everyone who contributed - my thanks and appreciation for offering our young people an even that was both positive and memorable.

Sincerely,
Vincent E. Larocco
Principal

Senior prom volunteers thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

While 350 happy seniors and dates danced under beautiful summer skies and a tent that was transformed into a garden, others went to bed early exhausted.

Many hands went into making that setting on Manchester field last Friday night so extraordinary. Hopefully, they all know their work is much appreciated. But several went above and beyond the call of common duty and they should be given extra applause.

Without Mahoney's, there would be no garden in the tent. If you didn't venture down just before the seniors arrived, you missed one of the most spectacular transformations - literally hundred of plants, greenery decking poles, flowers hand glued on poles, and table bouquets were brought to make this a special setting for the Class of 1986.

Ralph Johnson and his wife, with several special friends including Ann Esposito, have no graduating seniors, yet they worked tirelessly on the prom.

Two parents of seniors also put in extraordinary effort. Dan Serieka spent a lonely vigil guarding the tent through the nights and Missy Herlihy spent long hours during the day doing everything needed to help make the event perfect.

The Winchester faculty was there too. John Pirani appeared to live in the tent and spent long hours setting up and taking down, with the help of some young lacrosse players.

And the colorful balloons gracing the ceiling, how did they get there? By the hand of none other than principal Vin Larocco!

A tremendous effort by a varied group of workers saluted a class the town wishes well. Perhaps next year, the junior class might take up the cudgel and begin a tradition - the junior gift to their friends, the seniors, running the prom. Many hands make light work.

Sincerely
Jeannie Weylman

Elderly housing ideas welcomed

TO THE EDITOR:

The Jenks Outreach Committee of the First Congregational Church of Winchester is interested in the question of elderly housing needs.

An open meeting on this topic will be held in Chidley Hall, First Congregational Church at 4 p.m., June 15.

We want to hear what people of all ages think about this issue. We would also like your opinions on our goals, of which copies may be obtained at the Jenks Senior Center.

Editor sees few changes ahead for The Star

By GEORGE DERRINGER

There are a few changes in The Winchester Star this week, but not as many as there might have been.

As most residents are aware, The Star changed hands during the weekend when Peter and Kay Jorgensen turned the keys over to Harte-Hanks Communications, a national group of newspapers which includes daily papers in Waltham, Dedham and Framingham.

A new publisher, Chuck Goodrich, is here and is introduced in this issue. All the rest of us are still here, though. Maureen Quinlan, The Star's assistant editor, and I were at Town Day on Saturday, working for the Jorgensens, and came back to work Monday for the new owners.

Otherwise, very little will change. The Jorgensens will continue to live in Arlington and will continue to publish some specialty magazines. The staff of The Star and the other Century Newspapers will not change.

Another change is likely to be more editorials, which have not exactly been The Star's strong suit in recent years. Harte-Hanks gives each of its papers "local autonomy" and encourages journalists to take stands on issues important to local towns.

In most cases, the editorials will be written by the editor, often after consultation with the rest of the staff of The Star and other community people. Response to editorials is welcome; editorials are designed to encourage thought and discussion, not necessarily agreement.

More significant changes have already been made. During the past few months, we have made pictures fewer and smaller in order to put more of the local news, the lifeblood of any community newspaper, in the same space.

Only rarely does a news item get left out any more. No, the paper doesn't look as nice as it used to, but we get a lot more in it.

Perhaps another change is in the style of the editorial staff, although I'm not exactly sure. Maureen and I, the only two fulltime editorial staff members, are available to the public. We welcome phone calls and personal visits to the office at 3 Church St.

Primarily because of our limited space, we can't always do everything somebody asks but we'll try our best.

As a veteran of nearly 15 years in the newspaper field, nearly all of them in the "community newspaper" side of it, I know the future of the community paper is not in doubt. Any paper that accurately reflects the concerns of all the citizens of its town, writing both the good news and the bad news is secure.

GUEST COLUMN

'A modest proposal' to protect town water

By EDWARD S. SHANLEY

I should like to add my observations to the current discussion about public use of the Fells Reservation.

I have been walking in the Fells about once a week, year-round, for several years, for observation purposes only, of course.

Although the Fells is too large for me to keep under continuous scrutiny, I can confirm that there is some public use. The population may sometimes be as high as about one person per square mile.

All sorts of persons are to be found from time to time, including solitary joggers and hikers, occasional family groups, dog walkers, ice skaters and fisherpersons, in season, at Cranberry Pond to name a few.

I have myself observed young people holding hands in the Fells on several occasions. The corruption of our age is only emphasized by the relaxed behavior and innocent countenances of these various intruders.

Worse still, the Fells continues to support a "considerable" animal population. Squirrels, chipmunks, groundhogs, ratbits, frogs, turtles, fish, ducks, geese, and many small bird species are at home here.

New families are much in evidence at this time of year. We can only conclude that unspeakable acts are being committed regularly in, on, and around our town water supply. Some citizens will certainly find this an intolerable situation.

The remedy for our problem is enclosure. It is well within the capability of modern technology to put the whole reservoir area under a net of strong, durable plastic. The net, supported on elevated cables stretched across each pond, would be fastened firmly to the ground on all sides.

With access completely controlled, the ponds can be cleared of aquatic life by the use of selected pesticides, then sterilized with chlorine. Periodic application of chlorine at the rate of a few thousand tons should serve to maintain sterility.

Once our Fells water supply is safely sequestered, we could turn our attention to the threat posed by MDC water. Quabbin is by no means secure. For one thing, the reservation boundaries are not proof against intrustion.

Further, recreational use, for boating and fishing, is authorized in certain areas.

Finally, the main campus of U. Mass. is only a short distance away, with all that that implies. No, my fellow townsmen, Quabbin water is not safe from pollution. We in Winchester should give serious consideration to abandoning its use.

Fortunately, a free enterprise remedy for the shortfall in water supply is available. Town water rates can be adjusted upward until usage comes into balance with the Fells supply.

With the securing of the Fells water supply and the elimination of potential pollution from Quabbin, Winchester will have taken yet another step toward exclusion of corrupting outside influences from our town.

HELP FOR HOUSE HUNTERS

Finding a good Realtor that you like and trust is the first step in finding your new home.

You can call or stop by a company in your area. Ask to talk to the manager, and explain what type of home you're looking for. He or she can then refer you to an agent who knows that market very well and with whom you could work comfortably. You might also use weekend open houses as a chance to look for an agent as well as a new home. It's really a matter of chemistry! If you meet someone you like and who seems knowledgeable, call him back.

Once you establish a good working relationship with a Realtor, he can show you almost all of the homes for sale in the area where you want to purchase, even if they're listed with other companies or for sale by owner. He will be able to show you property as soon as it is placed on the market (many of the best homes never even make it to the Sunday classified section of the newspaper).

If there's a move in your future, call the professionals at Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors. Our number is 729-7000, or just drop by our offices at 33 Thompson St., Winchester. We are happy to serve all of your real estate needs.

High school spring concert impressive

By ALEXANDER KREIFELDT

Demonstrating a new "unity" praised by concert and jazz band director Priscilla Miller, several ensembles of the Winchester High School music department performed well in the spring concert May 29.

Miller said before the concert, "The bands have become a unified body. Things seem to fall in place at the end of the year. Since the band is going down to the Gator Bowl, they are pushed to perform better."

The concert band performed first and Miller gave the band a short briefing on stage. They played "Invicia" by James Swearingen and "Selections from Annie" by Charles Strouse and Martin Charnin with feature performances by clarinetists Laurie Rahmeier and Scott Racek.

Next was "Lemon Meringue" by Hugh Stuart and "We Are the World" by Michael Jackson and Lionel Richie.

The chorus, directed by Lynne Rahmeier, was next to perform. She said, "The kids enjoy music and enjoy doing a good job." The group sang "One" by Marvin Hamlisch and Edward Kleban, "Look to the Rainbow" by E.Y. Harburg and Burton Lane, "Two Hungarian Folk Songs" by Matyas Seiber, "In Stiller Nachet" by Johannes Brahms, "No Man Is an Island" by Joan Whitney and Alex Kramer and finally "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor".

The chorus performed well although a few members couldn't control their laughter on the riser. After the performance, chorus member Joan Matelli said, "The new director is really great, not too tough."

The orchestra was next and included the junior high string section. They played "Die Meistersinger" by Richard Wagner, "Highlights from Evita" by Andrew Webber and "Bacchanale" by Cammille Saint-Saens. The orchestra was directed by Mary Alice McCann.

The climax of the concert was the Winchester High School Jazz Band. The first tune was "Carnival," which featured Adrian Harpham. He performed an impressive and interesting drum solo. The crowd responded with wild applause and screams. Next was "Wine and Roses," a swinging and smooth jazz tune which featured the sax section. Last was "The Best of Earth, Wind and Fire."

All groups performed well and were enthusiastic. The directors and parents were pleased with the quality of the student concert. The new members of the Winchester High School music department staff have brought out the best in their students.

SCHOOL NEWS

Winchester Summer Day Camp plans made

Winchester Summer Day Camp is a new summer program to provide children in grades K-6 with activities to foster their development.

Participants will be grouped by age and interests. The program features swimming lessons at the indoor Olympic pool at Medford High School, field trips at least twice a week, and traditional indoor and outdoor summer day camp activities.

Program sponsor is Winchester Child Care, Inc., which operates Kids' Corner, an after-school program for grades K-6.

The camp will run weekdays from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. from the end of school until the week before school reopens. The primary program site is located at the Unitarian Church at 478 Main St.

This space features brightly lit classrooms for small groups, a large, homelike gathering space for times when all the groups want to meet together, a large indoor play space and a fully equipped kitchen.

The program will also take advantage of town fields for sports and will hike in the Fells and at Locke Farm.

Program director is Lynda Gregoriou, who has directed programs for the Massachusetts Audobon Society and the YMCA in Sutton, in addition to serving a variety of leadership roles at the Gifford School and Day Center for children in grades K-12 in Weston.

Teacher-counselors include Sally Breckenridge, who has lots of experience in outdoor activities with elementary age school children. Richard Rodgers, a science teacher with experience in summer camp who also has a strong atheletic background, and Marissa Wolsky, who has worked in the Kids' Corner program and has a special interest in art and dramatics.

Staff necessary for a 1:7 staffing ratio is supported in carrying out program goals by an executive committee of parents and other founders of Winchester Child Care, Inc.

Tuition is $85 per week. Children are expected to bring their own lunches. The program will provide nutritious snacks in the mornings and afternoons.

Parents are expected to provide transportation to and from the Unitarian Church.

The program will supply bus transportation to and from field trips and swimming lessons.

A limited number of spaces is available. For information, call Kay Schodek at 721-1207, Tuesday through Thursday only, between 8:30 and 10:00 p.m.

NOTES FROM THE BLACKBOARD

Summer programs for gifted

The Massachusetts Department of Education has sent a catalogue listing summer and year-round opportunities for gifted and talented students in grades kindergarten through college.

More than 120 programs are described in such varied areas as theatre arts, marine science, music, natural history and computer camp. Stop by Room 10 in the administration building at Lynch School or call Mary Vitka at 721-7006 for more information.

A new opportunity at Salem State College is the SEA/SEA TOO program for grades 4 through 8 and the SEA TOO program for grades 2 and 3. These programs are an attempt to provide educational opportunities not normally available or accessible in the typical elementary-middle school setting.

Each student takes three courses in the student's field of interest. Classes are kept small and will foster creativity. The three week courses run July 7-25. Contact Mary Vitka for details.

American Field Service

The American Field Service in Winchester is looking for a family to host an outstanding student from abroad for the coming school year. The student will attend Winchester High School.

For information, call Robert Boslego or Jane Robbins at 729-7989. They are host parents to this year's student, Ender Ozdemir of Turkey. Ozdemir is also available to talk to prospective host families or to Winchester students interested in participating in the program and living abroad for a summer or year.

Winchester Scholarship Foundation

With cuts in the federal budget for financial aid and escalating costs of higher learning, the number of students who need assistance is increasing. Therefore, a major effort has been launched by the Winchester Scholarship Foundation in this year's finance drive in order to respond to the growing needs of Winchester students going on to post-high school education.

The range of assistance the foundation has provided in the past has enabled students to attend large universities, smaller schools, community colleges, state universities, art, music, nursing, secretarial, vocational and technical schools. Scholarships are awarded after careful and confidential review of each application and when all other avenues of funding are exhausted. Contributions should be sent to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, Box 174, Winchester 01890 and are tax-deductible.

Primary Curriculum Night

"Earth, Sky and Sea" was the theme of Ambrose School's Primary Curriculum Night Thursday, May 22. Everything from fish to an erupting volcano enthralled visitors as they viewed a great variety of exhibits.

A popular kindergarten attraction was the stuffed animal zoo. Topics such as redwoods, crystals, sea anemones and rockets captured the interest of those viewing the first, second, and third graders' projects. Exhibits were the result of many weeks of research on individually chosen subjects, culminating in each student completing an informational written report, a poster and a visual display. Students gave oral presentations to classmates during the school day and were able to answer questions from inquistive visitors that night.

Ambrose kindergarten busy

Kindergarteners at Ambrose were recently interviewed by intermediate students in Mrs. Martha Whitney's English classes. Questions were formulated by older students in order to get information concerning the kindergarteners' favorite books and reading interests so each intermediate student could begin writing and binding an original book for the child interviewed.

First grade vistors

"Buenos Dias" became the classroom greeting May 15 in Lincoln School first grades when Carmen Bissell visited each class and gave a lesson in conversational Spanish.

The children also played "Simon Says" in their new language. Also University of New Hampshire educator, Donald Holdaway, visited with his demonstration "Big Books."

Writing assignments

Lincoln third graders recently wrote and illustrated fairy tales using the Milliken word processor and Delta Draw. Their works were part of a study of fairy tales as distinct form of children's literature.

They created castles and puppets in art class to enrich their writing project. In addition, students have received pen pal letters from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. They found out that third-graders in Canada are just like they are with interests in Smurfs, friends and Transformers.

Poetry workshop

Muraco School primary students were visited by local poet Elizabeth McKim the week of May 26. She did chanting, rhythm games and other activities with the whole group. Then each class met with her for poetry reading, discussion sessions, and to work on various poetry experiences.

Chicks in residence

Peeping sounds can be heard coming from Sheila Gill's classroom at Muraco. Third and fourth graders are involved in an embryology project sponsored by the 4-H club.

Twelve eggs, a film, and slides were received from the 4-H. The children are busy caring for the six chicks that successfully hatched until they are given to a farm.

Wax museum

Sixth graders at Lincoln are working on the final stages of preparation for the eighth annual Lincoln School Wax Museum in the school auditorium. The museum will be open Thursday, June 5, from 9:15 to 11:50 a.m. Students from other schools and the public are invited.

Classroom ant farm

Students in Terri Maguire's first-grade class at Lynch School have a new addition to their classroom - an ant farm. The children have observed ants dig tunnels, store food, bury their dead and much more.

They have listened to stories about ants and written their own stories based on their observations. They have made giant-size pictures of ants and labeled and discussed the anatomy of an ant.

They will continue to read and write stories, poems and jokes, to draw cartoons and to have classroom discussions about ants. They hope to display the ant farm and their projects in the school library for all to observe, enjoy, and learn from.

Immigration studied

As part of their study of immigration during the 1900s, Lynch fifth and sixth graders in Mrs. Vicky Cavicchi's social studies class recently visited the Berklee Performance Center in Boston.

They enjoyed a play entitled "Lady Liberty" which told the story of a typical immigrant girl beginning a new life in America.

Lincoln School fifth graders capture high math honors in New England competition

Lincoln Elementary School and five of its students recently earned high marks in the New England Math League's annual competition for fifth and sixth graders.

The contest took place in the elementary schools across New England on Tuesday March 4. Winners were announced last week.

Lincoln School ranked in the top 25 schools in New England, out of the 759 which participated. Also, the Lincoln School 5-member team tied with two other schools for seventh place, scoring 179 out of 200 possible points.

Team member Peter Jones earned 38 points, with 40 being a perfect score. Jones' score was third highest in the individual scores. Only six students scored 40, and ten scored 39.

The Lincoln team will receive certificates of merit. Team members included; sixth graders, Peter Jones (scoring 38 points), Elias Tiliakos (36 points), Matthew Krumme (35 points and Philip Obbard (35 points).

During the competition participants have 30 minutes to answer 40 multiple choice questions. All questions are designed to stimulate the common-sense mathematician who just knows whether an answer looks right or absolutely ridiculous.

While the Lincoln team did very well, each member missed the same question. How would you handle it? A radius of circle I has the same length as a diameter of circle II. The ratio of circle I's area to circle II's area is A) 4 to 1, B) 2 to 1, C) 1 to 2, or D) 1 to 4. The correct answer is A.

Lynch annual luncheon

The Lynch School Parent's Association recently hosted its annual luncheon for staff and teachers at the school. Mrs. Peggy Keefe and her social committee provided a delicious lunch for the many parents and staff who gathered for the occasion.

The Parent's Association, on behalf of all parents at Lynch, thanks all who worked to make this year a lively, enlightening, and learning one.

Running techniques

Recently, Precious Hill, a young runner from the Waltham Track Club, spoke to Muraco School students about proper running techniques. After a running demonstration and a question and answer session, many students were inspired to try their new knowledge outside on the field.

Teacher of the Hour

Leonard DiFranco, a Muraco parent and a junior high science teacher in Lexington, recently shared his expertise with Marilyn DiMassa's first graders and Sheila Gill's fourth graders. Using a generator, he performed various experiments with electricity for the students.

His visit was part of an ongoing "Teacher of the Hour" program in which parents come to teach a lesson.

Japanese haiku poetry studied

Vinson-Owen third graders are studying haiku, a very old form of poetry which originated in Japan 700 years ago. Haiku developed over the years until by the 17th century it became an integral part of Japanese culture.

Haiku is not like the poetry we read, speak or write today. It doesn't depend upon rhythm or rhyme for structure. Instead, a necessary characteristic of almost every haiku poem is that it is composed of only 17 syllables divided into three lines with five syllables in the first line, seven in the second and five in the third line.

A genuine haiku captures a mood about a nature scene and creates a vivid response in the reader. Words are chosen carefully. As part of the functional writing program in the third grade, the children learn to develop their own haiku poems, to illustrate them and to share them with each other.

Outdoor education camp

Vinson-Owen fifth graders, recently returned from an exciting educational and exhausting week at The Steven Greer Memorial Camp in Plymouth, N.H. Each day was filled with study groups on plants, animals, soil and water, in addition to a visit to the Holderness Science Center and the flume.

One of the highlights was the night walk which culminated in a solo walk which left every child with a feeling of exhiliration and self confidence. Recreation time was filled with football, softball, and face painting.

Lowell visited

On the recent trip to Lowell, Vinson-Owen sixth graders learned about locks, turbines, canals and mills. The "Water Power" exhibit had a slide show about the Merrimack River.

Students looked at turbines to see how they work. At a museum, they toured Lowell, talked about the Industrial Revolution and learned the history of Lowell. They walked to a mill, then a boarding house, and saw an old weaving machine. The tour ended with a movie.

Scholarships awarded

Each year, the Vinson-Owen School Parents' Association awards a $100 scholarship to four high-achieving Winchester High School seniors who attended Vinson-Owen School.

This year the four recipients of the Dr. Clare M. Corcoran Scholarship Award are Martha Redding, Robert Driscoll, Laurie Rahmeier and Charles Marquardt.

Professional development

Mary Graffo, a senior at Salem State College who has been doing her student teaching practicum in Lincoln School's second grade, received a distinction of exceptional merit and an award of honorable mention in the National Education Association student teaching competition.

Graffo submitted a video tape of her teaching in a dame school during the recently completed colonial unit.

Vinson-Owen teachers, Marian Foley and Helen Clark, recently attended a professional conference entitled "Enrichment Activities for the Elementary School Classroom" sponsored May 12 by the Spotlight Program at Southeastern Massachusetts University.

Emphasis was placed upon utilizing the Enrichment Trial Model in the classroom. This program was designed in 1973 by Dr. Joseph Renzulli at the University of Connecticut. The trial model classifies general classroom activities into three categories ranging from general exploratory ones for a large group to small group training, to individual projects.

The importance of observing and interacting with the world to develop conclusions was stressed through the use of science kits—ESS and SCIS which are already used in Winchester. Workshops were presented on problem solving, critical thinking, creative writing, and research skills.

Work by David Ardito, art teacher at McCall, will be included in the "American Work on Paper" exhibition at the Zaner Gallery in Rochester, N.Y. The exhibit runs through July and August.

SENIOR NEWS

Seniors elect new officers

Members of the Winchester Seniors Association, at the annual meeting of May 28, elected the following seniors to serve on the executive board for one year:

Walter L. Dignam, president; Dr. Robert M. Smith, senior vice president; Margaret L. Borggaard, administrative vice president; Leonard G. Leader, program vice president; Elaine T. Delaney, treasurer; and Dorothy T. Glowacki, secretary.

The three most recent presidents, Leonor M. Rich, Pauline D. McGuigan and Norman L. Reed, will serve as honorary board members.

Jenks mini-van service revised

The previous routes of the mini-van service, operating from the Jenks Center on Fridays for seniors, have been replaced by a door-to-door service. The new service starts on June 6.

Reservations for transportation must be made and requests will be confirmed by the driver before the scheduled pick-up.

The free service is provided by the Winchester Nursing Center Administration.

Jenks hosts dance, June 14

Seniors will welcome summer with a dance Saturday, June 14, from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Jenks Center.

Dick Brogna and his band will furnish the music. All seniors are welcome.

HEALTH BEAT

Skin cancer talk scheduled

Phillip S. Ellerin, M.D., a board certified member of the American Academy of Dermotology, will give a lecture and slide presentation on the recognition and prevention of skin cancer from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday, June 12, at the Symmes Hospital in Arlington.

"Skin Cancer: Recognition, Prevention and Treatment" will present information of the three major types of skin cancer, early signs of pre-cancerous conditions, profiles of the person most prone to cancer, chances of cure and SPF numbers which now appear on commercial suntan lotions.

Ellerin will discuss methods of recognizing mole changes and how to determine if new moles might be melanomas.

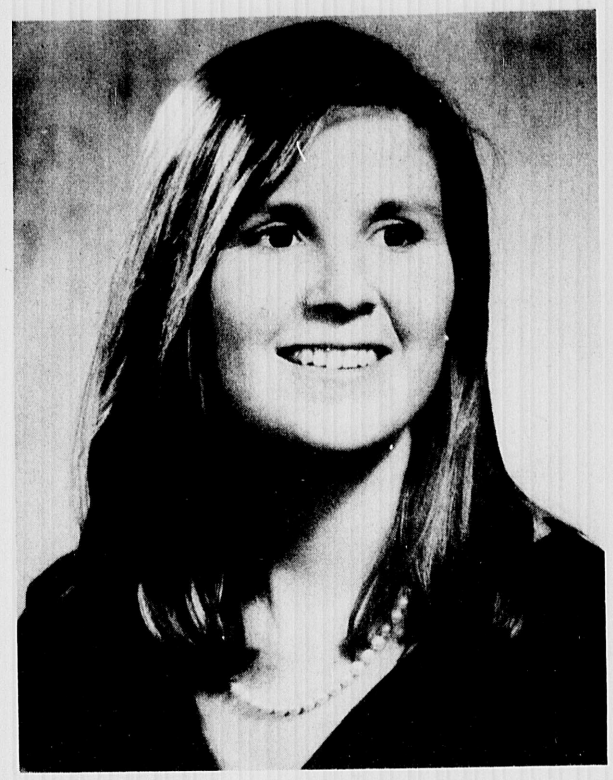

Ellerin is a graduate of Tufts Medical School and an assistant professor at Tufts and Boston University. He is on staff at the Choate-Symmes Health Services, and has offices in Arlington and Burlington.

The American Cancer Society estimates 400,000 people will develop skin cancer in the U.S. this year; 7,400 people will die.

By learning to take precautions, one can decrease the chances of becoming a part of these statistics.

The program is free and open to the public. Pre-registration is required, please call 646-1500, ext. 2291.

Margaret A. Sutherland and Michael Patterson are engaged to marry

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Sutherland of Winchester and Chilmark announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Ann, to Michael Virden Patterson, son of Henry S. Patterson II and the late Suzanne Virden Patterson of Princeton, N.J., and West Tisbury.

Miss Sutherland graduated from Winchester High School in 1980 and attended the University of New Hampshire. She is a student at the Museum of Fine Arts School and Tufts University.

Mr. Patterson graduated from Princeton Day School and Rider College, Lawrenceville, N.J. He is in a management training program at the Martha's Vineyard National Bank.

A September wedding is planned on Martha's Vineyard.

Mrs. Richard R. Hayes

Ellen K. O'Neil and Richard Hayes are wed

Ellen K. O'Neil and Richard R. Hayes were married May 17 at a nuptial mass in St. Mary's Church, Winchester. The Rev. George Butera officiated, assisted by the Rev. Craig J. Lister, brother-in-law of the bride.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. O'Neil of Winchester, was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Franklin Hayes of South Lebanon, Maine.

Nancy O'Neil Lister was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Nancy Ahrabi-Nejad of Revere, Martha Johnson of Winchester, Mary McHarg of Arlington and Susan Papetti of Boston.

Michael Hayes of Billerica was best man for his brother. Ushers were Nelson Clement of New Jersey, Kevin O'Neil of Plantation, Fla., brother of the bride, Steve Upson of Billerica and Roy Webster of Waltham.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and Northeastern University. She is a physical therapist at the New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn.

The groom is also a graduate of Northeastern University and is employed at Raytheon in Burlington.

Following a reception at the Winchester Country Club, the couple took a wedding trip to Florida and are now residing in Malden.

Ward's Has A Gift For Any Occasion

"A satisifed customer comes back," explains Don Ward, owner and proprietor of Ward's Gift Shop in Medford since just after World War II.

And, for the past 43 years, Wards's reputation for good service, reasonable prices, and standing behind his merchandise has kept them coming back.

Many of Ward's longtime customers have moved away but they still call to have china, crystal, or figurines shipped to as far away as Florida or California. He will ship to any part of the U.S.

Located at 24 High st. in Medford Square, Ward's carries one of the largest selections of Waterford crystal in the Boston area, along with 300 patterns of china including such well-known names as Royal Doulton, Minton, Pickard, Wedgewood, and Noritake.

Ward's also features a wide selection of limited edition plates, figurines, and collector's dolls. Among the 15,000-20,000 items in the store is one of the New England area's largest selection of figurines including such names as Lladro, Hummel, Royal Doulton, Anri, Kaiser, Sebastian, Francis Hook, and Precious Moments.

Ward's has an appropriate gift for any occasion and ready to assist customers in finding that "something special" is Dorothy, the shop's manager for the past 27 years.

Dorothy, and all the staff at Ward's strive to maintain "a personal touch atmosphere" which has been one of the trademarks of Ward's since it opened its doors. Dorothy and the crew at Ward's are on a first-name basis with most of their customers.

Although he has seen Medford Square change "like all squares change over the years," Ward and his employees have earned and maintained a reputation for personal service, quality, and low prices. "In fact," says Ward, "Word of mouth is our best selling point."

Visit Ward's the next time you need that special gift. Like so many, you will keep coming back.

Ward's is open Monday through Saturday, 9 to 5:30, Thursdays, 9 to 8:30.

Kille, Redmond win annual road race

The 15th annual Winchester Road Race provided the official start to Town Day as local runners took to the streets in two separate races.

The 2.8-mile fun run, sponsored by the recreation department, featured the strong running of two local women.

Dennis Byrne took third place in 18:35 and was the first male finisher. He was followed by Joe Krajewski in 18:36, David Keane in 19:10 and Michael Walsh in 19:30.

Five-mile race

In the five-mile race, top honors in the men's open division went to McCall Junior High School faculty member Kevin Kille, who posted a time of 25:41.

Giuseppe Giannone was second in 27:37 and Walter Schwab third in 28:39.

Top women finishers in the open division were the mother-daughter team of Gudrun Zoega in 33:34 and Frida Zoega in 33:36. Both are former Winchester residents visiting from Iceland.

Results of other divisions in the five-mile race included:

Men 18-39: 1, Cliff Letty, 29:09. 2, T. Spang, 30:43. 3, Philip Monson, 30:53.

Injuries fail to keep Carzo from wrestling

By DAVID MOORE

Scott Carzo ran in the Boston Marathon last month along with thousands of other athletes from around the world. It is unlikely, however, that many among them ran under circumstances quite like Carzo's.

Ten months ago to the day, on a hot Aug. 21 afternoon, Carzo was bicycling near the home of relatives in Philadelphia. The Winchester native and senior at the University of Maine at Orono was putting the finishing touches on his training for a triathlon four days away.

Suddenly, a truck veered across his path and knocked him down, dragging him before coming to a stop.

The collision badly damaged bone and ligament in his right collar bone and tore knee ligament as well. After surgery, Carzo spent nearly a month in the hospital.

Now a month may not seem like the longest time to some people, but to an athlete it can last forever. And Carzo is an athlete.

As a 134-pound wrestler at Maine-Orono, Carzo compiled an 11-7 record. He was named a New England Division 1 All-Star despite missing the tournaments with a concussion.

He had been the kind of athlete who, by his own admission, "worked a little harder than the guy I wa up against, which seemed to compensate for any lack of technique."

As a senior at Winchester High School, Carzo went 15-1 in regular meets before snagging the Middlesex League crown, in addition to the Methuen Meet. He also played varsity lacrosse for three years.

And now he was stuck in a hospital bed.

Sometime during the first three weeks, a friend told him of Nick Nicholich's decision to leave his part-time position as wrestling coach at Orono.

"It was the perfect opportunity for me," syas Carzo, a physical education major who had hoped to coach someday.

He contacted assistant athletic director Woody Carville from the hospital and interviewed with him weeks later. In October, he was formally invited to coach his teammates for the 1985-86 wrestling season.

It seemed easy filling the shoes of the two-time New England Coach of the Year Nickolich. Carzo simply brought some of his own philosophy to bear upon the team.

"I like a working atmosphere, but if you can't stop and joke between falls, say , then it's just not worth it," explains Carzo.

He says he owes his philosophy, in part, to Larry Trembley, his mentor at Winchester High. It also helped to have been a Black Bear himself.

"I think the kids felt pretty free to tell me how things were going, which of course helped me coach them better."

As Carzo learned about coaching through the season, he found it offered rewards which, though different in kind than those of actual competition, still satisfied many of the same desires.

"As a coach, you share the victories, really. At the New Englands, for instance, I won three times," he says of this year's tournament.

"You're responsible for more than yourself. Your job is to convince others they are as good as you think they are. They have to realize that tough competition isn't impossible to beat.

"It's a bigger challenge, in my opinion, and I get a bigger thrill out of it."

This year Maine-Orono sent three grapplers to the legendary amateur-wrestling mecca of Iowa for the NCAA championships. Carzo's trio was among the only six wrestlers from Maine ever to compete in the nationals.

Physical recovery from the accident came slowly at first. With winter workouts, Carzo gradually improved until he go "further and further into doing demonstrations during practice," as he says.

And yet Carzo, the athlete, is still unrequited.

"I still have a lot of competitiveness in me. I wrestled for only two years and really didn't accomplish all I wanted to."

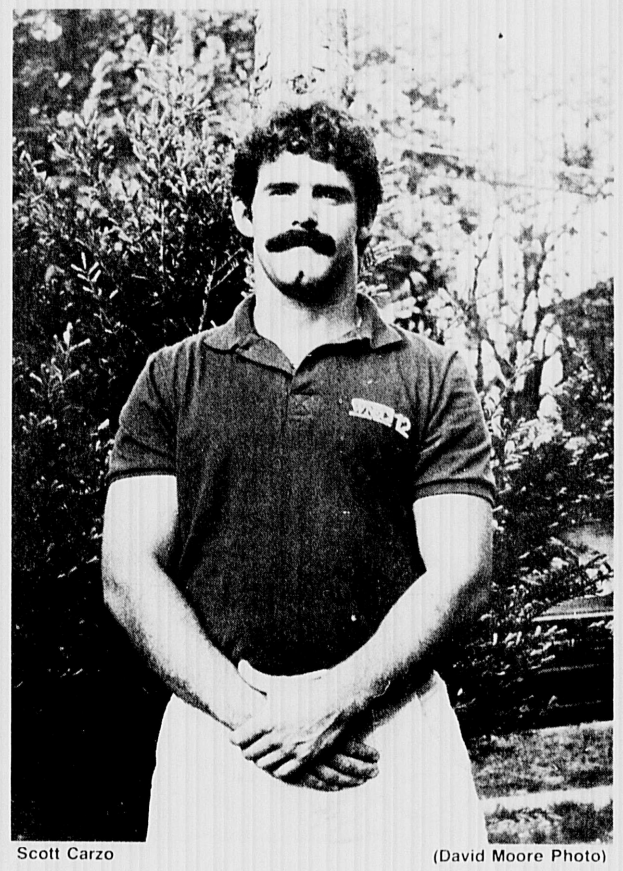

One thing he could do was run — and run he did. He ran enough to convince himself he was ready to go three rounds with the streets of Boston.

"The spectators were great," says Carzo of the Marathon. "They were cheering for everyone the whole way. When I got to certain places where they'd already been cheering for two hours, they just kept it up."

In the fall, Carzo will probably attend graduate school in physical education, though he remains unsure where he will go.

Wherever he ends up, he wants to coach.

This summer he will help out with the USA Wrestling Federation summer tournaments and, perhaps, even think about taking to the mats, once again.

Masters meet set at MIT

The fifth annual Waltham Masters and Submasters Track and Field Invitational is scheduled Saturday, June 14, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Steinbrenner outdoor track and field facility in Cambridge.

Field events for both men and women begin 9:30 a.m. and running events begin 11:30 a.m.

Field events include the long jump, high jump, shot put, discuss, and javelin. Running events include the 100-meter hurdles, the 100-, 200-, and 400-meter dashes, the 800-, 1500-, and 3000-meter runs, and a 1500-meter walk. There will also be a men's masters mile relay.

Each participant may enter up to three events.

Men will compete in the following age groups: 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, 50-54, 55-59, and 60 and over. Women will compete in age groups 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, and 60 and over.

Prizes will be awarded in each event to the top three finishers in each age category.

Registration deadline for pre-entries is Saturday, June 7. The meet is hosted by the Waltham Track Club.

For additional information, contact the Waltham Track Club, 88 Russell St., Waltham (893-3828), or call Patty Mac Hewitt at 729-7584.

Last game loss

Winchester High's varsity softball team closed its regular season with a 10-8 loss to the Tannerettes of Woburn last Wednesday at Woburn High School.

Winchester finished the season at 5-13, while Woburn's 13-5 log clinched a tournament berth.

Christopher, Dormas first in E.Mass meet

Dave Christopher won the discus and Glen Dormas placed first in the long jump as the Winchester High School boys' track team placed eighth overall at the EMass Class B Track Championships at Reading High Saturday.

Christopher won convincingly with a throw of 153-1, nearly five feet further than runner-up Bill Kane of Stoughton and eight feet further than third-place finisher Scott Pietrie of Methuen.

In the long jump, Sachem Glen Dormas stretched for 21 feet, 10.75 inches to beat out Newton South's Russ Kane by 10 inches.

Winchester also scored in the two-mile run with David McLintock's sixth-place effort of 9:42.8. In the 800-meter run, Ben Ault contributed four points with a fourth-place finish at 1:58.6.

In the girls' Class B track competition, Winchester got points from Michelle Sweeney in the 100-meter hurldes, and Laura Rutherford in the 300-meter dash.

Sweeney's effort of 15.7 seconds earned her third place, while Rutherford's 48.3 was good for sixth place.

Tennis teams edged in tourney

Boys team

Weston High School defeated Winchester High last Friday 3-2 in an exciting semifinal match of the MIAA DIvision I East tennis tournament.

The Sachems had advanced to the semi-finals by beating Concord/Carlisle 4-1 Wednesday.

Wednesday's match saw decisive victories by Joe Palumbo at second singles and the combo of Eliot Foley and Chris Aronson at second doubles.

Palumbo defeated Steve Begner 6-2, 6-1, and Foley/Aronson beat Paul Temmi and Gary Gailius 6-2, 6-3.

Hank Lynch and Chris Terpko beat Jeff Green and Jeff Blackburn 6-3, 7-5 at first singles, and Gavin Barton came from behind to beat Bill Anderson 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 at third singles.

Winchester's only loss came at first singles, where Shawn Herlihy fell to Patriot Tim Smith, 7-6, 7-5.

Against Weston Friday, Herlihy fared better, beating Max Goldberg 7-5, 6-2. In second singles, Steve Pollack won a tough contest beating Palumbo 6-2, 3-6, 6-2, while in third singles Barton fell 6-4, 7-6 in a fiercely contested tiebreaker.

Weston's first-doubles team Bill Campos and Mike Jacobs won with surprising ease 6-1, 6-3. Aronson and Foley gave Winchester its second point beating Peter Agnello and Rob Miller 6-4, 6-4.

Although there will be no state championship for the Sachems this year, they compiled a 14-2 record en route to becoming co-champions of the Middlesex League.

Girls team

Newton North's girls tennis team brought a trio of very talented singles players to sink Winchester High's hopes of meeting rival Concord-Carlisle in the finals of the MIAA Division I Tournament at Concord.

North won last Friday's semifinal match 3-2, ending another sparkling Sachemette season.

North opened up things with All-Scholastic Dianna McCarthy making short work of Karen McCall 6-1, 6-1 at first singles. In the meantime, fellow All-Scholastic Lisa Abrams made it a family affair, beating Linda McCall 6-3, 6-4 in second singles.

In third singles, Lisa Amatangel beat Sachemette Laura Tozza 6-3, 6-1.

In first doubles, Sachemettes Lulu Kermond and Kelly O'Callaghan overcame a sleepy first set to beat Laurie Katz and Liza Moore 2-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Second doubles Sachemettes Kathy Gray and Kristin Rothmann came from behind in the first set to defeat North's Marcie Plotkin and Nancy Green 7-6, 6-2.

Lexington's Arnold nips Sachems in Dust Bowl

By DAVID MOORE

The Sachem seniors may remember it as the Dust Bowl.

On a hot, windswept afternoon that raised dust across the Skillings Rd. field like a scene from "High Plains Drifter," Lexington's Eric Arnold defeated the Winchester varsity lacrosse team 7-6.

Lexington's offense was remarkably limited. Though Winchester could not be mistaken for Johns Hopkins Wednesday, coach Gene Bouley's was certainly the sharper, better poised team for most of the afternoon.

Campo and Arnold traded goals again in the second period, before high winds made for slow play at both ends of the field. The half ended 2-2.

Arnold opened the second half with another solo score from 10 feet out. Junior middie George Norwell soloed at 3:40, and senior attacker Brian Mulvaney putted in Winchester's fourth goal on a ground ball outside the crease.

Arnold scored his fourth and fifth goals early in the fourth period, before Norwell scored his second goal to tie it 5-5.

With two minutes left, Kent McCord broke down the side and put the Sachems up 6-5. Moments later, Gannon made one of many point-blank saves — this time against Arnold — only to have a Lexington middie bounce in the tying goal and send the game into overtime.

The first 2:58 of overtime belonged to the Sachems, who pummelled Lexington's goal to no avail.

The last two seconds belonged to a kid named Arnold.

Sachems at 13-5 head for tourney

By DAVID MOORE

Wichester High School's varsity baseball team came back late in last Wednesday's game against Woburn to beat the Tanners 4-2 in both teams' last game of the regular season.

Behind 2-1 at the bottom of the fifth, the Sachems began their comeback when Peter Ockerbloom walked, stole second, then moved to third on Peter Delvecchio's single.

With Ockerbloom on third and Delvecchio on second, Danny Costello cracked a high single to center field, bringing in Winchester's tying and winning runs.

Later, with T.J. DellaSala on second, pitcher Tim Budrewicz brought DellaSala home with a drive to right field.

For most of the game, however, it was a defensive battle.

Pitching a full seven innings, Budrewicz struck out eight and looked dangerously close to pitching a no-hitter before Ken O'Neil singled to right field for Woburn's only hit that afternoon.

Woburn's first-inning jump to a 2-0 lead came largely off three walks and a Sachem error.

Costello led the Sachems offensively with one hit and two RBIs.

Winchester finished its regular season at 13-5 and tied for second place in the Middlesex League with Reading High. The Sachems expect to enter MIAA Division I North competition late this week.

Physicals required for fall sports

Winchester High School athletic director William A. Colella reminds all athletes wishing to participate in fall sports at Winchester High that they must receive a physical examination dated no earlier than May 1, 1986.

Completed examination forms are to be submitted to the appropriate coach on or before the first day of practice, Monday, Aug. 25.

Babysitting Pool to meet June 13

The Winchester Babysitting Poli will meet from 1 to 3 p.m. Friday, June 13.

Any Winchester mother and her child or children are invited to learn more about cooperative babysitting. For more information, call Sharon Mastenbrook at 721-1591.

Hospital Plans Childbirth Class

Physical and emotional support for labor and delivery is the subject of the next childbirth seminar at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham from 7 to 9 p.m., Tuesday June 17.

Using a team approach, the physical support segment will teach expectant moms how to be comfortable in the labor situation and cover positions, techniques, variation and control.

The emotional support segment explores parental expectations, partner involvement, verbal and nonverbal emotional support, and problem prevention.

The physical support half of the seminar will be led by Georgianna K. Sozanski, RN, of Topsfield, who is a Lamaze expert. She also teaches nursing fundamentals at Bay Community College in Wellesley.

The emotional support portion will be led by Fredda Simon Gordon of Newton, a registered occupational therapist. She is also a teacher and lecturer on childbirth education for McLean Hospital.

For more information on the labor and delivery support seminar, call Pam Dawson at New England Memorial Hospital -- 665-1740, ext. 460.

Jackson crafts in Wakefield festival

Crafts of Winchester resident Dorothy Jackson will be among the displays at the Wakefield Festival By The Lake, scheduled Saturday, June 14.

The festival is sponsored by the Wakefield Center Neighborhood Association, a non-profit group.

Michael M. Blackwood, right, of Winchester receives his bachelor's degree from Peter H. Armacost, president of Eckerd College.

Blackwood gets Eckerd degree

Michael M. Blackwood, son of Rueben and Etta Blackwood of Winchester, graduated May 25 from Eckerd College, St. Petersburg, Fla.

A graduate of Winchester High, Blackwood earned a bachelor of arts degree in human resources and a minor in management.

Eckerd College is a four-year liberal arts college related to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

Johnson named to Phi Beta Kappa

Erik S. Johnson of 6 Berkshire Dr., Winchester, a graduating senior at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine, has been nominated for membership in Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary fraternity for recognition and promotion of scholarship.

A graduate of Winchester High School, Johnson majored in history and Russian language and literature.

Election to Phi Beta Kappa is based upon scholarly achievement and sustained intellectual performance during a student's career at Bowdoin, college officials said.

Willing earns Tennessee degree

James Willing of Winchester is among more than 600 students scheduled to receive degrees June 12 at the University of Tennessee at Martin.

Augerson gets Bowdoin degree

Christopher Charles Augerson of 37 Pilgrim Dr. was awarded a bachelor of arts degree May 24 at Bowdoin College's 181st commencement exercises.

Augerson is a graduate of Northwood High School in Silver Spring, Md.

Johnson gets Bowdoin degree

Erik Smalley Johnson of 6 Berkshire Dr. was awarded a bachelor of arts degree Saturday at Bowdoin College's 181st commencement exercises.

He received high honors in history and was graduated magna cum laude.

Johnson was recently nominated for membership in Phi Beta Kappa national honor fraternity for the recognition and promotion of scholarship.

A graduate of Winchester High School, Johnson held a double major in history and Russian language and literature at Bowdoin, and was a high honors and dean's list student.

Johnson was named a James Bowdoin Scholar, an award given in recognition of outstanding academic achievement.

He participated in study away programs in Yugoslavia and Leningrad.

Johnson was a member of Struggle and Change, a student political organization which raises societal issues on campus and publishes the alternative newspaper, To the Root. He was also a member of the International Club.

Johnson was a member of Delta Sigma fraternity and served as its intramural sports officer.

Garvey graduates at BC High School

John M. Garvey of Winchester High School was among 289 graduates of Boston College High School to receive diplomas May 25.

The Rev. J. Donald Monan, S.J., president of Boston College, was the main commencement speaker.

ABOUT TOWN

Worthen is BC graduate

William Anthony Worthen, son of Erna and Lawrence Worthen of 15 Hancock st. was awarded a bachelor of arts degree in economics at the 110th commencement of Boston College May 19.

His undergraduate activities included membership in the Gold Key Society, Boston College Marching Band, and Boston College Pep Band.

Worthen is a 1982 graduate of Winchester High School. He will begin employment with the Union Warren Savings Bank in Boston.

Maximilian's Adds Chefs

Maximilian's Cafe Inc. of Winchester had added Gary Graziano and Anthony Debello to its staff. Graziano and Debello are graduates of Johnson and Wales Culinary Institute, one of the most prestigious culinary schools in the United States.

Graziano, the new kitchen manager at Maximilian's has experience from the "five-star" restaurant Boca Raton Hotel and Beach Club and the "four-star" Down Under Restaurant, both in Florida. He was most recently employed by Barrett's Family Restaurants as manager for Barrett's on Boston Harbor.

Debello, assistant kitchen manager at Maximilian's has extensive experience in preparation of gourmet Italian food in the North End's Robertos and Valentinos. He most recently has been employed as head chef for the dining services at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

State Sons of Italy honor First Lady Peggy Perenick

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Order Sons of Italy, honored its State First Lady, Peggy Perenick of Winchester, Friday evening, May 9, at the Watertown Sons of Italy Lodge Home. The hall was filled to capacity with over 400 in attendance, a beautiful tribute to the Massachusetts First Lady.

Guests from Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire started the evening with champagne and an assortment of cheese and crackers.

State Second Vice President Gloria Ferullo of Winthrop was the chairman and toastmaster of the evening. As she announced the honored guest, a long applause greeted the Massachusetts First Family, State President Charles Perenick and children.

Various presentations and gifts were made to the honoree. Mrs. Angelo Furnari, wife of the State First Vice President, presented the First Lady with a large bouquet of pink roses. The president of the Winchester Women's Lodge, Mrs. David Adamkowski, presented a gift on behalf of the members.

Mrs. Perenick's former Itam lodge paid tribute to its charter member with a framed painting of the Itam Lodge Home in Pittsfield.

Mrs. Area Sidebotham, past president of the Women's Republican Club of Winchester, presented a bouquet of red roses.

A citation from the House of Representatives was read and presented to her from State Rep. Bill Robinson of Melrose.

On behalf of his brothers and sisters, Charles Perenick Jr. was called upon for remarks and read a "Mother's Day Poem" and presented her a portrait of her four children. Young Andrew gave his mother a basket of fresh spring flowers.

President Charles Perenick was introduced and his remarks were warm and complimentary of his first lady. His final remarks were gratitude to all and he presented his wife with a personal gift.

Chairman Gloria Ferullo made a final presentation from all the members of the state. In accepting the gift, the First Lady expressed "sincere gratitude and heartfelt thanks."

Kraus to seek third term as Winchester's state senator

State Senator Richard Kraus (D-4th Middlesex) announced May 30 that he would seek a third term in the Massachusetts State Senate. The announcement took place at a campaign kick-off party in Arlington attended by 125 supporters.

Noting "the rapidly increasing importance of state government in affecting the quality of life for Massachusetts citizens," Kraus pointed to "accomplishments, committee and special commission appointments, and future goals which place him on the cutting edge of the key issues facing Massachusetts and the district." The 4th Middlesex Senatorial district encompasses Arlington, Lexington, Winchester and Woburn.

"State government has never been more important. With the revenue limits of Proposition 2½ our cities and towns would not be making it in Massachusetts, were it not for local aid from the state," said Kraus.

"Because of current and future reductions in federal domestic spending, and the almost certain elimination of federal revenue sharing, state government already plays or soon will play a far more important role than the federal government in such areas as education, law enforcement, housing, environmental protection, and social welfare," Kraus stated.

Kraus noted that his committee and special commission assignments place him "at the heart of the commonwealth's most pressing issues."

State Sen. Richard Kraus, right, began his campaign for a third term with a party May 30 in Arlington. Kraus spent the time talking with Stephen Shestakofs and other supporters. (Wes Schmale Photo)

As co-chair of the special commission on Local Aid, Kraus has begun work to equalize local aid distribution among cities and towns and to ensure rational consistent distribution that enables cities and towns to effectively include local aid in their budget and planning.

As vice-chair of the Education Committee, Kraus was instrumental in shaping and passing the 1985 Education Reform Act. "The act emphasized local control and initiative while providing incentives and funding for educational achievement, including Educational Opportunity Grants which supplement existing school budgets allowing enriched program and course offerings," Kraus said.

As chairman of the Senate Committee on Ethics in Government, he got legislation through the Senate which enabled the State Ethics Commission to resume its watchdog work, after being temporarily stopped by a court decision. "As state government becomes more important in our lives, it is increasingly urgent that we take prudent steps to ensure honesty and propriety among our legislators and employees," Kraus said.

A participant in the State Advisory Committee on Family Day Care, Kraus recognizes that quality day care is a necessity for most families. Kraus inserted language in the fiscal 1986 budget which mandated inspections of all family day care centers before January 1987. This mandate gives the state a more visible and active role in ensuring quality standards for home based day care, he said.

Kraus is "committed to finding ways to reduce the heavy reliance on property tax to raise revenues in Massachusetts," and is a member of the Special Commission on Tax Reform.

Kraus addressed two goals for the future; a "real" state tax cap and even greater efforts to create affordable housing. "The Taxachusetts Vampire is now dead," stated Kraus. "The state and local revenue burden as a portion of personal income is 14 percent below the national average, giving Massachusetts the 10th lightest revenue burden in the country.

"I believe Massachusetts currently has the size government it needs and its citizens want, and I will seek a tax cap that neither shrinks nor expands the size of government, but that caps its current size, relative to the private economy, into place."

But Kraus warned against tax cuts hiding under the guise of tax caps. "The Citizens for Limited Taxation's tax cap is really a massive tax cut, which will considerably shrink the size of Massachusetts government at the same time federal dollars stop coming into the state," he warned. "This is a recipe for disaster."

Finally, Kraus focused on the current housing crisis in Massachusetts. "If you don't already own a house, are young and just starting out, are poor, or are a family earning between $18,000 and $30,000, then housing is prohibitively expensive and home ownership is of out reach," stated Kraus.

He called the housing crisis a problem that "cuts across a strata of incomes," and warned that if housing costs continued to rise at the current rate (homeowners in the Greater Boston area pay 41 percent more than the national average, and costs have increased over 30 percent in the last year), "it will begin to adversely effect economic growth.

"The only solution is to build more housing for low and moderate income families," according to Kraus, "and this should help reduce the intense competition for housing which is driving up prices. In effect, we would hope to create a trickle up effect."

Kraus is opposed in 1986 by Helen Metros of Arlington, who is running as an independent.

SCHOOL

Belmont Hill summer class set

Belmont Hill's coeducational summer school will run June 23 to Aug 1. Despite continued growth, the school maintains an emphasis on individualized attention and limited class size.

Traditional academic offerings again include all levels of math and English, beginning and advanced level French, Spanish and Latin, courses in both U.S. and European history, and high school level work in chemistry, biology and physics.

In response to a continuing need, SAT preparation is offered, as is the popular study skills. Typing will again be among the most popular offerings.

Other courses include psychology, speech and debate, jazz dance and a new word processing and computer usage course.

Tennis instruction and competition on four all-weather indoor courts is also available, a highlight for many. Individual squash instruction is new in 1986.

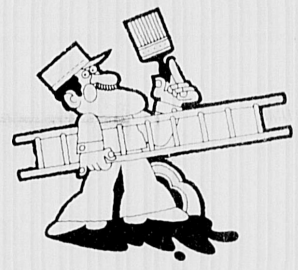

Classes open to students entering the sixth through the 12th grades meet five days a week between 8:15 a.m. and 1:20 p.m.

Local firm changes hand

Metallized Products of Winchester has announced a change in ownership. Ronald F. Caterino has acquired the firm from Household International, Inc.

Caterino has been president of Metallized Products since 1971 and will continue to act as president and chief executive officer.

Long associated with the space program, Metallized Products has been a pioneer in adapting sophisticated vacuum metalizing, coating and laminating technologies to numerous consumer and industrial applications.

The re-structuring of the company, with existing personnel, is designed to react to customer needs and changing market conditions with improved efficiency, Caterino said.

OBITUARIES

Rachael Armstrong

Rachael Armstrong, 61, formerly of Winchester, died May 29 at Huggins Hospital in Wolfeboro, N.H.

Born in Winchester, Miss Armstrong was a resident of Wolfeboro, N.H.

She was the daughter of Russell B. and Blanche P. Armstrong.

She graduated from Bradford Junior College and Katherine Gibbs.

Miss Armstrong was associated with Filene's in Boston for several years. She was a manager of several branch stores and also a buyer and divisional manager at the Boston store.

Prior to this she was a partner in her own retailing business in Schenectady, N.Y.

Among her survivors are: brother, Col. Russell B. Armstrong, United States Army (retired) of Wolfeboro; Dudley H. Bradlee of Winchester; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Janet M. Armstrong of Wolfeboro, N.H.; two nephews, Commander Douglas M. Armstrong, United States Army, of Virginia Beach; Dr. Charles S. Armstrong, lieutenant United States Navy, of Whidbey Island, Wash.; two nieces, Ms. Margaret Loring Bradlee of Danvers; and Mrs. Rebecca Havekost of Seattle, Wash.

Burial will be at Wildwood Cemetery at a later date. Arrangements were made by Baker Memorial Chapel in Wolfeboro, N.H.

Memorial donations may be made to Huggins Hospital, Wolfeboro, N.H. 03894.

Marilyn Wallwork

Marilyn E. Wallwork, 62, the wife of the late Philip C. Wallwork, passed away May 26 at the Lahey Clinic Hospital in Burlington.

She had been a Winchester resident for the past 25 years and was employed as a clerical supervisor for the Peerless Insurance Co.

She is survived by a son, Gregory C. Wallwork of Wrentham, a daughter, Lesslie A. Wallwork of Winchester, and a sister, Donna A. Wheeler of Ashland, Wis.

Graveside services were conducted Thursday, May 29, at Wildwood Cemetery with the Rev. John J. Bishop of the Church of The Epiphany officiating.

Memorial donations may be sent to the Jenks Center, 10 Skillings Rd., Winchester 01890.

Rose Walsh

Rose Walsh, 85, of Woburn, society editor of The Boston Herald American and Sunday Herald Advertiser, died May 30 at Aberjona Nursing Home after a long illness.

She was a native of Woburn. She was the daughter of the late Richard F. and Delia (Murphy) Walsh.

Miss Walsh attended the St. Charles School, a Catholic school for girls run by Notre Dame nuns. After finishing school she went to work as secretary to the Sunday editor of the Boston Post.

In 1975, Miss Walsh was honored with a luncheon at the Brae Burn Country Club in Newton, given by representatives of 40 New England charitable and community organizations whose affairs she had regularly covered.

In the spring of 1982, she was honored with a dinner at the Copley Plaza where she was named "Grande Dame of Boston." She served as vice president of the Society of American Social Scribes.

Among her survivors are: two sisters, Mary Bonelli of Brighton and Christine M. Walsh of Woburn; three nephews; three nieces; six grandnephews; and four grand-nieces.

A funeral was held June 3 from the Lynch-Cantillon Funeral Home in Woburn with a funeral mass at St. Anthony's Church. Burial was at Calvary Cemetery in Woburn.

Memorial donations may be made to the Carroll Center for the Blind, Rose Walsh Fund, 770 Centre St., Newton 02158.

Robert L. Welch

Robert L. Welch, 54, formerly of Winchester, died May 31 at his home in Portsmouth, R.I., after a long illness.

He was the husband of Mary E. McAuliffe.

Born in Winchester, Mr. Welch was a resident for 25 years before moving to Woburn and Stoneham. He lived in Portsmouth, R.I., for five years.

Mr. Welch graduated from Winchester High School in 1950. He was a United States veteran of the Korean War.

He was an electrician for the Charlestown Navy Yard for 23 years and a marine electrician for the last five years for the United States government in Rhode Island.

Mr. Welch was a member of the Knights of Columbus in Winchester, No. 210.

Among his survivors are: two sons, Lawrence Welch of West Roxbury and Robert Welch of Dover, N.H.; a daughter, Mary Welch of Portsmouth, R.I.; a grandson, Adam M. Welch; two brothers, Irwin Welch of Neponset and Frank X. Welch of Lawrence; and sister Marilyn L. Welch.

Funeral services were held June 4 from the Lane Funeral Home followed by a funeral mass at Immaculate Conception Church. Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery.

LIBRARY NOTES

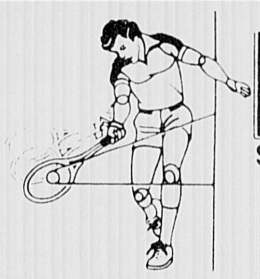

Dinomite Dinosummer

Children's Librarian Heidi Zeibig has big plans for this summer at the Winchester Junior Library.

She and librarians Joan Barron and Robin Elbot have lined up a series of drop-in storytimes (including four "Pajama Storytimes"), bookmaking and crafts workshops, puppets, a storyteller, and a day of "Dino Movies" in addition to the summer reading program "Dinomite Dinosummer."

Advance sign-up is required for the bookmaking workshops, planned for children entering grades 3-6, and for "Design-a-saurus" sessions with Nadine Suhrbier, for children entering grades 2-6.

Sign-up for these events will begin June 27.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Brass quintet concert set June 15 on library lawn

Music for a brass quintet will be performed at the Winchester Public Library at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 15, as part of the library's continuing "Music at the Library" series of concerts

The quintet, under the auspices of the Lyra Chamber Players, consists of David Bannard, a teacher in the Winchester Music Program, and John Mahoney on trumpet, Mary Ashley on horn, Robert Couture on trombone, and Robert Searle on the tuba. All the players are professional free lance musicians and are affiliated with groups such as the Boston Pops, the Boston Ballet and the Opera Company of Boston.

The concert will feature several upbeat musical styles, and will spotlight works by J. S. Bach, Leonard Bernstein, Fats Waller, Giovanni Gabrielli, and Lennon and McCartney, among others.

Weather permitting, the concert will be held on the library lawn. In case of rain, it will be in the reference room. The program is free and everyone is welcome.

Treble Chorus to open new season

Winchester will be represented by three singers when the Treble Chorus of New England performs in concert from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday, June 8, at St. Teresa's Church in North Reading.

Performing with the chorus will be Margaret Behnke and Megan Brady, sixth graders at Lincoln School, and Mike Callahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Callahan.

The professional classically trained choir of 60 children and teenagers from 14 towns is fresh from a successful engagement with Merrimack Lyric Opera Company's production of "La Boheme" last weekend.

Sunday's comcert will be free and more information about the chorus will also be available then. Information is also available from 944-1876.

Arnott will direct Tufts production

Peter Arnott of Winchester, a member of the Tufts University drama department since 1969, will direct "Arms and the Man" by Bernard Shaw this month.

The play will be staged at 8 p.m. June 18-21 and June 25-28 with one matinee at 2 p.m. June 28 at the Tufts Arena Theater.

The "Two By Fours" choral group will perform at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, June 12, at Epiphany Church's cloister garden, 70 Church St., to open the summer cloister garden series. Several choristers, including Tom Worthen of Winchester, go back 30 years and bring back memories with sophisticated arrangements of tunes from the 1940s to the present. The group is composed of business and professional men. One member, Jack Gilbert, was a jazz pianist with Tommy Dorsey and will play an interlude of old favorites. The public is invited to the June 12 concert. Tickets are available at the church office and will be sold at the door. In case of rain, the concert will be in Hadley Hall.

McLean honors local employees

Two Winchester residents were among those honored at an award ceremony and reception at McLean Hospital in Belmont last week.

Employees assembled at the hospital's Samuel Eliot Memorial Chapel, where 179 McLean employees representing 1,650 years of combined service were feted. Dr. Francis de Marneffe, general director of McLean, gave a congratulatory address, honoring "the many dedicated employees who have been an integral part of the hospital's history." This year marks the 175th anniversary of McLean Hospital.

The two Winchester residents were Leslie A. Diller, who was recognized for 10 years of service, and Walter L. Johnson, who was recognized for 5 years of service.

PMS group to meet June 19

The Eastern Middlesex PMS (premenstrual syndrome) support group will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, June 19, at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham.

The support group will be headed by Lauria Nugent, a nurse practitioner working with Dr. Richard McDowell, a NEMH obstetrician and gynecologist. Women who share the problem of PMS are invited.

For additional information, contact the Health Education office at NEMH, 665-1740, ext. 426.

What To Visit

Winchester

Pockets of splendor in an area born of glaciers,

The Winchester Woodlands, several pockets of splendor snuggled throughout this suburban town north of Boston, offer accessible adventure and tranquil trails for nature-lovers of all ages.

The physical history of the town of Winchester provides an interesting backdrop for potential trailblazers.

Geologists believe that long before the glaciers, the White Mountains towered to spectacular 15,000 foot heights and that the drainage from such lofty peaks carved this impressive valley through the 400,000,000 year old granite bedrock that now flanks the eastern and western portions of Winchester.

Then the glaciers vastly altered this giant river valley. The Aberjona River and the Mystic Lakes are all that remain of this once mighty system.

The river left its flattened flood plains and fertile valley for the agriculture-wise Indians.

The glacier left a generous supply of kettle ponds in the Winchester area (causing it to be called Waterfield at an earlier time) and rounded the river bank granite ridges, fluting them with striae which run from north to south as the glacier traveled.

Water power from the Aberjona was first used to run grist mills and forges which processed Winchester's own bog iron.

Later, water power supported a huge tanning industry, and the flatlands supported prosperous market garden farms.

On both west and east river banks stone walls in the woodlands attest to the farm and pasture uses of the hillside lands in colonial times.

The Indian habit of burning the underbrush each year to encourage the growth of blueberries (to entice bears) and of "fire grass" (to entice the deer) make us suspect that the wooded areas appeared more open in the past.

On the east side of this six square mile town, before the Fells were set aside under the MDC administration, cranberry bogs filled the hollows where now the reservoirs stand.

Underbrush and trees have obscured impressive views of the Boston Basin as seen in the 1930s.

The Long Pond Nature Trail is a one mile portion of the public hiking trails within the 3,000 acre Middlesex Fells Reservation.

The Fells, a hilly and rocky woodland, was first set aside for the public in 1894 and is now administered for the state by the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC).

Most of the Middlesex Fells is open to the public for hiking, riding, or cross-country skiing.

Around 1970, members of Winchester Trails, assisted by members of the Winchester School Department, selected the Long Pond section of the Fells as a good place to take school children for nature walks.

They mapped a trail and prepared literature for the public so that this could be a self-guiding nature trail.

Starting at the parking lot off South Border rd., the trail crosses a meadow, borders a pine forest, runs through a deciduous forest along the edge of Long Pond, and finally skirts a marsh before ending at Hillcrest pkwy.

Walking is easy, but many other paths cross the nature trail. It is helpful to use the map in the pamphlet, Guide to Long Pond Nature Trail available at Book Ends on Winchester Terrace as well as from the Town Engineer's Office.

The Skyline Trail (marked by white dots) circles around the whole area and literally covers the high spots; some of the paths are narrow and rocky, too steep for skiing, but great for blueberries.

The central portion of the Middlesex Fells, west of route 93, surrounds the Winchester Reservoirs and is not open to the public; the borders of this area are marked on the map.

Two rustic bridges enhance Davidson Park.

Throughout the Park the Aberjona River has been dredged and the banks rip-rapped to impede erosion, increase the flow and slow the growth of swamp plants.

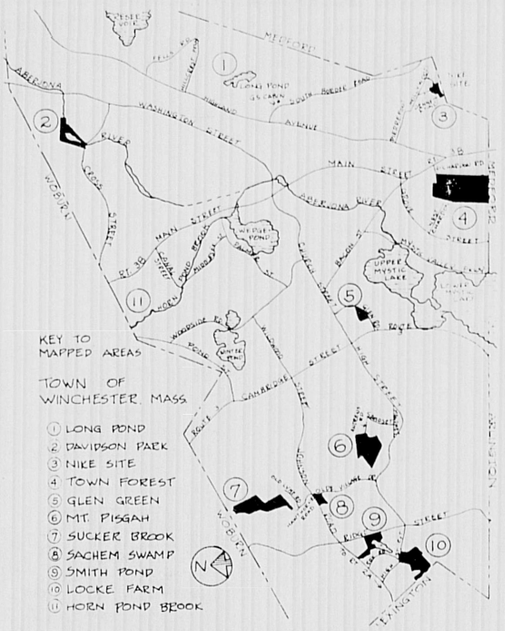

Where once the Park had a marshy appearance with cattails prevailing, now cattails are rarely seen and purple loosestrife is the most prominent swamp plant at the stream edges.

Plantings of willows, sugar maples, Japanese cherries and the stately oaks that rise behind the Winn Factory on the western hill enhance the sweep of well kept lawns and the bike path enjoyed by the local residents.

The corner of the Middlesex Fells known as the Nike Site is a favorite place for bird watching and nature walks.

Extensive fields merge into woods and woods into marsh. In the spring, wood anemone, trillium, jack-in-the-pulpit and other spring wildflowers of the woodlands are highlights of the Nike Site, while in the summer and fall, goldenrod, asters, and milkweed cover the fields.

Located near the southeastern corner of Winchester, the Nike Site may be entered from the park land at Dennett Road and Southfield rd. or from South Border rd. at the Whitmore Brook rd. entrance or from Town Way.

Whitmore Brook rd. (often very wet) runs through the middle of the mapped area.

A brook, marsh and woods lie on the Winchester side of Whitmore Brook rd., while on the Medford side of the road are the fields that were the site of the old Nike missile base during the 1950s.

Paved roads and other paved areas still exist in the fields of the Nike Site.

Be sure to search for the remains fo the old basketball court and bathhouse to see how nature is reclaiming the land. Delicate new milkweek shoots can push right up through the middle of asphalt, making openings for other plants.

This area is a wonderful example of field succession - field plants have replaced short grasses and are themselves being replaced by vines, shrubs, and sun-loving pioneer trees such as sumac, graybirch and cherry.

The Brooks-Parkhurst Town Forest consists of 28 acres of wooded terrain, almost completely surrounded by houses in Winchester, but to the south bordered by Medford open space and the Oak Grove cemetery.

Access to the forest at present is from Ox Pasture and West Chardon Road.

The Town Forest was part of the land granted to the Brooks family by Charles I of England in the seventeenth century.

After being in the Brooks Family for about 300 years, most of the forest was acquired for the Town by a group of citizens including Richard Parkhurst who is still a neighbor.

There are reminders of the history of the area: the granite blocks in the stream bed were part of the Middlesex Canal, and some of them were used in the Brooks house foundation.

Trees that predominate are oaks and pines. The hemlocks are some of the largest in eastern Masachusetts.

An occasional really large tree with outspread branches grew that way because smaller trees and brush were cleared away when this was a managed forest.

Now the newer trees have to grow straight up as they compete with each other for the light.

The woodland flowers — lady's slipper, anemone, Canada mayflower — bloom early before the tree leaves cut off the sun. Ferns and mosses mark the marsh and seasonal brook. Most paths provide relatively easy walking.

The most primitive plants are the horsetails — north culvert and along the brook.

Cattails, tussock sedge, sensitive fern, jewelweed, buttercups, purple loosestrife and other sedges attest that this is a wetland habitat.

On higher ground willows, sumacs, milkweed, goldenrod and asters add their color and special delight each at its own season.

The predominant plant on the eastern side of the small brook is the blackberry whose fine protection the rabbits of the Green enjoy.

Mt. Pisgah, also called Andrews Hill, formed part of the west bank of the great river that flowed through Winchester before the glaciers.

The stone walls and cedars suggest that this land was used as pasture in the early days of Winchester.

In 1903 the town acquired the land and built a water standpipe on top of the hill to provide water for the west side of the town.

The old tower now on top of the hill was built in 1912 and abandoned when the town joined the MDC water system in 1945.

Today Mt. Pisgah includes 11 acres of open woods suitable for hiking and nature study.

Notice the difference between the plants and trees on the slope and on the hilltop.

Oaks and pitch pines, very tall at the bottom of the hill, become stunted on the summit. Woodland flowers, such as Solomon's seal and partridge berry, give way to field flowers on the drier, sunnier hilltop.

Mt. Pisgah is a good place to study the effect of glaciers and weathering on the granite bedrock of Winchester and to observe the growth of plants on rocks.

For example, beyond the tower is an interesting, weathered granite ledge with glacial striae and with a two foot, dark granite dike.

Watch also for the many kinds of lichens and mosses, both on top of the hill and along the path up the hill.

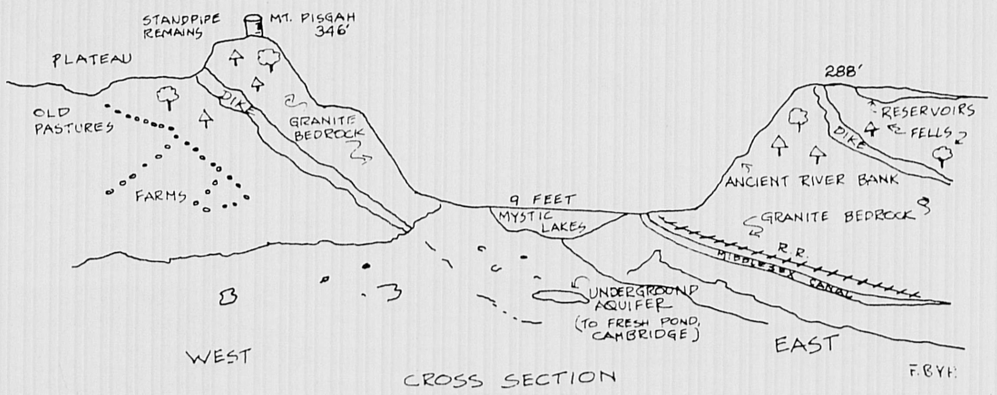

Sachem Swamp, named after Squaw Sachem, the Indian leader who once owned much of Winchester, was purchased by the Conservation Commission in 1975.

Although walking is hazardous in the swamp, the red maple, birches and ferns typical of many New England swamps may be glimpsed from Johnson Road.

The part of the land next to Olde Village Drive is drier and over the years should provide an excellent example of how fields in New England tend to develop into woodland if left undisturbed.

(See Page 4)

(From Page 3)

Sucker Brook, which was acquired by the Conservation Commission from 1969 to 1971, contains about 10 acres of swamp and woods.

It is bordered by large tracts of private woodland that are being developed for housing.

The southern part of the land is mainly swamp, with vegetation typical of wooded swamps, such as clethra, high bush blueberries, ferns, skunk cabbage and red maples.

Sucker Brook itself flows out of the swamp and, after leaving town land, drops over a waterfall, winds through the woods and eventually drains into Horn Pond.

Providing a sharp contrast to the swamp, the land to the north is a rocky wooded hill that drops sharply toward Woburn.

Smith Pond, formed by glaciers, had dried up over the centuries and become farmland in 1910. Smith dammed the stream and turned it back into a pond.

Today the pond is gradually getting smaller as marsh plants, such as cattails, turn the pond into a marsh.

Because Smith Pond Conservation Area provides a brook, pond, marsh and forest habitats in just six acres, it is an excellent illustration of how land gradually changes from pond to marsh to forest (pond succession) and the studying of the plants and animals within each community.

Locke Farm, acquired as conservation land in 1972, is a 10-acre woodland, marsh and swamp on the western edge of Winchester next to the 120-acre Whipple Hill conservation area in Lexington.

The name is a reminder that much of this part of Winchester was farmed for over 100 years by the Locke family, who bought the land around 1800. As on most old farmland, stone walls and old fruit trees can be found in the woods of Locke Farm.

The trail borders a marsh that merges into a wooded swamp. Because the edge of the marsh and swamp is open, the plants, birds and animals can be observed more easily here than in many swamps.

In the woods behind the swamp, large areas of the ground are carpeted with clubmosses, ferns and Canada mayflower. The trail ends with a boardwalk through a wet meadow.

The Horn Pond Brook area has been left to its own devices for many years making possible a most interesting diversity of native plants all along its course, willows, alders, cattails, rushes, arrowhead, purple loosestrife, pokeweed, Joe-pye-weed, buckthorn, sugarmaples, large oaks and box elders, to mention a few.

The Horn Pond Brook area also has two paved paths.

The first path descends from Brantwood rd. at the hillcrest between impressively tall pine groves and further down between exposed bedrock ledges etched by glacial grooves (Striae).

Mosses and lichens are at home here.

The junction of Horn Pond Brooks rd., Canal st., Sylvester ave. and Middlesex st. marks the middle of the second path, also a bikeway.

Entering at Horn Pond Brook rd., you may stroll along the paved bicycle path as far south as Lake st. Here one may observe the wonderful variety of wetland plants. Dense undergrowth and blackberry briars cover the large area between the brook and Middlesex st.

The junction of these paths and roads were once busy locks. (Hollis Lock) and a passing pond of the old Middlesex Canal. (1793-1853).

The pond was known to local skinny dippers as "Little Deep."

Also here was a sluice gate to let Horn Pond Brook water flow into the Middlesex Canal as an auxiliary source of water. The main water source for the canal was the Concord River in Billerica.

On Upland rd. was a horse changing station and a granite post north of Canal st. was said to have been used for tying up canal boats.

Granite blocks on Sylvester ave. bridge abutments are believed to have been taken from the old locks.

Houses on the West side of Middlesex st. as far as Horn Pond Brook are in the bed of the old Middlesex Canal. The Canal bed then continues in the back yards of the houses on Sylvester ave.

At the end of Sylvester ave. the paved bike path is a pretty walk along the brook and through new birches and thence an open field to Horn Pond, with the Middlesex Canal to the right.

Additional information may be obtained through the Winchester Conservation Commission and Winchester Town Hall. Related publications are available at Brook Ends on Winchester Terrace.

Review:

Dario Fo is a truly funny man. With celebrity status throughout Europe for his epic clowning style that combines art and politics, it is only now (far too belatedly) that local audiences were fortunate enough to witness the debut of his internationally acclaimed signature piece, Master Buffo (A Mystery Comedy), as part of the American Repertory Theatre New Stages series.

Fo is a middle-aged man, earthy, with a craggy face, a thousand phonetic sounds and inflections in his voice, wildly expressive hands rivaling those of Marcel Marceau, and supple body movement brimming with a flexibility and agility that would make many a younger man green with envy. Despite his paunchy build, he literally bounces around the stage with bubbling buoyancy. But most of all, Fo is a unique and extraordinarily talented artist.

If he is not talking in his native tongue (his Italian belches forth like an erupting volcano), he is spewing forth in a rapid-fire speech pattern, Grammelot, a melange of sounds, utterings, gibberish and mumbo-jumbo invented by Fo that adopts specific foreign dialects that sound authentic but, in reality, mean nothing. With a twinkle in his eye and the devil in his soul, Fo cannot resist injecting slurred four-letter words here and there just to spice up the evening's festivities.

An on-stage English-speaking actor, in this case an engaging young man named Ron Jenkins, translates the prologues and introduces each part of the four performed texts. Since English subtitles are also flashed on to a screen during the performed text, understanding the language is unnecessary and little is missed in translation.

Fo warms up the audience by joshing about the American concept of the Italian — waiters, with long black hair, long sideburns, and black mustaches.

"All children are born with black mustaches!" he jibes. "They are also born with a special muscular construction on the back of their necks that allows their heads to look one way while their eyes look the other way. In this manner, they're able to look at fifteen women in one glance!"

He notes that capitalists and banks were invented in Venice and Genoa, and then goes on to castigate capitalism, bankers and various practices of the political system.

In the first text, he relates how a farmer of the famine-ravaged Po Valley, migrates to the streets of Venice and becomes Zanni, a street player and mime. He draws analogies to current events, like the nuclear explosion in Chernobyl, while he engages in an utterly hilarious takeoff of the starving peasant who first dreams that he is devouring his own body, organ by organ, then hallucinates about a gluttonous feast (uproarious segment), only to awaken and devour a plump fly, wing by wing.

He moves to France during the time of Moliere and Scapino and the origins of commedia delle'arte, with sacriligious jibes at the clergy ("The Jesuits were expert at banking and politics!") and at censorship, and the problems male nobility experienced with the costume of the day: wetting their pants before they could wade through the yards of lace. Fo even tosses in a riotous minuet for good measure.

Later he assumes multiple roles as an English barrister defends a Monk accused of raping a peasant woman, topped off by a hysterical madrigal.

And, for a finale, he zeros in on true mystery plays, a satire on people who profit through religion. He opens with the tale of an English monarch who, having no patron saint, arranges to purchase St. George (and the dragon) from the Genoese. Then, in a savagely funny piece, he attacks commercialism in religion as he relates his version of the resurrection of Lazarus, making it the ultimate media event of all time!

While careful to note that all these happenings took place centuries ago, Fo enjoys retelling the opposition to the 12th century Pope, Boniface III, by Dante and a sect of monks, the Spirituals, whom he had hung by their tongues. He then makes comment on the current attack on the Pope by a Turk and the "stupid Bulgarians" that aided him, also making merry with the Pope's stately garb and tossing in a Gregorian chant by a group of alter boys, one of whom is stone deaf.

It is impossible to do justice to Fo's performance, in the tradition of the giullari, the medieval jesters who performed up and down the Italian peninsula, and the immediate rapport he develops with this audience. Should he return next season, and there is a strong possibility that he may, don't miss him!

Nickerson Plans New Season

J. Arnold Nickerson has announced a series of seven plays, including two musicals, for the 1986-87 season, thus launching his second year-round operation at the Nickerson Theatre.

Currently concluding the spring season is The Rainmaker, a romantic comedy by N. Richard Nash, which runs through June 14.

The summer season at Norwell's professional theatre company will open on July 18 with the lively musical, Tintypes, conceived by Mary Kyte with Mel Marvin and Gary Pearle, continuing through August 30. The extended summer schedule includes eight additional performances of the musical to accomodate the demand for tickets.

The new season will include the following shows: Spider's Web, Sept. 5 to Oct. 11, an Agatha Christie whodunit with more than her usual share of surprising twists and misleading clues; Tribute, Oct. 17 to Nov. 22, a touching comedy by Bernard Slade, author of the Broadway hit, Same Time Next Year; Billy Bishop Goes To War, Jan. 2 to Feb. 7, 1987, a musical drama by John Gray with Eric Peterson about a remarkable man engaged in high adventure; Barefoot in the Park, Feb. 13 to March 21, one of Neil Simon's funniest and most successful comedies, and one of the most popular hits of our time; 84 Charing Cross Road, March 27 to May 2, adapted by James Roose-Evans from the book by Helene Hanff, is based on a true story of the correspondence between a New York writer and a London bookseller; Greater Tuna, May 8 to June 13, the long running off Broadway and Boston hit by Jaston Williams, Joe Sears and Ed Howard, comes to Norwell with all 20 characters from the tiny fictional town of Tuna, Texas.

The Christmas production, to be announced, will again be presented for three weeks during December, and is not included in the regualar subscription series.

New subscribers have until June 15 to select from either a seven-play series, which includes the summer musical, or a six-play series. Subscriber benefits include considerable savings over regular box office prices; preferred seating and the opportunity to exchange tickets for other performances. A detailed brochure on the new season may be obtained by calling or writing the Nickerson Theatre, 30 Accord Park dr., P.O. Box 272, Accord (Norwell), Mass., 02018, 871-2400. The theatre is conveniently located just off the Southeast Expressway, Route 3, exit 14 in Accord Park, Norwell.

Great Woods Center Announces First Season

The Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts will launch its first season on June 13, and will present diverse programming—ranging from popular, classical, jazz, and folk music to ballet—in the season which will run until mid-September.

The 15,000 seat ampitheatre will seat 7,000 in fixed seats under the roof, and 8,000 patrons on the lawn.

Located in Mansfield, MA, Great Woods is less than a 40-minute drive from Boston, Providence, Worcester and Cape Cod.

The 1986 Miller Music Series' diverse roster ranges from performances by comedian Bill Cosby, to Julio Iglesias, Julian Lennon, Jeffrey Osborne, Patti LaBelle and Kenny Rogers. In all, more than thirty events have been announced.

Other attractions include Anne Murray, Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, Peter Allen, Manhattan Transfer, Englebert Humperdinck, Pia Zadora, Peter, Paul and Mary, Joan Baez, Don McLean, Liv Taylor, Willie Nelson, New England Ragtime Ensemble, Moody Blues, Beach Boys, Starship, Eddie Murphy, Loverboy, Culture Club, Eurythmics, Mr. Mister, Robert Palmer, James Taylor, Joan Armatrading, Jimmy Buffett, Stephen Stills & America, Andreas Vollenweider, Pointer Sisters and George Benson.

To purchase subscriptions to the Miller Music Series, call Ticketmaster at 1-800-682-8080, or in Boston at (617) 523-6633. For further information, write: Center for the Performing Arts at Great Woods, P.O. Box 810, Mansfield, MA 02048 or phone (617) 339-2331.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — You have more freedom now so close a deal or begin a long-term project. Buy something nice for yourself but don't go overboard — spend only what you can afford. Be realistic about a romance that is getting more serious.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Open up lines of communication and clear up misunderstandings with people important in your life. Be willing to make changes and adjustments — you benefit in the long run. Get advice on how to make your home more secure.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Money should flow more freely now but stick to your budget. You can renegotiate an agreement in your favor. Restrictions lift, you have more freedom and by sticking with your convictions you'll prove you were right all along.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Your intuition is on target, your timing is excellent, you're in the driver's seat so demonstrate your abilities! Go after what you want with confidence — you'll get it. Money is accented and your income is on the upswing.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Don't be discouraged by other people's claims — you're on the right track. Discard self-doubt and take a leadership role. There could be some sort of major shake-up and when the dust settles, you come out the winner.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Opt for quality over quantity in making choices now. Show your independence, expand your horizons and diversify. Someone could be working behind the scenes for your benefit — show gratitude for his or her sacrifice.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Put the needs of older people or those who depend on you above your own just now. Attend to routine details and responsibilities of a group or organization you belong to. Get out and about with mentally stimulating people.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — A family member could back you on a project and give some good advice as well. Stick to routine, take care of details, be patient and read the fine print on legal contracts. Past efforts should pay off with honors now.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Don't mistake a purely physical attraction for true love now — keep it light and see what develops. Bring finances, bills and accounts up to date. Say "yes" to an unexpected proposition and enjoy the adventure!

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Your romantic relationship is going through positive changes — be ready to move in new directions. Show more affection and attention to all your loved ones. You will accomplish the most through partnerships of all kinds.

AQUARIUS: (Jan 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Tackle that big project — it has a lot of promise. Avoid complicated situations at work and don't play "office politics." Your expectations of a romantic partner could be unrealistic and lead to disappointment.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You could play the peacemaker in a sticky, emotional situation. Don't let your imagination run away with — trade in illusion for common sense. You can complete a major project now and gain recognition for your achievement.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

Ken Beck's oversized Measuring Cup glows as if lighted from within, giving the common object iconographic presence and monumental stature.

Objects' reality questioned

They are too painterly to be trompe l'oeil.

Still, these paintings and drawings by Ken Beck present objects that push forward from their richly colored, non-configurated backgrounds and deceive the eye into believing they are the real, three-dimensional things.

Is Beck, though, presenting the objects as real, or is he transforming them so the nature of their reality is brought into question?

There is the issue of size and scale.

A measuring cup is five feet tall and over three feet wide. A plastic cafeteria tray or metal roasting rack cover a card table. Cake pans and floating cookie sheets would require giant ovens if they were, indeed, "life sized."

Yet, in almost every instance they are not only larger than life but have a sense of the monumental that pushes against the canvas' rectangular boundaries and projects them outward from the gallery walls.

That monumentality becomes essential to the works' content by contributing to the transformation of functional objects from a domestic and workaday world into glowing icons in the heated light of another — perhaps transcendent — world.

He earned a bachelor's degree in philosophy in 1968 and a doctorate in anthropology in 1973.

A decision several years later to choose visual analysis over verbal led to Beck's third degree, a master of fine arts in painting granted this spring by the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

"My attraction to these objects, he says, "comes, in part, from the orientation I developed as an anthropologist. It's the archaeological view of cultural artifacts -- 'Wow, what was this used for?' -- the looking at things as revelatory of daily existence, whether it's with reference to how we make a cake or how an artist mixes varnish.

"Paintings themselves can be revelatory artifacts, and that's how they're used. We can look at an old painting to tell us something about how life was lived then."

It is the act of painting and the resulting art work itself that is revelatory rather than the documented identity of the objects depicted.

Besides his manipulation of scale, Beck intensifies color in the objects and plays off their edges against backgrounds that are frequently equally intensified.

By countering the reality of the objects and their cast shadows with heightened color and increased size, the artist probes their objecthood and pushes them into a realm beyond it.

An aggressive orange background functions to amplify and to push a lushly green cafeteria tray out into the gallery space and into another identity as icon-like.

The symmetry of the pan and of most of the other objects/paintings adds gravity and weight to the works and, like scale and color, contributes to the change in their identity from the world in which they previously existed to their new form and identity through Beck's paintings.

Ken Beck: Recent Paintings and Drawings if on view at Naga Gallery, 67 Newbury St., Boston, through June 14. Gallery hours are 10 to 5 Tuesday through Saturday. Call 267-9060.

100 Years of Watercolor

The New England Watercolor Society has mounted a show of over 100 members' works, along with a retrospective of twelve illustrious past members, in honor of its 100th anniversary.

Though the sheer quantity of paintings hung at Boston's Federal Reserve Gallery is overwhelming, an inspiring and inspired use of the medium is overall, noticeably lacking.

The most energetic, beautifully lighted and handled painting in the exhibit is, predictably, the John Singer Sargeant, in the retrospective, on loan from the Museum of Fine Arts.

That entire segment of the show is separated from current members' works in the large gallery, and is its shining moment. The change is welcome from the other works, arranged and grouped according to subject, in the larger gallery space.

A painting such as one by Charles Hopkinson in the retrospective, gives viewers a sense of the artist's use of his medium to search, express, describe. This kind of engagement is in contrast to the prescribed and too-often slick execution in much of the rest of the show.

Watercolor can be fresh and shimmering as it is in Catherine Chin's lively On Pink Lace. And, despite its fluid character, the transparent medium can be substantial, as it is in Jim Hooley's personably discriptive Louisburg Square, an award-winner in the exhibit.

But, as is too often the case in this exhibition, the medium can be used in a formulated way, becoming so facile and methodical that the content of the work is overpowered and the image is only the sum total of acquired skill in its execution.

100 Years of Watercolor will be on display through June 20, and may be viewed from 10 to 4 Monday through Friday. The gallery is located in the Federal Reserve Bank Building, 600 Atlantic Ave., Boston.

Our Children
Spacing: No Easy Answer

Q. We have a young child (not quite 2 years old), and my wife and I have a running discussion about the timing of our next one.

How close in age do you think children should be? She feels an interval of five or six years might be best, but I believe that there are more advantages if they are just a year or two apart.

Your opinion please.

A. Because there are often advantages and disadvantages in both close and distant spacing of children in a family, strengths and weaknesses can be listed for each approach.

A substantial space of five or six years gives the first child the opportunity of getting more complete parental attention for that time. It also provides a chance for him or her to reach the school years and be on the road to independence. However, such spacing lengthens the time of parents being tied down with young children.

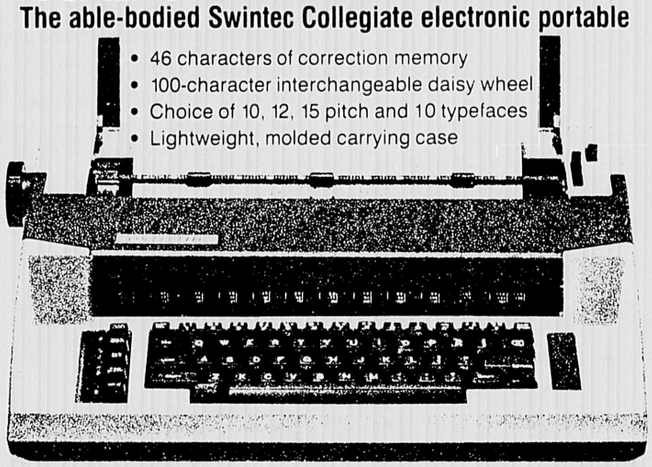

Having children close together can result in closer ties between them and a chance that their relationship can be preserved into adulthood. On the other hand, having two or more in the dependency stage at the same time can put quite a burden on their parents.

You can probably add some pros and cons of your own for each point of view. What it adds up to is this: some decisions have to be hammered out between the people involved. They are just too personal for outside interference, or even honest, sincere advice.

What's Free

Fertility Awareness

For Women Only

Fertility Awareness

Today many women choose to begin full-time careers before they become mothers. Because women are delaying motherhood until they reach their 30s and 40s, many face the unexpected problem of infertility. Nine percent of the U.S. female population between the ages of 25 and 29 are infertile.

You can learn more about fertility in A Woman's Guide To Fertility. The information in this pamphlet is simple yet important. It probably goes beyond the information mom imparted on your 12th birthday.

Many women forget what they learned about fertility in junior high school health classes. To increase their chances of conception, women may need to relearn or expand their knowledge of ovulation, body heat and irregular menstrual cycles.

Delaying motherhood gives women opportunities to achieve emotional maturity and to pursue educational and career goals. Unfortunately, infertility increases with age. Therefore, couples must be in tune with their bodies and recognize early signs of declining fertility. This pamphlet tells hopeful parents about symptoms that may indicate reduced fertility.

UPDATING THE MARKET

You may have heard of the nearly unbelievable increase in property values recently. Prices of most homes west of Boston actually increased about 2% per MONTH during the last year!

Professional appraisers all agree, however (and Realtors substantiate this) that this record-breaking inflation of house prices has slowed down since the start of this past June.

Presently, property values are staying relatively even. What does this mean to you? If a house like yours sold for $180,000, yours is not likely to sell for more — at this time.

Keep in mind, however, that real estate trends change rapidly! We make it our business to keep abreast of all changes that affect your property value, from inflation factor to mortgage rate, to the number of homes presently for sale that might compete with yours. Even if you've had a market analysis recently, ask us for an update.

Louise Ruma-Ivers is the immediate past President of the Greater Boston Women's Council of Realtors, and a past Director of the Marketing Institute for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. She is a member of the Arlington Historic Districts Committee.

Dot Stein is a Vice President of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and a Director of its Multiple Listing Service. She was a long-time Arlington Town Meeting member, and a member of the Arlington School Committee.

Prayer To The Holy Spirit

HOLY SPIRIT, thou who make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who are in all instances of my life with me, I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Amen. A person must pray this for three consecutive days. After the third day your wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Promise to publish this as soon as your favor has been granted. Mine was. C.M. 5.29/6.12l

Good News for the Weekend Mechanic

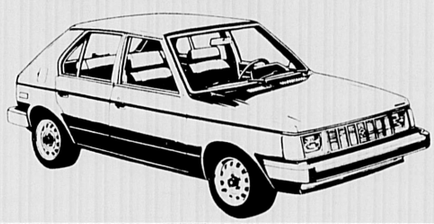

Audi 5000S Sedan

If you do your own repair work, do the job right with genuine Audi replacement parts. First of all, they fit, so if you take your Audi apart Saturday morning, you know the parts you bought will get you back on the road without another trip. Second, every part has a 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty. At Audi, we care as much about your car as you do.

Hi-tech vs. privacy: Sopper's films spark 'Big Brother' debate

BY GEORGE DERRINGER

Is a video camera the new way for selectmen to demonstrate that laws are being violated and regulations are going unenforced?

The issue erupted loudly Tuesday night during a selectman's meeting. The discussion came largely in response to a videotape shown a few weeks ago by Sopper to demonstrate law-breaking near the town water supply in the Middlesex Fells Reservation.

Deering, who had asked to put the use of video cameras on the meeting agenda, opened the discussion by asking Sopper how he intended to use the camera.

Wade Welch, chairman of the board, quickly said he had used the camera once, during the licensing hearing last year for the town's first retail liquor store. Welch said he had some concerns about people being shown, however.

He said such use might constitute an invasion of privacy.

"Even if you shoot somebody committing a crime?" Lombardi asked.

"To some extent, it might be," Welch, an attorney, answered. "For example, you can't search someone's home without a warrant and probable cause."

"What's wrong with videotaping a bank robber?" Lombardi said.

"Nothing," Welch responded. "But if you started using the camera in a restaurant, it might be an invasion of privacy."

"Suppose we showed trouble with valet parking at Lucia's (restaurant). Would that be an infringement on somebody's privacy?" Lombardi asked.

"It could be," Welch answered.

Louder discussion began when Deering spoke again. "Taking a picture of a litter basket overflowing is one thing, but filming people with an intent to embarrass, that's like Big Brother. And it's wrong," he said firmly.

"You're not going to do that with my vote. We weren't elected to do that. We were not elected to be investigators," Deering said.

Taking offense, Sopper responded.

> Deering said, 'Taking a picture of a litter basket overflowing is one thing, but filming people with an intent to embarrass, that's like Big Brother. And it's wrong.'

"The concerns of selectmen Muggia and Deering are unjustified, unfounded and unnecessary," he said.

"I made the tapes legally. Nobody was embarrassed and they were in good taste. Half of the film was never shown. I intend to continue to use the camera," Sopper declared.

Saying his tapes were not remotely like Big Brother's, Sopper said he had made tapes at the Fells, at the public safety building, at Leonard Beach and at the island in front of the post office.

"I'm doing my job with the best of modern technology," Sopper said. "I'll continue."

Sopper said he would show future films to board members ahead of time and offered to let them "censor" them.

"The concern of townspeople is that this could lead to more," Deering said, agreeing that Sopper's tapes had indeed been in good taste.

Town vote demolishes plan for parking lot

BY MAUREEN QUINLAN

The Kelly Hayes building will not be demolished to make way for a parking garage in the downtown area.

The proposal was rejected by an overriding majority at Town Meeting last week after several speakers indicated a "lack of need" for a public off-street parking garage.

Town Meeting voted against giving selectmen authority to use eminent domain to acquire the land between Shore Road and Winchester Place, directly north of Winchester Place Associates, to build a parking garage. Only 30 members voted in favor while more than 100 opposed it.

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, said, "We believe the building is not consistent with downtown renovations. There is a documented need for off-street parking." Selectmen voted 3-2 in favor of the site for a parking lot.

Welch suggested several proposals selectmen would consider after acquiring the land. He told members they would have to bring the final proposal before fall town meeting for its approval.

He discussed "mixed" use, including a parking facility with housing units on the top floor, as one option. The housing units, he said, would be for elderly or family housing or sold as condominiums.

"I'm against this. Old, good-looking things have a right to stay. I don't know why you have to tear it down just because it's old," she said.

> The proposal was rejected by an overriding majority at Town Meeting last week after several speakers indicated a 'lack of need.'

"My husband and I fought hard for what we have," Cullen said.

A jewelry shop tenant in the building also spoke against the proposal. "What amazes me the most is a town would consider taking a business away," he said.

Gerald Cullen, son of Helen Cullen, urged town meeting to vote against the proposal.

"Tonight I ask you not to take away anyone's property, anyone's livelihood, to provide parking," Cullen said.

Selectmen asked John Connery, local developer, to speak in favor of the article.

Connery favored the proposal, saying Winchester needs additional parking spaces and this "enclave" was an ideal location. He said the proposed site in no way penetrates the residential area of town, which he said was an ongoing concern of residents.

"There aren't any good alternatives left in Winchester," said Connery. He said "several buildings" in town unfortunately haven't made an effort with the constant upkeep a building requires.

Connery cited the elimination of 23 off-street parking spaces due to the construction of the new public safety building on Mount Vernon Street.

After prior reservations, the finance committee and the planning board backed the selectmen's proposal to build.

"I don't think we have a parking problem," shouted Saraco.

"I'm opposed to eminent domain unless there is a real essential need," he said. Saraco cited numerous downtown locations that he visited over a two-week period. Saraco said he drove through town on several occasions and found spaces always available.

Town meeting member Noreen Arcari suggested alternative parking at the McCall Junior High School parking lot off Main Street for shoppers and merchants.

Town will crack down on lounges

With little discussion, Winchester selectmen Tuesday amended the rules for restaurants which serve liquor to make even clearer the town's intent to prohibit "lounges."

Selectmen Judie Muggia and Bob Deering met with owners of the three affected restaurants.

Muggia said selectmen "got across the attitude that the town is taking a wait-and-see approach to liquor licenses in general."

She said the owners understand "and it's their intent to be very straight."

The new rules require, except for private functions, that only one drink be served to a patron before he or she orders a full meal from the menu. No drinks will ever be served unless the patron is seated at a table in the dining room.

The most significant part of the new wording, however, defines what "a meal" is not.

"The word 'meal' shall not include items such as potato chips, corn chips, potato skins, nuts, pretzels, or other so-called snack foods customarily served with alcoholic beverages in a bar or cocktail lounge or any other edibles which are served gratuitously with alcoholic beverages," the new rule says.

Selectmen pressed for an amendment to the rules and regulations after some establishments applied what selectmen considered a "loose" definition of the word "meal."

The police department was charged with enforcement.

Town creates new group to be 'housing watchdog'

BY MAUREEN QUINLAN

Town moderator John Sullivan is looking for nine town meeting members to volunteer to act as the town's "watchdogs."

Despite obvious dissatisfaction and perceived need for an oversight committee, town meeting last Thursday voted 95-21 to accept the Ambrose School lot on Cambridge Street as a viable spot to build low- to-moderate income housing.

David B. Mortenson, town meeting member, urged members to vote in favor of a special ad hoc committee, citing the housing authority's procedures and actions as "intolerable" and calling them the reason the town needs a "watchdog" board. The vote was unanimous.

Town clerk Carolyn Ward said the board will have three purposes.

First, she said "it will monitor activities of town boards, committees and authorities in respect to low- to-moderate income housing," she said. Boards included are the selectmen, the planning board and Winchester Housing Authority.

Ward says the special committee will also be responsible for keeping town meeting abreast of any and all developments and will be asked to make recommendations when needed.

Mortenson said last Thursday night, "We have to ensure that it (the housing issue) never happens again. We were painted into a corner," he said. He said the housing authority, because of the limited number of proposed sites on the warrant, gave town meeting "no options."

In an interview last Friday, housing authority member William McCarthy said "I support it (the special committee). It is very legitimate as far as I'm concerned."

He said, "it's obvious we didn't get the message out," but he said, "we were under tremendous time constraints and pressures."

McCarthy said, however, volunteers for the committee should realize the time commitment involved.

The easterly end of the Ambrose School site, facing Cambridge Street, was the seventh site accepted by town meeting. Because the state mandated Winchester to build seven sites, articles 17 and 18, the proposed Hemingway Street site, were "indefinitely postponed," which means they will not be considered.

Other locations for mandated "affordable family housing," in the state's jargon, will put two units on the former Woburn Loop railroad right-of-way, three units on housing authority land on Palmer Street and one unit on the easterly end of what is now Mullen Park on Lockeland Rd.

Town meeting dealt with varied issues

In summary, here's what the Winchester spring town meeting did:

- Approved a $4.72 million project for renovations of town hall.
- Approved seven units of low- and-moderate income housing with three units on Palmer Street, two on the Woburn Loop railroad right-of-way near Cross Street, one on the east end of the Ambrose School property and one on the east end of Mullen Park.
- Funded new contracts with three unions, tentatively funded one with teachers on which they will vote today, and awaited settlements with policemen and firemen.
- Created a new committee to study toxic waste sites, particularly the former Hudson Industries site off Cross Street.
- Approved a town budget with an increase of less than 2 percent.
- Approved a 75 percent increase in sewer user fees.
- Approved rezoning of a part of the First Baptist Church to allow its conversion to condominium units.
- Rejected setting a minimum teacher salary ofd $18,000.
- Approved hiring part-time conservation administrator.
- Approved additional hours for a youth center director.
- Took the first steps toward a $10 million recreation and playfield improvement program.
- Rejected zoning amendments that would have eased setback restrictions for accessory buildings and reduced the size of required parking spaces.
- Adopted a zoning bylaw putting restrictions on satellite TV dishes.
- Rejected a proposal to take a building between Winchester Place and Shore Road by eminent domain for a parking facility.
- Created a new "watchdog" committee to oversee all housing proposals throughout town, especially plans of the Winchester Housing Authority.

Fells trespassers to be arrested

BY GEORGE DERRINGER

Anyone who goes swimming in the Middlesex Fells Reservations this weekend could be in trouble.

Winchester selectmen decided Tuesday to begin arresting people who trespass on Town of Winchester property, in or near the reservoirs in the Fells.

In a memo to selectmen, town manager Chad Maurer noted the failure of "passive enforcement" to deter swimming, fishing and bathing of humans, horses and dogs in the reservoirs.

In an attempt to protect the water supply, which is not treated except for the addition of chlorine and fluoride, Maurer recommended strong measures.

"In 1986 we have had weekend police patrol who have been instructed to only tell people they are trespassing and that they should not bathe or swim in the reservoir or let their dogs and horses swim," Maurer wrote.

> "This passive enforcement has not been an effective deterrent to violators," Maurer continued.

As a result, police have been instructed to arrest people who violate trespass laws at the reservoir, beginning "the weekend of June 14."

On a more long-range basis, Maurer recommended installation of fencing "at strategic locations," restricted use of roadways, improved security and adjustment of property lines between the town and the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), which owns the reservation.

Maurer also suggested elimination of the parking lot on South Border Road, but that suggestion met with opposition, particularly from selectman Wade Welch.

Selectmen assured recreational users of the Fells they did not mean to discourage use of the facility, only to assure water quality.

"Our entire interest is protection of the water supply," Welch said, although selectmen do want to know the MDC's long-range plans for use of the Fells for recreation.

"When we find out, we'll discuss it publicly," Welch said.

we can protect the reservoirs and still have passive recreation," selectman Frank Sopper said.

Several town officials were scheduled to meet with MDC officials Wednesday in Boston to learn about plans for development of a new recreation unit for the Fells.

Housing authority not criticized for past woe

BY MAUREEN QUINLAN

The Winchester Housing Authority faced more criticism last week after the state auditor's office issued a report claiming "high percentages of error" in the authority's business between July 1, 1981 and June 30, 1983.

The report revealed that of 56 rental determinations tested, 13 did not have adequate documentation for income sources. The report said the authority's rent determinations were, "carelessly prepared."

In a public meeting prior to town meeting last Thursday night, chairperson Mary A. Meader said she was angry because she did not receive the report until last Saturday morning, one day after the press received it.

Member William McCarthy was concerned, he said, because "this could influence town meeting in a negative manner in a vote that is of crucial importance to the town," but he called the report "innocuous."

He indicated the report did not pertain to present authority members or the present executive director, Jerry Keefe. However, he said, "it's personally insulting, even though it doesn't affect me."

Meader said, "it's something that's been blown out of proportion."

She said during the time, the authority was understaffed and overworked. Those facts could be integral to the minimal miscalculations, the state cited.

Keefe said the rent miscalculations were not significant.

Joseph J. Riga Sr. criticized the three state auditors who spent about six weeks at the authority.

Keefe said, "They have to show they're doing something to get their pay. Auditors will always find fault, that's their job." He added that it's unusual when some fault is not found.

Town meeting members never discussed the state auditor's report later that night, when they voted to accept part of the Ambrose School property as the site for the seventh and final required site for low- to-moderate income housing.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, June 8

At 3:01 a.m., police reported a New England Telephone booth vandalized at the corner of Cambridge Street and Pond Street. Police said the glass was smashed and the receiver was broken in half.

At 4:57 a.m., a West Chardon Road resident reported four tires were slashed on his 1983 Oldsmobile Cierra.

At 7:49 a.m., a Norwood Street resident was thrown into a stone wall on Church Street after his bicycle jumped a curb. The fire department ambulance transported the man to Winchester Hospital where he was treated and released, police said.

At 4:50 p.m., a Main Street resident told police someone hit his 1979 Pontiac on the passenger side.

Saturday, June 7

At 9:30 p.m., police placed a 16-year-old Mason Street resident in protective custody after finding him near town hall on Mount Vernon Street, "barely standing and vomiting." The youth was released to friends of his parents, according to the report.

Friday, June 6

At 12:51 a.m., a Reading resident told police someone hit her 1979 Chevrolet Camaro on the driver's side while it was parked in Winchester Hospital's parking garage. The incident happened between 7 and 8 p.m. June 5.

There's more than one way to finance an education!

With educational expenses on the rise and financial assistance more restrictive, families are looking for alternatives to pay for school. At Winchester Savings Bank, you'll find loans specifically for students . . . loans for parents of students . . . and even loans for students or parents who own homes. And in most cases, there are no restrictions on age, the type of school you're attending (or plan to attend), or if you're a half-time or full-time student.

HELP Loans: Administered by the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation, this federally sponsored program offers low-interest loans to undergraduate and graduate students. Parents are not required to co-sign, the first payment is deferred until after graduation and you have up to 10 years to repay.

PLUS Loans: This is also a locally administered, federally sponsored program that offers below-market rates to parents of dependent undergraduate students as well as to independent undergraduate and graduate students. Payments start within 45 days and the repayment period is negotiated.

Home Equity Lines of Credit: With a Winchester Savings Bank Home Equity Line of Credit, homeowners can use the equity in their homes to pay for the cost of education . . . or for whatever else they want. Lines of credit are available up to $150,000.

To find out more about financing your education, call 729-2130 or visit any office of Winchester Savings Bank.

Local youth injured in car accident

Joseph Schatz, 6, remains in the intensive care unit of the Children's Hospital in Boston following a collision between a car driven by his mother Hale Schatz, 36, of 236 Mystic Valley Parkway in Winchester, and a vehicle driven by Frank A. Anicalle, 17, of 9 Byron Rd., Waltham.

Schatz was driving east on Summer Street when she was hit broadside. After the collision, her car hit a telephone pole on Summer Street.

Anicalle was cited for operating to endanger.

Miehah Schatz, 9, and Jesse Green, 10, of 74 Warren St. in Medford were both taken to Symmes Hospital where they were treated and released.

Local man pleads guilty to drunk driving charges

Harold J. Moran Jr., 24, of 202 Cross St. was sentenced to 14 days in Middlesex Hospital in Waltham, one year probation and one year loss of license after he pleaded guilty to charges of operating under the influence, operating to endanger the public and speeding on June 4 at Fourth District Court in Woburn.

Early Feb. 23, Moran was driving on Cross Street when he lost control of his car, skidded 200 feet and smacked into a tree. His passenger, John Matabayas of Stoneham, suffered serious injuries, a collapsed lung, fractured ribs and head injuries. Moran suffered a broken leg.

The "jaws of life" were used to rip off the roof of the car in order to use a backboard to extricate the passenger, Matabayas, police said.

According to Winchester Sgt. James R. Pierce, because Moran caused serious injury, he was not eligible for the CASE program, an alcohol rehabilitation program first offenders are frequently required to attend.

Man faces OUI charges

Police arrested Peter J. Amari, 21, of Richardson Street, Woburn for driving under the influence at about 1:15 a.m. June 7.

Officer Eric S. Benson observed a 1981 Chevrolet gray pick-up truck screeching through the intersection of Cambridge Street and Pond Street.

Benson stopped the truck on Cambridge Street.

Amari was bailed for arraignment in Fourth District Court in Woburn June 9. He is scheduled to appear for a conference on June 23.

Police arrest Stamm on drunk driving charges

A Winchester man with two previous drunk driving convictions was arrested again last weekend on a similar charge.

Richard Stamm, 23, of 23 James Road, faces a minimum of 60 days in the House of Correction if he is found guilty of driving under the influence, said Winchester Sgt. James R. Pierce.

Pierce said if Stamm is convicted, it will be his third offense. He is scheduled to return to Fourth District Court in Woburn on July 11.

On June 6 at about 2 a.m., Stamm's car hit a utility pole on Ridge Street.

Officers Paul DeLuca and William Maggio found Stamm standing outside his 1980 yellow Datsun.

Police arrested Stamm for driving under the influence and transported him to Winchester Hospital, where he was treated and released to Woburn police.

Stamm faced arraignment at Fourth District Court in Woburn the morning of June 6 and is due back in court on July 11.

AFFORDABLE HOME OWNERSHIP

It's no secret that young couples may have a tough time meeting monthly mortgage costs for today's single family homes. However, there are ways to reduce the monthly carrying costs and still be happy homeowners.

For example, you could buy a condominium unit. You could also rehab an older home in need of repair (fixer-up special), or you could buy, occupy and manage a small multi-family house. There is also the option of joint ownership with parents as co-owners.

If you prefer to invest in a single family house now, you may wish to consider financing via a Graduated Payment Mortgage (GPM). GPM's are tailored to the income needs of younger couples whose income is expected to increase over the years. GPM monthly payments increase as the buyers' monthly income increases.

The bottom line is that there are many affordable home ownership situations with lower monthly carrying costs for younger buyers to consider in today's market.

No. 1 in Winchester because we care... It's more than just a business with us...it's you and the professional service we provide for you that is the cornerstone of our continued success.... that's why more buyers and sellers select ANN BLACKHAM & CO. to be their Real Estate broker.

Prior to joining Newsome, DeConto was a senior staff accountant for Charles E. DiPesa & Co., Boston. In that position, she gained extensive audit experience in corporate, municipal and non-profit entities.

She graduated from Bentley College in 1982 with a bachelor of science degree in accountancy.

Established in 1945, Newsome & Company provides public relations, investor relations and marketing services to a variety of regional and national businesses and institutions. Newsome is a subsidiary of Carl Byoir & Associates, one of the world's largest public relations agencies.

Local Man sentenced to 90 days in jail

Terrence M. O'Flaherty, 19, of Chapin Street, was sentenced to 90 days in the House of Correction in Billerica.

Police arrested O'Flaherty for operating after suspension of his license, driving an unregistered, uninsured car, attaching plates and on several additional warrants.

At 5:59 p.m. June 7, officer Eric Benson arrested O'Flaherty after observing a 1976 Dodge Aspen driving with an expired (January 1986) registration sticker on his license plate.

Police ran a warrant check and found three warrants out for O'Flaherty's arrest, including one in Tewksbury for car offenses, a default warrant in Bedford for car offenses and a warrant from Woburn police for operating under the influence and car offenses.

Officers Lewis Best and James Cogan responded as back-up.

The car was towed from the scene and O'Flaherty was taken to Woburn Police Department and then transported the House of Correction in Billerica.

Four win vocational scholarships

Averaging $525, the scholarships went to 57 students, most of whom plan to further their education at four-year colleges.

Matthew Berg of Winchester won the Charles A. Murphy Memorial Scholarship and the Richard William Bond Memorial Scholarship.

Peter Gurrisi of Winchester won the Northeast PTO Scholarship, the Auto Tech VICA Award and the Crystal Auto Parts Co. Award.

During the year, Gurrisi won gold and bronze medals in the school Vocational Olympics and took a bronze in the state contest. He also won skills bars in all five categories he entered in the Chrysler Corp.'s competition.

Gurrisi also won his school's craftsmanship prize in automotive technology for the third straight year.

'Peace Scroll' stretches 36 feet

More than 36 feet of pictures and words were penned by people of all ages, all speaking of "the urgency to change the world's way of thinking. "We are one. Therefore, war is obsolete and all must work together to build a world beyond war," many writers said.

Beyond War, a non-profit organization with headquarters in California and local groups around the world, has a local unit.

The Winchester group will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 18, at the Baehr residence, 235 Mystic Valley Pkwy. Further information is available from Ganson Taggart or Jeanette Baird at 729-3707 or 729-0040.

TM: Sick day 'buy back' no cure for absenteeism

By GEORGE DERRINGER

A controversial provision of some new labor contracts with town employees nearly caused those pacts to be rejected by town meeting members Monday night.

At issue were clauses calling for the town "buy back" unused sick days from town employees who had not used all of their sick time.

It took nearly an hour of discussion before it was revealed that three contracts provide differing amounts to employees for days "sold back."

Members of the Town Employees Association, who work for the Department of Public Works, can sell back unused days at $25 per day.

In all cases, the "buy back" proviso takes effect only after an employee has accumulated 90 unused sick days.

Two other unions, those representing rank-and-file police officers and firefighters, reached an agreement with town negotiators only to see the agreements rejected by the membership.

A two-hour dicussion revealed much rancor.

Town manager Chad Maurer said the total cost of settlements with town employees would increase 5.2 percent while school employee adjustments would cause a 5.4 percent increase in spending.

Town meeting members largely focused on the "buy back" provision, although several questioned whether increases of 4.5 percent, about 50 percent above inflation, could be justified.

According to Maurer, "buy back" arrangements would cost about $3,000 for office clerks, $5,000 for public works employees and $9,000 for superior police officers.

Several speakers said every union, and eventually non-union employees, would demand sick day "buy back" privileges.

In answer to a question, Maurer admitted "buy back" had been suggested by union negotiators.

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, nonetheless insisted the system would save the town money "in the long run" because employees at work do not require the town to hire a replacement.

Several speakers said the new contract recognized that employees cheat on sick days.

"Sick days are for sick people," several argued.

Maurer repeatedly told how difficult negotiations had been and said contracts always reflect compromise.

Robert Cammon, town meeting member from Precinct 1, said the problem arose because the town "does not have a good sick-leave administrator." He suggested keeping a chart to see if employees usually call in "sick" on Mondays, Fridays or the day after a holiday.

Several speakers expressed regret they were forced to either increase the town budget to cover negotiated agreements or send all negotiators back to the table.

Sarah Cincotta said town meeting members were "generally dissatisfied" with the reports they received. "The police and fire departments still haven't ratified their contracts and the school teachers won't until June 12. What's all the foot-dragging?" she asked.

"We don't have choices," she said.

An attempt to remove funds to cover the new contracts with the three "buy back" unions from an overall motion to increase funding failed by a narrow 67-56 margin.

Selectmen want to have a say in plans for new Trodella structrure

Selectmen don't want to be left out of the process that could result in a new Trodella Electrical Corp. building at 121 Swanton St., near the transfer station.

It has already been outlined to the board of appeals and will receive a preliminary site plan review by that board at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 18, at the board of health office.

Selectman Wade Welch objected to the timing of a notice from the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency, stating the firm has applied for a $3,200,000 bond issue for the structure. Trodella Corp./McKay Avenue Realty Trust said the expansion will result in approximately 75 new jobs.

A notice was sent by the agency June 4, informing selectmen the bond issue would be considered at its next meeting, scheduled June 5.

Selectman Mark Lombardi noted that public access to the town transfer station is currently over a right-of-way and suggested the proposal might provide "the time to ensure the town access to the transfer station."

"It could be a win-win situation," Welch agreed.

Lombardi used the discussion to denounce the recent addition of a second story to a building on the Swanton Street corner. He also said the addition of 75 new jobs "doesn't turn me on because 70 of them will be for people from out of town. And there will be more traffic."

Selectmen decided to contact the board of appeals, indicating they may wish to comment on the proposal, and to invite Trodella to present its plan to the selectmen.

In other action, selectmen:

- Voted to install four signs near downtown crosswalks, reminding motorists that pedestrians have the right of way. The signs will be similar to those in Arlington and Lexington.
- Accepted with regret the resignation of Paul Amico from the retirement board.
- Decided not to decide Tuesday whether the town's plumbing code should be amended to allow only cast iron sewer connection pipes, although state rules allow plastic polyvinyl chloride (PVC) pipe. A decision is likely next week, after selectmen receive opinions from the plumbing inspector and the sewer department.
- Agreed to consider June 16 the success or failure of the valet parking "pilot program" in effect for nearly a month at Ristorante Lucia.
- Decided to ask for a joint meeting with the planning board in the near future to discuss parking, proposed development of the former Hudson Industries site for condomimiums, the former skating rink site, the Woburn Loop railroad right-of-way and other concerns.
- Placed a list of proposed summer non-meeting dates on the agenda for the June 16 gathering.
- Declared an intention to inform the Executive Office of Communities and Development of town meeting action to approve seven sites for Chapter 705 low- and moderate-income units.
- Discussed the spring town meeting, which ended Monday after 10 nights of debate.

Segerstrom treasurer of Savings bank

Peter J. Segerstrom

Peter J. Segerstrom has recently been elected treasurer of Winchester Savings Bank, said Robert B. Nickerson, president of the bank.

Segerstrom began his career at Winchester Savings Bank in 1978 as a bank teller, advanced to branch manager and most recently served as the investment portfolio manager.

As treasurer, he will be responsible for the bank's total financial position and execute the financial policies, programs and objectives of the bank and its subsidiaries.

Born and raised in Winchester, Segerstrom graduated from Winchester High School in 1972 and received his bachelor's degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst in 1976 and his master's in business administration from Babson in 1983.

He and his wife Rhoda reside in Stoneham.

Barbara Arbeene wins hospital prize

Barbara Arbeene of 4 Wellington Rd. in Winchester, a registered nurse at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, recently received a major award of recognition there.

She received a special nurse recognition award "in recognition of excellence in clinical practice and contributions to the advancement of the nursing profession" by her colleagues in the operating room and recovery room division at Brigham and Women's.

The award was made May 6 during the third annual nurse recognition proceedings at the hospital. Marion Metcalf, vice president of nursing, made the presentation.

Arbeene's name was engraved on a permanent plaque in the hospital lobby to record the names of each year's five recipients of nurse recognition awards in the hospital's five departments.

Schipani, Poland on Emerson list

Two Winchester students at Emerson College in Boston were named to the dean's honor list for the spring semester.

They are Leslie Schipani of 17 Sheffield Rd., a member of the class of 1988 and a mass communication major, and Erin Boland of 192 Pond St., a member of the class of 1989 and a theatre arts major.

Adams named a hospital director

Sue Ellen Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Percoco of Winchester, has recently been appointed to assistant director of Memorial Rehabilitation Hospital of Santa Barbara, Calif., which serves the middle southern California region.

Adams graduated summa cum laude from Boston University - Sargent College in 1979 with a bachelor's degree in occupational therapy. She joined the hospital staff in 1980.

In her new position, she will be responsible for supervising inpatient therapists, coordinating distribution of patients, developing new programs, staff education and intern programs.

Patricia Maio to attend Wellesley

Patricia Maio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Maio of 15 Allen Rd. will attend Wellesley College, as a member of the class of 1986.

A graduate of Winchester High School, she was active in the Red & Black newspaper, the marching band, a Depression Workshop group and the yearbook staff.

Three receive degrees at MIT

Mary Silva Doctor of 10 Hancock St. also earned a master's degree in management.

Richard M. Webber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Webber of 169 Main St., received a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering.

Two graduate at Gibbs School

Two Winchester women graduated June 9 from Katherine Gibbs School in Boston where each completed the one-year secretarial program in information processing.

They are Ann Ward, daughter of John and Mary Ward, and Deborah Wright, daughter of Richard and Cirita Wright.

Both are 1985 graduates of Winchester High School.

Two named to URI dean's list

Two students from Winchester have been named to the dean's list of the University of Rhode Island for achieving a high academic standard in the spring semester.

They are Anita J. Di Rocco of 4 Hillside Ave. and Shelia A. Donaghey of 52 Brookside Ave.

Joseph Reid gets degree at Trinity

Joseph M. Reid, son of Mrs. Mariam A. Reid of 7 Girard Rd. in Winchester, was among 446 men and women to get degrees May 25 at the 160th commencement of Trinity College in Hartford, Conn.

Reid received a bachelor's degree in computers, coordinated with studies in economics.

Sullivan in dental convention

Several hundred dental professionals attended the three-day continuing education meeting at the Hyatt Regency, Cambridge May 2-4.

Wiseman is Wesleyan grad

John Robert Wiseman III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiseman of 92 Lawson Rd., was among 597 members of Wesleyan University's class of 1986, which graduated Sunday, June 1, during the university's 154th commencement.

Wiseman, who attended Winchester High School, received a bachelor of arts degree with a major in psychology.

While at Wesleyan Wiseman was a member of the varsity crew and was awarded a varsity letter each of his four years. He was also awarded the Founders Trophy for his contributions to the Wesleyan Crew.

He served as the manager and president of Psi Upsilon fraternity and was recognized for his involvement by being awarded the Robert T. Jones Prize.

Wesleyan is located in Middletown, Conn.

Margaret E. Fallon

Fallon graduates at Worcester Tech

New panel to study toxics

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Toxic waste at the former Hudson Industries site off Cross Street and at "other suspected contaminated areas" in Winchester will be the subject of a brand new town committee.

Town meeting members voted Monday to create the new committee and set its membership as one selectmen, one member of the board of health and three at-large members.

The committee is to report to the fall 1986 town meeting.

Sarah Cincotta, a town meeting member from Precinct 5, spoke in favor of creating the committee. "In view of the questions that have been raised recently, it's important to have an independent study," she said.

Developer Angelo Marotta is pursuing plans for 72 condominium units to be built on the site. The soil there contains mercury, cyanide and arsenic, according to the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE).

Speaking in favor of creating a committee, Cincotta said, "The future health of citizens in critical." She said the town must avoid a situation like Woburn's, where town water supplies were found to have been contaminated.

"We don't want another Love Canal," she said, asking volunteers to approach moderator John Sullivan.

Robert Dewald, a town meeting member and a professional chemist, also favored an independent committee. "We don't know how much or exactly what kind of toxic waste is on the site," Dewald said.

"We know there's chrome — but what kind? The toxicity of the materials is unknown," he said, adding that the town should identify all possible waste sites, using historical records to aid in the search.

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, said a subcommittee has already been formed with a selectman, a member of the board of health and a planning board member.

Most town meeting members, nonetheless, remained determined to create a new committee.

Clarence Borggaard was an exception to the prevailing mood. "The board of health is quite qualified," Borggaard said. "Why should we create another board to take this job away from them?"

Dewald answered. "Hazardous chemicals are very difficult to deal with," he said. "Look at Woburn, which let the DEQE pump out wells.

"The DEQE does not have the chemical capability to take care of our chemical waste sites. We should do it ourselves," Dewald concluded.

On a voice vote, town meeting vote overwhelmingly in favor of creating a new committee. No money was appropriated because the board of health assured a May 1 meeting that it had enough money

Baptist Church condo plan survives reconsideration try

By GEORGE DERRINGER

A move to reconsider overwhelming town meeting approval of 11 condominium units to be built in part of the First Baptist Church was resoundingly defeated Monday night.

Mary Pronski, a town meeting member who lives nearby at 128 Washington St., pleaded with the meeting to reconsider its 120-13 vote May 22 that effectively rezoned part of the church building.

According to church spokesmen and Paul Amico, attorney for developer Rene LeMarr, the church will be renovated and will occupy part of the structure while condominium units will be in the part nearest Washington Street.

Pronski, however, argued May 22 and again Monday that the issue had not been fully considered. She said the attorney for the developer and all planning board members should have been present to hear the May debate.

"This is the first zoning change of its kind in Winchester," she said. "Those people should be able to participate in the debate."

Pronski said neighbors of the church were "not persuaded" of the plan's wisdom.

"The First Baptist Church is a private, independent group, not affiliated with any other church," she said. "We fear the church's congregation will continue to shrink and the congregation will have to move to smaller quarters. It would be best to sell the entire building (now)."

Pronski said previous town meetings have voted changes in zoning for a particular purpose "only to see the changes used for other purposes. Please reconsider your vote so all the facts can be exposed."

Amico, the developer's attorney, replied. He noted that planning board members were present during the original debate and had made their remarks. His own speech, Amico said, was delivered by Ralph Swanson, moderator and chairman of the church's board of deacons.

Amico said future changes in use of the building would require action by a future town meeting but doubted they would be needed.

"They plan to survive as a church. That's why they're going through this," he said.

Responding to a charge of "spot zoning" by Pronski, Amico said it would be illegal only if the zoning change were made without reference to the welfare of the town. "Otherwise, the judgment of the town will stand," he said.

The motion to reconsider town meeting approval of the project failed 91-7.

Town OKs unratified teacher pact

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Although school teachers haven't yet voted to ratify an agreement between their negotiators and school officials, town meeting members voted Monday to increase the school budget by $412,468 to cover the new contract.

Members of the Winchester Education Association are scheduled to vote today. School committee member Stephen Powers, however, told town meeting Monday he has "pretty good assurance this (contract) will be ratified. We feel certain it's going to go through."

The contract calls for a 4.5 percent increase in each of the next two years. According to the town manager, increases in salary and fringe benefits will total 5.4 percent this year.

Expressing the nearly unanimous feeling of town meeting members, Sarah Cincotta said, "we want all negotiations complete before town meeting."

Saying town officials had heard the message, moderator John Sullivan said, "The only way to send that message to the unions is to approve those (coptracts) that are on time and disapprove those that come in late."

Mary Pronski, town meeting member from Precinct 2, urged that funds for the new teacher contract be postponed until a later town meeting.

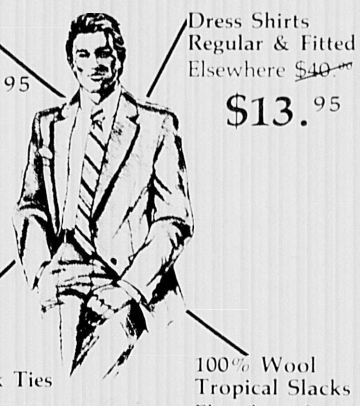

"To approve this would be to set a bad precedent, to approve a contract the teachers haven't approved yet. The teachers could even say that the school committee has no business going to town meeting before we've voted."

Powers, however, said attorneys for both the teachers and the town agreed the issue should be brought to Monday's final session of the spring town meeting.

CONDOMINIUM FEES

Smart condominium buyers question the monthly fees for maintaining the project's common elements. In examining these charges, it's important to consider what is included.

In projects that offer many services and recreational facilities, fees may be higher. Doormen, telephone answering services, tennis courtss, swimming pools and landscaping all increase the costs of running the condominium. Buildings with elevators may be more costly than garden apartments or townhouses. If units are metered separately for heating, air conditioning, gas and electricity, the fees will be less than in projects where utilities are included in the fee. Finally, most condominium associations are far more conservative than individual homeowners in budgeting for major improvements on repairss, and they're likely to include a healthy reserve fund in the condo's budget.

If you are considering a condo purchase, ask your Realtor if you can examine the association's most recent budget. This will tell you what's included in your fee, and you can make sure that reserve funds will cover any planned improvements.

Sargent honored for work in tort law

A special Massachusetts Bar Association (MBA) citation was awarded to Suffolk University Law School dean David J. Sargent of Winchester on May 31 for his outstanding work during the past year for the victims of tort, particularly in the area of medical malpractice.

Sargent, admitted to practice law in New Hampshire and Massachusetts and before the U.S. Supreme Court, began his career as a litigation and labor law attorney in Boston, then joined the faculty of the Suffolk University Law School for 16 years and became dean in 1973.

For more than 20 years, Sargent has been a consult and has testified before legislative committees in more than 30 states, as well as before congressional committees. He has presented over 500 addresses throughout the country to bar associations, law schools, insurance associations and consumer groups on the subjects of automobile insurance, comparative negligence, products liability, court reform and medical malpractice.

This past year he has made numerous influential appearances before the Massachusetts legislature on the issue of medical malpractice.

A long-time member of the MBA who has served on a number of MBA committees through the years, Sargent was one of the authors of the legislation providing for establishment of screening panels in medical malpractice litigation several years ago.

As chairman of the MBA subcommittee on court unification, Sargent's report became the report of the committee on court reform and ultimately of the MBA, calling for a singletier trial court and the state's assumption of all costs of the state's legal system.

Clarence S. Borggaard, right, accepts a check for the Jenks Senior Center expansion fund from Robert B. Nickerson, president of the Winchester Savings Bank. Nickerson said the donation represents a step in the bank's "long history of community involvement. The center has become an important and integral part of our community. It continues to contribute heavily to the quality of life in Winchester and we are proud to assist in its expansion program."

COMMENT

Winchester Kernels

Anyone who has ever doubted whether prayers are really communicating with someone has not met town moderator John Sullivan.

More than once he has subtly communicated with town meeting members in his prayers, notably during housing debate when he asked the Lord to allow the meeting to err only "in the direction of those less fortunate."

Monday night, however, he was far from subtle.

"Guide us during this, our LAST session of town meeting," Sullivan prayed. Gee, it only took 10 nights.

But the moderator was making sure. He never called a recess during the session, much to the dismay of some Girl Scouts at the coffee stand in the hall. Sullivan vowed to buy a lot himself at the end of the meeting.

The political season is heating up with the weather. During Town Day, both candidates for the Massachusetts House of Representatives were busy. Incumbent Rep. Whip Saltmarsh gave away an enormous number of ice cream sundaes while challenger Paul Casey was busy meeting voters over on Mt. Vernon Street.

Saltmarsh financed the event the next night with his first fund-raiser, which attracted special attention in the political world.

Why? Democratic House Majority Leader Charlie Flaherty and Democratic Sen. Biff McLain, chairman of the senate's transportation committee, made appearances in behalf of Republican Saltmarsh.

Finally, former governor and former Winchester resident John Volpe, most recently chairman of President Reagan's blue-ribbon Commission on Drunk Driving, came to support Saltmarsh.

Drunk again?

This week, Winchester police made two more arrests for drunk driving.

That makes 20 for the year, or more than one a week since 1986 started.

Of those 20 arrested, three have been convicted.

Of those 20, 12 are Winchester residents. Of those convicted, two are from Winchester.

And of all those arrests, it is time for the public to ask how much time those arrested have spent in jail.

I remember those television commercials with the clanking bars closing in the face of an angry cop. And the words warning, "If you drink, don't drive."

Okay. I believe it. I'm down to one glass of wine if I'm more than one block from home.

The truth in this advertising, however, like soap powder and tv dinners, is a distant echo of reality.

The message I got — the message that was probably intended — was that if I drank and drove and got caught, I would sleep it off behind bars.

I think that's a pretty good idea, in fact. If I'm so drunk the police can tell by watching the way I drive, I don't belong on the road.

I've read enough of cold, cockroach-infested jail cells to know I don't want to inhabit one for even a night.

It turns out I didn't need to worry.

Except for the multiple offenders — those who have been convicted of drunk driving more than once — those clanking cell bars are a figment of a producer's imagination.

That producer exhibits more honesty when the three Rice Krispies characters jump off the box.

The truth is that when someone is drunk, and drives a car, and gets arrested, he gets to go home and sleep it off.

The truth is that when someone is drunk, and drives a car, and kills someone, and gets arrested, he gets to go home and sleep it off, too.

In Winchester — and probably in the rest of Massachusetts — the reality simply doesn't live up to the advertising.

Sometimes, I'd love it if using a certain soap would change my life. Or if a tv dinner looked and tasted like a meal I'd find in Paris.

The stakes are a bit higher when the ads tell me that Massachusetts is tough on drunk drivers. The reality isn't tough at all.

The law — or its enforcement — is turning out to be just so much soft soap.

Valerie Jones-Long

What do you think?

Here's what I think about drunk drivers, and what should happen to them when they are arrested:

They shouldn't vote

If Winchester town meeting members wanted to send a message Monday night, they used the wrong tactic.

Upset by being asked to vote for additional funds to cover new union contract increases, town meeting members protested loudly.

Then they went ahead and approved funding for a new teacher contract anyway.

If they're serious about wanting to know what's going on, town meeting members ought to insist not only that both sides ratify the contract before it's brought to town meeting for funding, but that the contract itself be distributed.

Union contracts are public documents. Town meeting members ought to have them in hand at least a few days before they vote to spend town money to fund them.

Voting to increase a departmental budget by more than $400,000 without a ratified contract could be a dangerous practice.

Town meeting ought not to do so, no matter how tired of meetings the members are.

GUEST COLUMN

Open Space Plan adoption will benefit all Winchester

By ELAINE VREELAND

Traveling through Winchester, one cannot help but be impressed by its well managed mix of open space and development.

Much of the planning for this mix falls to the town's conservation commission. Formed in 1964 to regulate wetlands and to acquire and manage conservation areas, it has continued its mandate with the comprehensive "Open Space and Recreation Plan."

This plan identifies some of Winchester's continuing environmental problems, such as overdevelopment within watershed areas, pollution, erosion, flooding, and the loss of open space.

The solution is a five-year program to address conservation and rec reation and to incorporate these values into overall town planning.

The plan proposes to balance development and open space, make use of marginal land for buffer and recreation, maximize school facilities, network existing facilities by contiguous purchases and rights of way, and acquire diverse lands to provide recreation to all parts of town.

In a developed community such as Winchester, open lands are increasingly valuable and have been targeted for their ability to protect watershed areas and to promote water recreation. Promoting land management will expand the existing system of town trails, and help halt dumping and land abuse.

Public education will be another priority, and the commission plans to sponsor nature walks and to develop public information programs.

Acknowledging the town's great interest in recreation, there are proposals addressing the needs of all age groups. Additional tot lots are envisioned, as well as playing fields, fitness areas for senior citizens, lighted fields for nighttime use, and areas specifically designed for the handicapped.

The Aberjona River, perhaps the town's most significant natural resource, has been singled out for special attention. The town grew up along its banks, and the highest population density, bordered by Cambridge Street and Highland Avenue/Forest Street, lies within easy walking distance of it.

Yet open space in this area is subject to transfer by the board of selectmen. Conservation easements or legal changes in the manner of holding these areas would create a green belt as a permanent preserve in the middle of the town's most densely populated area.

Protecting, preserving and upgrading the entire Aberjona would extend this belt, distributing open space throughout the town.

To manage and maintain these locations in a professional manner, funding has been approved for a part time conservation administrator. The commission will also request financing for future land purchases, 80 percent of which will reimbursed by the state through a grant program.

Winchester has the good fortune to be rich in natural resources. If we follow the plan and manage growth intelligently, we can lay a foundation for strong environmental protection, and affect our quality of life far into the future.

Once development is complete, there will be few opportunities to undo what has been done.

Town meeting was uninformative

TO THE EDITOR:

This past session of town meeting has been the most disorganized, fragmented, uninformative, confused mess I've ever witnessed.

There is no question in my mind the best decisions for the town couldn't possibly be made in such a confused atmosphere.

It was like pulling teeth without anesthesia, from the few of us active members that really tried by asking questions, to get the facts presented.

The problem, in my judgment, is incomplete presentations, lack of leadership, lack of knowledge in town government, lack of interest and talent that exists on the various boards.

It was discouraging to have observed committees pitting themselves against one another, acutally putting the membership in a box without any options to choose from, shutting off debate, not allowing reconsideration, giving away portions of park and school land for subsidized single-family housing, rezoning a portion of the First Baptist Church building for apartments and not explaining the content of the collective bargaining packages to town meeting.

These were among a few actions taken that were very disturbing to me.

The town manager and the executive director of the Winchester Housing Authority, paid employeees, were, for the most part, making the presentations and answering questions as best they could. Why didn't our elected officials?

At one point, the moderator had to bring the meeting to a halt so that the various boards could get their act together.

The solution, in my judgment, is recall, possibly. Our town is crumbling. Let's start fresh. Make it a high priority to encourage and solicit interested, talented individuals to run for public office.

The town is being destroyed. Its reputation and character are at stake. Start giving of yourselves, talking and acting to try and turn this major problem around before it's too late.

Physical therapists welcome addition

TO THE EDITOR:

An article in the May 29 edition highlighted a very welcome addition to Winchester's pretigious medical community — two registered physical therapists, William J. Antonelli and Vincent J. Buscemi, who opened a practice in March.

The many patients already receiving services know the clinic's name and address. I'm sure other residents would like to know how to contact them. Somehow, the name of their clinic was omitted. It is Orthopaedics Plus, located at the Cutter Village Complex, 780 Main St., phone 729-8833.

Teenagers are looking great!

TO THE EDITOR:

Has anyone else noticed how great the Winchester teenagers have been looking lately? I have!

As my kitchen window overlooks Church Street, I have the opportunity to see the young people going and coming from school. The smaller children have always looked well-dressed and continue to do so. They are very cute!

The change from jeans on the junior and senior high school students has been very noticeable lately. The bright colored and white slacks with attractive tops and a few eye-catching dresses have been a pleasant addition to the scene.

We have heard constant criticism of "sloppy kids" in the past but I, for one, believe Winchester is blessed with a fine, clean-cut groups of boys and girls.

Congratulations to all of them!

Cynthia Laraway Barone

P.S. Speaking of young people, it was delightful to see a picture of editor and assistant editor George and Maureen in last week's paper.

Baptists thank town meeting

TO THE EDITOR:

The members of the First Baptist Church of Winchester wish to express their appreciation to the town meeting members for their thoughtful consideration and approval of Article 29 of the warrant.

The overwhelming vote of approval of the rezoning of a portion of the church property will enable us to continue our plans to build eleven condominiums in the Washington Street side of our building.

As a result of the action of the town meeting, the First Baptist Church can look forward with pleasure and confidence to continuing indefinitely its 135 years of service to the people of Winchester, enjoying good relations with our neighbors, and providing some important housing opportunities to a few of our aging citizens who want to live in town without the responsibility of maintaining houses too large for their needs.

This positive vote has been most encouraging to those of us who have worked long hours to devise a plan to meet the needs of both the town and the church.

Senior prom helpers thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

The class officers of the senior class of the high school wish to extend a belated thank you to those people and organizations which helped to make our "Tent" Prom a huge success.

They include: Mahoney's Rocky Ledge, Women's Club, Parents Association, Mr. Dan Serieka, Mr. Bob Taylor, Peterson Chair, Dr. Norberg, all chaperones, parent decorating crews, Mr. Brown, Bob Amadeo, Mr. Cruwys, Mr. Bill Moto, Officer Dan McGee, Mr. Chad Maurer, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Herlihy, Mr. Pirani, and the school administration.

Without the support of all of those mentioned above and anyone we may have mistakenly overlooked, our efforts could not have culminated into an unforgettable senior prom.

Thank you all again!

Sincerely,
Bonnie-Jeanne Casey
President Class of '86

P.S. Flowers that were ordered for our prom chaperones were neglected to be distributed. These flowers, however, brought much happiness to the patients of the Aberjona Nursing Home.

Arcari: Thanks for Town Day

TO THE EDITOR:

To the Town Day committee, sponsors, volunteers, participants and the weatherman, a thousand "thank yous" for making Town Day 1986 a smashing success. With everyone's support all the events, shows and contests were enjoyed by all age groups.

Special thanks to Char Peterman, Cathy Alexander, Sandy Rodgers, Cydney Ambrose, Bruce Brown, Bob Deering, Ed Esposito, Allan Eyden, Bob Gooch, Scott Henderson, Bill Jervey, Ralph Johnson, Dick Malcolm, David Pywell, Bill Swiger, and Joe Vitka. These fantastic people were the backbone of Town Day.

This year's Town Day sponsors were: The Winchester Star, Henderson Stationers, Purity Supreme, Winchester LTD Jewelers, Bonnell Ford, the Kiwanis Club, Mahoney's Rocky Ledge, the Winchester Savings Bank;

Fells Hardware, Calumet Realty Trust, Ann Blackham Real Estate, the Bank of Boston, Saltmarsh Insurance, the Winchester Cooperative Bank, Wilde Insurance;

Lottus Plumbing, the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, William Cummings, Peterson Chair Inc., Kupjian CPA, the Winn Corporation, Cambridgeport Savings Bank, Baybank, Domino's Pizza, the Rotary Club, Mystic Valley Wheelworks;

Denis Slater, Allied Tech, Dick Young, Winchester Boat Club and Brigham's. We appreciate their support through volunteers, donations and/or supplies.

Our appreciation to the board of selectman for allowing us to use Winchester center for the entire day, and to all the town departments for their support and assistance.

"Thank you, thank you", to all the volunteers — you enabled us to run all the events, games, boat rides, and booths; to the Jazz Band members, Miss Miller and Mr. Kontoff — for capping off the evening with your wonderful music; and to the Winchester School art departments — your show was excellent.

Thanks, everyone!!!

Sincerely,
Noreen Arcari

Ruffles have their place — and they're making a comeback

By TERRY MAROTTA

Ruffles are making a big comeback, I've noticed lately.

Used to be an older woman wouldn't be caught dead in ruffles 'cause they made her look like an older woman.

Used to be when you thought of ruffles, you pictured someone like Emily Dickinson flitting about that big house of hers, sewing poems into her bureau drawers and talking to herself in free verse.

She was the ruffles type, Emily Dickinson was.

Martha Washington was too, nice plain Martha who as a seasoned and wealthy older woman took old George on with his grim set mouth. They all wore ruffles back in the Washingtons' time. You look at paintings from that era, you wonder if humans didn't come stuffed full of ruffles, foaming up at their shirt-fronts and spilling forth from their cuffs the way they did.

I love ruffles myself. Have loved 'em since I was two and my Mom bought me my first pair of ruffled undies. I remember like it was yesterday pulling up my skirts at the fancy restaurant to show them to passersby, and Mom pulling them down again, explaining that this wasn't the sort of thing you did with the organdy bubble of your new dress floating about your little legs and the bracelet of seed pearls curled around your fat baby wrist.

They were just so pretty, those ruffled undies. Seemed a shame to keep 'em to myself.

Stores like Frederick's of Hollywood have amassed large fortunes on this very principle. You can go into any one of these places and see dozens of tiny garments, all smaller than your average face-cloth, and all sporting at the borders a naughty giggle of ruffles.

Women like ruffles, is the thing. I share with my husband a bedroom where the lace borders of the spread are ruffled, the throw pillows are ruffled, even the silver in the turn-of-the-century comb-and-brush set is ruffled, conjured as it is into flowers and tendrils and ornamental scrolls. It's a paradise of ruffles, this bedroom. It's a bower. My husband hates it.

Most men have a deep ambivalence toward ruffles. They prefer spare clean lines, on the whole.

My friend married a man like this. He was a good-looking man, the kind who acts hurt if folks turn to look at his date instead of him. He'd pushed along through life, getting his way most of the time. He got his way with my friend when he insisted on a real man's bedroom. The rug was red. The curtains and spread were black. The walls were black. It looked like the inside of a sports car. Needless to say, it had no ruffles.

The marriage lasted eighteen months. I saw its end the minute I laid eyes upon that room.

Ruffles have a place in the home, I say. If it's spare clean lines a man wants, let him go stand in the garage.

Ruffles are civilized; civilized and civilizing.

Some of the nicest things in life have ruffles, and not just the panties on tiny girls. The kind of curtains found hanging in kitchens that real pies come from almost always have ruffles. The edges of steamed clams have ruffles. Roses certainly have 'em. Even the human brain has ruffles, with all its fancy gathers and curls.

When I think of ruffles I think of a thing that means to go a place but likes getting there the long way. A thing that prefers the scenic route.

Take the coast of Maine, for instance. According to figures found in the World Almanac, the general outline of Maine's coast adds up to 228 miles. You take a piece of string, though, and go in and out each inlet and bay, you end up with a coastline 3,478 miles long.

Ain't nothing on this earth nicer than Maine's ruffled coast, is there?

Looks like God might be a lady after all.

Praise for the dog officer

TO THE EDITOR:

This week, the unplanned-for arrival of a new "member of the family' brought home to me again how the extra care and devotion of those who faithfully serve this town assure us a quality of life that is second to none.

Having made ever effort to find a home for a loving little dog I found abandoned, and after one week finding myself exhausted - and my own large dog licking her chops in anticipation of a good meal of Corgi, I sadly called Nick Molea to come and take the new arrival to the pound.

Now all who know Nick are acquainted with his pleasant, calm manner that instantly tames wildest beast and neurotic human alike as he efficiently goes about the task at hand, and in an instant Nick and my little stray were gone.

We were desolate at the loss of this small unwanted little creature which wanted nothing but to wag its tail and smother us with love - and after much agonizing, I called Nick the next evening.

He had just started his dinner - but said he'd meet me at the pound in two minutes, which he did, pouring rain and all. In a flash the little dog was now ours for good.

I had never seen the interior of the rude steel building with the Peanuts cartoons on the outside.

It is so clean - almost inviting in the manner of a western tack room. It is well lit, and I noticed a large fan in one wall directed toward the stalls to move cooling air over the dogs on hot days. Even with the all-day downpour, I noticed the interior was completely dry. My own dog had been given a special blanket, and was aromatic with flea and tick powder.

I think my only criticism of the pound is that it is way too small to contain anything but a token of the strays in Winchester, and must make the work difficult at times.

I would like to close with praise of Nick Molea and the fine and wonderfully humane work he carries on virtually unnoticed, from day to day.

As one sees him consistently working so sensitively with God's so-called lesser creatures, it is obvious he is a true "Winchester Star."

Sincerely,
Daniel T. Chane

Boys from ABC House take first sea voyages

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Filled with dramamine to guard against seasickness, all 10 young men from the ABC (A Better Chance) House in Winchester recently took their first sea voyages to Nova Scotia.

Dr. and Mrs. Paul Kwan, the new host family to ABC program participant Dashun Davis of Chicago, took the boys to Nova Scotia, Canada, for the Memorial Day weekend.

"We had been with all the boys for a few days before, during the hurricane last fall, but I was again impressed that this is such a nice group of boys," Mrs. Kwan said.

The Kwans picked up the boys after school May 23 and drove to Portland, Maine, to board the M/S Scotia Prince for an overnight cruise to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

For most of the boys, the expedition was their first outside Winchester. For all, it was Sea Voyage No. 1.

During dinner, a cake was presented to two of the boys, Anthony Mercado and Ivan Calaff, both 1986 graduates of Winchester High School. The ship's staff accommodatingly sang "Happy Graduation."

The ABC young men learned from conversations with the crew that working on a ship is not all fun, but they enjoyed the Scotia Prince's singers and dancers before discovering the joy of falling asleep in a berth, lulled by the gentle swaying of waves.

The ship arrived in Yarmouth the next morning and the group drove to Halifax and the Nova Scotian Hotel. Later, all got a private tour of the Black Cultural Center in Halifax from its curator, a Mr. Bishop.

He explained the contributions of blacks to all of North America and specifically to Canada, where many runaway slaves went to escape from the United States more than 100 years ago.

Later, the group attended an Acadian festival with French songs and dances, as well as some music from Hungary, Germany, Russia and Scandinavia.

One of the ABC participants, Shaun Epps of St. Paul, had studied French in Winchester High School, and was able to understand most songs and skits. The day closed with study and pizza.

Sunday morning the group visited the British Fort Citadel in Halifax, saw a film about its importance during several wars and watched the noon firing of the cannon. Each person got a souvenir T-shirt.

The Nova Scotia Museum of History was the next stop and offered a variety of historical lore, Indian history and natural history of the maritime province.

Another study period followed to insure that all school assignments would be ready for school Tuesday.

An amusement park and miniature golf, a new game for most ABC participants, occupied the evening.

Monday the Kwans drove back to Yarmouth for a day cruise to Portland. More festivities honored two young men, Epps and Ralph Hernandez, who received birthday cakes and the obligatory song from the cruise staff.

During the cruise, the group tried to fly kites from the top deck and got friendly, if not necessarily helpful, advice from several other passengers. The boys got souvenir T-shirts from the ship's gift shop.

"The boys all had a great educational and adventurous experience. They promised to study hard, go on to college and follow professional careers to be able to take more trips," Mrs. Kwan said.

She also said the boys were very polite but she was especially interested in their interaction. "It's something to behold. They chide each other all the time but they're good friends," she laughed.

Although the trip was not sponsored by the ABC Program of Winchester, the group had the permission of the directors to participate. The program, however, needs the support of the community, the Kwans said.

Various fund-raising efforts are involved but one, a bottle drive, is scheduled Saturday, June 14, at the Sons of Italy Hall. The public is asked to contribute deposit cans and bottles on the way to the transfer station.

Another special trip, this one to Old Orchard Beach, is scheduled June 21-28 when Ellen Severino, cook at the ABC House, will accompany the group and the Kwan family.

Applications invited for weatherization

Residents of Winchester who meet federal eligibility guidelines will receive weatherization free of charge.

Both homeowners and tenants are eligible.

Applicants are eligible if their total annual gross household income is less than 175 percent of the poverty level. For a one-person household, the maximum income would be $9,380 and for a two-person household, it would be $12,670.

Households with three people are eligible if the total income is $15,960 and homes with four people can earn up to $19,250. Other maximums can be calculated by adding $3,290 for each additional person.

In addition, any household receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits is automatically eligible.

Typical weatherization projects include weatherstripping doors and windows, insulating pipes and hot water heaters, insulating attics and sidewalls, installing storm windows and servicing heating systems.

Interested people may call Tri-CAP at 322-4190 for more information or applications.

Sachems baseball season comes to quick end

Everett wins 6-1

By DAVE DEMARCO

Winchester High School's baseball season came to an abrupt end last Wednesday when the Sachems fell 6-1 to Everett High.

Although the game was a pitchers' duel through most of six innings, Sachem ace Tim Budrewicz never had his sharpest stuff going. Budrewicz managed to strike out nine of the Crimson Tide, but fell behind the hitters during the latter part of the afternoon.

Winchester scored first when catcher Danny Costello blasted a Joe Santagate fastball somewhere in the vicinity of the art room at McCall Junior High. The hit was a definitive homer the second it left the bat.

While the Sachems kept Everett scoreless through five innings, they were themselves stymied by Santagate's 12-strikeout performance.

Then, in the top of the sixth, Everett's Sal Cifala took advantage of a Budrewicz error and sent the ball deep into centerfield, tying the game at one apiece.

The floodgate opened on the Sachems in the seventh inning as the Crimson Tide poured in four runs to take a 5-1 lead.

Shawn McElhinney, who replaced Budrewicz in the seventh, could not put out the fire as he walked three, gave up one run and was soon replaced by Al Nasson.

Santagate earned his complete victory less through power than through pinpoint control along the outside portion of the plate. Besides Costello's early homer, only Pete DelVecchio and Mike White enjoyed moderate success against Everett's ace hurler.

Both White and DelVecchio were two-for-four on the afternoon.

"We just couldn't hit him," summed up Sachem right fielder Moose Morton at the afternoon's close.

'Adventure Connection' planned for teen summer

Boys and girls in junior high (who have completed grade 7) and senior high school are eligible.

The first weekly session, beginning June 23, will find participants on a bicycle trip in Martha's Vineyard. Activities will include sunning, shopping and biking around the island, making this three-day, two-night overnight trip full of fun and laughter. Bike riding over 50 miles throughout the island and making various stops at beaches and towns will make for a well-rounded trip. Last year's bicycle trip was "a marvelous success and this year will only get better," the recreation department promised.

Sailing, a new program will begin June 30. Boys and girls will travel by van to Castle Island. Each participant will learn the fundamental skills, techniques and sailing terminology. Each day will be filled with learning, sailing and fun.

Computer games are next. July 7 will be a computer games and workshop week. Students will develop and learn skills on Apple IIE and MacIntosh computers.

July 14 begins a new and creative "Theatre Week." Campers will be encouraged to become actors and actresses by expressing themselves and gaining exposure through actual "hands-on" experience. This evening program will help students develop and enhance acting skills. Exposure to set design and improvisational acting will be featured. This program begins July 14 and ends July 18, meeting from 6 to 9 p.m.

The next session, July 21, introduces students to another overnight adventure. Saco River will be the challenge with canoeing and camping for three days and two nights. Pitching tent in a different place every day will provide a new adventure for everyone. This overnight leaves July 21 and returns July 23.

The July 28 session encourages camera bugs to utilize picture-taking skills by joining the "Photography Workshop Week." A week-long instructional course will be held in the morning and use of the darkroom will be provided in the afternoon. Boys and girls will learn to develop their own pictures, learn the darkroom techniques and proper camera use along with some advanced trick photography. This week will end Aug. 1.

The finale of the Adventure Connection program will be "T.V. Production Week." Beginning Aug. 4, this dynamic course will teach kids to direct, use the ENA portable video equipment and learn interviewing techniques. Interviewing residents and using the camera around the center of Winchester are planned. This week runs Aug. 4-8.

Day trips, aside from the one-week sessions, will be held each Thursday. These day trips are highly recommended to teenagers who are unable to make the weekly sessions and can join for a day. Those who attend the weekly sessions are also encouraged to register for the one day trips. These one day trips include:

Project Adventure ropes course, June 26;

Deep sea fishing, July 10;

Whale watching, July 17;

Good Harbor Beach, July 24;

New York trip, July 31; and Aquaboggin Land, Aug. 7.

Interested individuals are encouraged to sign up as soon as possible as limited space is available.

The Winchester recreation department is located in McCall Junior High School, beside the gym. The office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. If you have any questions, please call the recreation department at 721-7125.

The weatherman tried to put a damper on Media Day activities for the seventh annual $275,000 Boston Five Classic but failed to faze everyone at the Sheraton Tara resort at Ferncroft in Danvers. Defending champion Judy Clark Dickinson was on hand with Robert J. Spiller, left, of Winchester, president of Boston Five and chairman of the July 17-20 tournament, and Ken Hodge of Lynnfield, former Bruins star now executive director of the Massachusetts Special Olympics.

Sachem pair join classic Shriner game

Winchester High School seniors Mike White and Dennis Clarke join a host of all-star athletes in the eighth annual Shriners High School Football Classic June 21 at Harvard Stadium. Kick off time is 4 p.m.

Tickets are $4 at the door, $3 in advance, and $2 for groups of 50 or more. Proceeds from the game help support the 22 Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children in North America.

Unbeaten boys blank Wakefield

BY THEO DE VRIEZE
Special to the Star

Winchester's unbeaten boys-under-16 soccer team beat Wakefield Sunday 3-0 in a tough game.

Six minutes into the match Vandy French scored his 11th goal of the season on a fine feed from Paul Erbafina. The Kicks kept pressing, with Rob Kean seeing some of his powerful shots tipped over the crossbar by Wakefield's goalie.

With under five minutes left to play, Ken Fowler and Mike McGeehan each put in a goal.

The defense did another fine job. Wingbacks David Ducharme and Mark Bortman, centerbacks Stephen Reeve and Steve Goudsouzian, and goalie Andy Shao allowed Wakefield few chances.

The Kicks, 9-0, move on to the Natick tournament and then to the state championships.

Teamen doing well

Another Winchester team, the division 2 Teamen, are also doing well. With two games remaining, the Teamen are 5-0-3 and very close to a berth in Division 2 state competition.

A Grand Day For Graduates

The rain stopped and it turned out to be a grand day for the Winchester High School class of 1986 — and the Boston Celtics, who lurked in the back of many minds Sunday afternoon.

The Celtics won the NBA championship and the seniors were "elected" as graduates, in the simile employed by student union president Lulu Kermond in her commencement speech at Manchester Field.

Bonnie-Jeanne Casey, class president, thanked parents, families and teachers for support. She noted that her class was the first "confined" to Winchester for class activities and congratulated the class for holding a formal dance at the town hall and "capping" the prom with fireworks.

School committee member Edward O'Connell also congratulated the seniors, including those who won high honors, those who didn't and those "who had to be dragged." He urged seniors never to stop striving."

Scholarship awards for 1986 included:

Philip J. Blank Scholarship Fund: Marianne B. Murray.

Forrest J. Brackett Fund: Panagiota Kapanika (Penny).

Jere A. Downs Trust: Christopher J. Bett, David W. Bonner, Christine E. Osborne, Deborah A. Perritano, Edward R. Pigott and Laura Smith.

EnKa Scholarship: Shawn J. Bonner, Michael K. McKnight, Thomas C. Pigott and Denise M. Wheaton.

Herbert Goff Scholarship: Susan A. McCarter and William H. McCarter.

Laurel Ingraham Haines Fund: Marianne B. Murray.

Margaret Hood Fund: John F. Herlihy Jr.

Winnifrede S. and Harold F. Meyer Trust: John E. Barbuto and Derek J. Binding.

Lawrence Owen Fund: Zoe M. Layden.

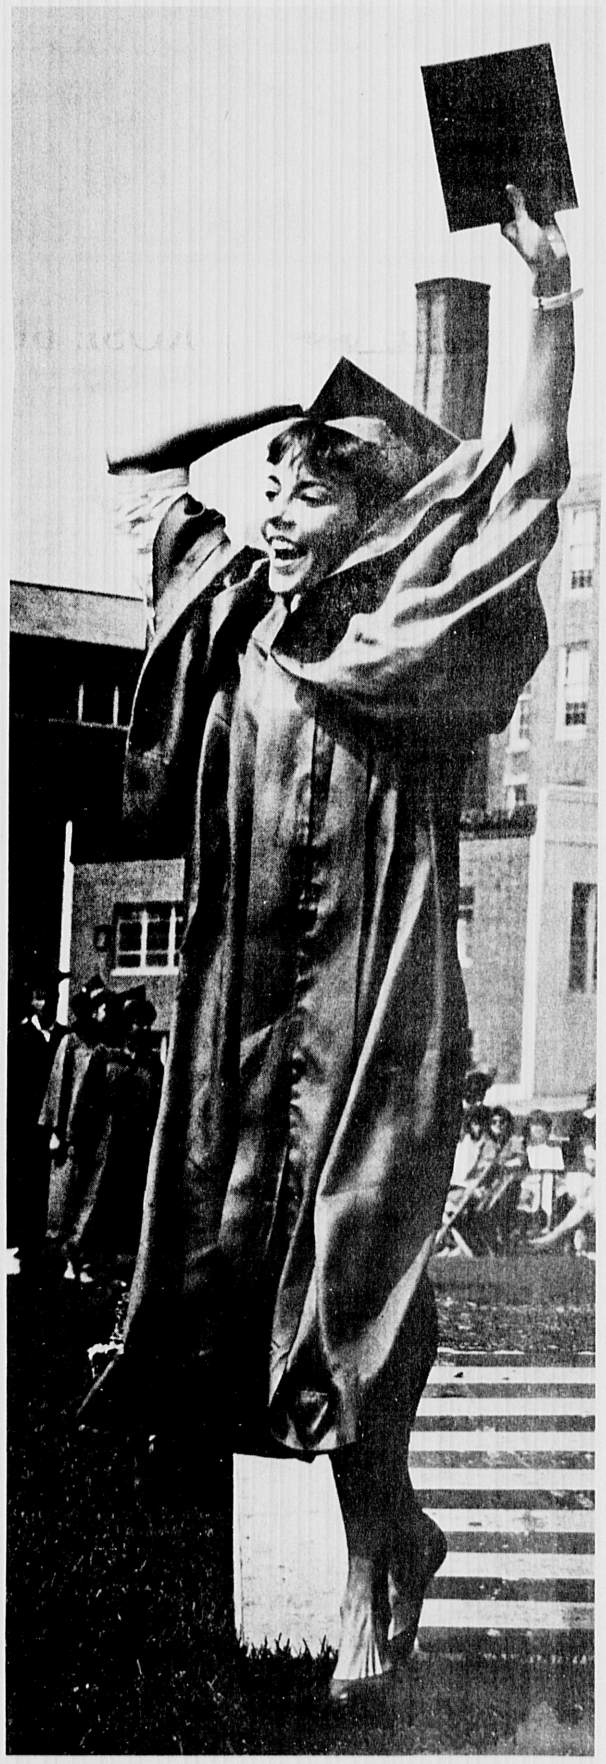

Frank Provinzano Fund: David R. DellaGrote.

Leonor Rich Fund: Panagiota Kapanika.

Veterans of Foreign Wars: John E. Barbuto.

Winchester Art Association Scholarship: Michael R. McKnight.

Winchester Rotary Scholarship: Brian D. McCarthy.

Cynthia McHugh is obviously thrilled with the outcome of Sunday's Winchester High School graduation. (Paul Drake photo)

Student union leader says graduates 'were elected'

By LULU KERMOND
Student Union President

When I was preparing to speak today, I asked myself what should I tell 300 people on my graduation day.

It was then that I began to look back at previous speeches I had made for the student union.

The one that stuck out in my mind was my campaign speech for the election of student union president. When I wrote that, I sat down and tried to list all of my personal qualities which would convince people I was the most capable person for the job.

I made lists of my successes and failures over the past 17 years and was glad that at end, the successes had outnumbered the failures.

In the same way that I had to prove myself worthy of people's votes for student union president, each of us has had to campaign and run for the office of graduate of Winchester High School today.

All of us for the past 18 years or so have been prepared by our parents, our teachers, and our peers to become better people, to learn to strive for goals, and to aim for the highest standards — whether we were taking the SAT to get accepted to the college of our choice, running a mile under six minutes to make a particular team, being a faithful and loyal employee to earn a bonus, or perhaps proving ourselves trustworthy to parents to have the curfew raised to 12:30.

All of these tests were the milestones of our campaign to reach this day. These experiences have taught us to be reliable, dependable, mature, and independent young adults.

These students behind me today have proven by their presence, they are worthy of votes. Today, however, is unique in that it is one of the only days in our lives that we can be utterly selfish, sit back, and congratulate ourselves for this praiseworthy accomplishment.

This cycle of proving ourselves will start again, but this is our day to shine and we shall enjoy it.

As Ralph Waldo Emerson put it: "Life is not measured by how much one gives, but what one gives" and we, the class of 1986, have all given something very special to this graduation.

Today our campaign is complete and we have been elected graduates.

Tomorrow, however, is what we must anticipate; we have duties to fulfill to ourselves and to society. We are extremely fortunate to have been given the opportunity of such a fine education at Winchester High School.

We are now well equipped to give, as well as to gain something from society. We were elected graduates because others agreed we were deserving; however, the only vote that truly matters is the one inside ourselves.

With this we can go forward in life with confidence and make a difference in the world. As newly elected graduates we should live up to our expectations, fulfill our campaign promises, and reach out and grasp our dreams and make them come true — whether it is college, the military, a vocation, or employment.

As one poet put it, "If you do not enrich society, you have impoverished yourself" and without this enrichment after graduation, our success today will diminish tomorrow.

Congratulations to everyone here today.

Thank you.

Student class leader says 'thanks'

By BONNIE-JEANNE CASEY
Senior Class President

It is a pleasure for me, as president of the senior class, to welcome you, parents, teachers, fellow graduates to the 1986 graduation of Winchester High School.

Yesterday we were high school students; today we're graduates. We are crossing a threshold into a new way of life and what better way is there to gracefully accept a change than for us to take a moment and reflect on what we've done and where we've been.

We, the class of '86, are unique! In contrast to other classes who met and united in the ninth or eighth grades, we became a cohesive unit at McCall in the seventh. The extra time we've shared together has allowed us to strengthen our class spirit and our friendships. Our unity has carried over into our functions.

This year, in our magazine fundraiser, we earned more money per person than any previous class. We are the first senior class to be confined to Winchester for all class events but we proved to ourselves that we were a support system ready to organize and implement our creative ideas.

What other class would dream of having a semi-formal in the town hall or a Senior Toga in early winter? We even capped off our senior prom with, who would have believed it, a fireworks display.

All of our successes, however, would not have been possible without the help of many adults.

Thank you, parents and families, for the love and patience you showed us when we perhaps came home cranky. Thank you, guidance counselors, for helping us to establish our priorities when we were confused about whether to take accounting or psychology.

Thank you, teachers, for the knowledge you passed on to us and at times poured into us when our attention was, perhaps, less than focused.

Thank you, administrators and class advisors like Mr. Larocco and Ms. Mulkerin, who enthusiastically welcomed daily interaction with us. They made my job along with the duties of the other class officers, John Serieka, Maura Dobbins, and Julie Guarnotta, easier.

(Please see SPEAKER, page 14)

Town has 11 in vocational graduation

Graduation ceremonies at the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocation School in Wakefield included 11 seniors from Winchester.

A total of 310 students received diplomas June 7 from superintendent-director Thomas F. Markham Jr.

John F. Looney Jr., district school committee member from Winchester, said Winchester graduates were:

Adam Abrams, Leonard Adams, Matthew Berg, Timothy Bourque, John DeCologero, Brian Foley, Robert Gooch, Peter Gurrisi, Timothy Lee, Kathleen O'Leary and Steven Schuurman.

Scholarship Foundation President, David Mortensen, today announced that the fundraising drive will be concluded by June 20 and urged all those who have not yet sent in their contributions to do so.

"The support of the scholarship program depends upon the gifts and generosity of local citizens, which can hardly be made to a more worthwhile cause than enabling a promising young man or woman from Winchester to complete his or her education," he said. "We are very grateful for the gifts so far, but more is needed."

Contributions may be sent to Winchester Scholarship Foundation, P.O. Box 174, Winchester 01890.

Speaker says thanks

Today we celebrate a special time in life; yet, as we reflect we do not forget those who have left us.

We greatly miss Lauren Lavey, Amy Craig, and Jimmy Plunket and although they are not here with us, they are with us in spirit and we carry within us a part of each of them.

Similiarly, we carry away with us today something of each other.

A friend of mine once told me that what she remembers most about every experience is the people she shared it with. Now I understand what she meant.

Without friendships, whether they be among peers or teachers, Winchester High School would not have been such a special place. As we celebrate together today, let us remind ourselves that with every ending comes a new beginning.

Let us find happiness today in knowing that we will find new friends who will join the old in our hearts. Let us look forward to the challenges we face as we leave WHS to discover not only the world outside but also the force and spirit within ourselves, and although we shall all pursue different paths, wherever we go, all of us share a common bond.

We are the class of 1986, and we shall carry all that we have learned and all that we have experiences here, at Winchester High School, with us for a lifetime.

Again, I welcome all of you who join us today in our rejoicing.

Thank you.

Mouchawar gets Northeastern prize

Gabriel Mouchawar of Highland Avenue in Winchester received the Sears B. Condit Award from Anthony N. Penna, Northeastern University provost and senior vice-president for academic affairs, during the university's recent honors day banquet. Mouchawar is a senior in the College of Business Administration.

The Condit Awards, established in 1940 through the generosity of Sears B. Condit, annually reward the university's top-ranking seniors.

Phi Kappa Phi, the national interdisciplinary honor society, sponsors the annual event in recognition of Northeastern students with outstanding scholarly achievements.

Ground breaking at Jenks Center

At noon on May 16, people gathered to witness the breaking of ground for the Jenks Senior Center Expansion.

Town and state officials, representatives from organizations and businesses, and seniors attended the ceremony. The observation of this important milestone in the history of the Jenks Center will be long remembered.

Dr. Richard Norberg, chairman of the board of trustees, Dr. Leonor M. Rich, president of the Winchester Seniors Association, and the honorable Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr., made appropriate remarks.

The silver spade that opened the ground on a cold December day in 1976, was used to dig the soft May earth as a symbol that will add to the heritage of future seniors as well as providing additional space for meeting present needs for expanded programs.

The presence of Mrs. James Jenks Jr., benefactress to all seniors, added dignity and grace to this important occasion as she loosened sod where a new wing will be erected.

Coping with pain set for June 20

Dr. Robert M. Smith, chairperson of the Jenks Senior Center Health Committee, has arranged an informational session on understanding the nature of pain and our ability to cope with such distress.

Friday, June 20 from 10:30 to noon in the meeting room, Dr. Gerald M. Aranoff of the Boston Pain Center will discuss pain management.

In recent years there has been extensive research conducted by several medical centers in all aspects of pain. Dr. Aranoff will share these developments in this field and his professional experience with us.

A severe ice storm prevented his visits to the Jenks Senior Center February 19. The public is invited to attend this informative session June 20. Please sign up at the reception desk at the center if you plan to attend.

Jenks hosts diabetic talk

Maryann Downs, nutritionist at Winchester Hospital, will return to Jenks Senior Center at 10:30 a.m. June 19 to conduct a second workshop for known diabetics.

The emphasis will be on menu planning for well-balanced, nutritious meals for those who are afflicted with diabetes.

Mrs. James Jenks Jr., left, Dr. Leonor M. Rich, center, and Richard Norberg took part groundbreaking for the Jenks Senior Center's expansion program.

Senior prom set for June 14

The monthly dance at Jenks Senior Center will feature a senior prom on Saturday, June 14 from 8 p.m. to midnight. Dress-up is optional. Dick Brogna and his musicians will supply the music that will be a reminder of the days of college graduations.

Jenks hosts lunch, June 18

On June 18 at noon, Helen Hodgdon, food coordinator at the Jenks Senior Center, will serve one of her famous soup and sandwich luncheons with the assistance of her able kitchen committee.

Representatives from Congressman Markey's office will discuss briefly Medicare funding. Following the meal, Mr. Edwin Francis, professor of Romance Languages at Salem Teachers' College, will be the guest pianist.

Francis is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, majoring in piano. Following service in the U.S. Army, he gave concerts in Italy where he was stationed during the war.

On his return, he attended Harvard University where he obtained his bachelors and masters degrees in languages.

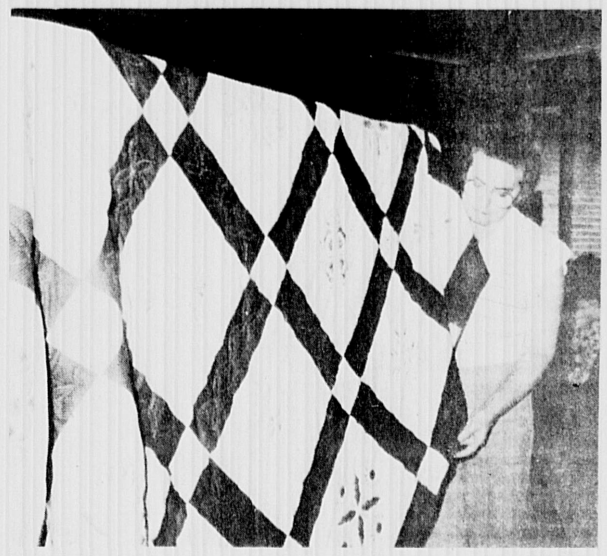

AARP chapter to get report

Lexington Chapter 1533 of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will hold an installation luncheon Tuesday, June 24, at Cottage Crest restaurant in Waltham. AARP assistant state director Francis Magurn of Concord will install 1986-87 chapter officers and report on the national convention he attended in May in California.

Catherine Boyd, Bowman School teacher, will be an honored guest. Her class participated in a special pen pal project sponsored by Lexington Chapter 1533.

Tickets may be purchased until June 15 by phoning Lillian Eckart at 862-5833. No tickets will be sold or money collected at the door.

Persons 50 and over who are members of the national AARP are eligible to join the local chapter. For further information call 862-8698, 862-4104, or 862-2332.

Ann Ciampa, chairperson of the Ways and Means Fair at the Jenks Center, displays a hand-stencilled quilt made by Jane Norberg's stitchery class. A lucky ticket holder will become the proud owner of the quilt.

HEALTH BEAT

Choate-Symmes honors Winchester employees

One of the highlights of National Hospital Week for Choate-Symmes Health Services occurred recently when the orgainzation honored employees for their dedicated service and professionalism.

Employees from the Choate and Symmes Hospital Divisions and the Regional Health Center in Wilmington were recognized during 'Employee Recognition Night' at the Burlington Marriott.

In a departure from previous years, the service award ceremony was combined with the presentations of Commendable and Presenteeism Awards and a review of the 12 "Employee of the Month" award winners of 1985.

Paul L. Downey, Choate-Symmes president, extended congratulations to all employees whose service records entitled them to recognition this year.

"Full time employees are recognized for the total number of years served, and this year, we honor 158 full time employees who have accumulated 1,580 years of service."

"We also pay special tribute to our part time employees, who in many cases, have been with us more years than currently being recognized because of the nature of part time staffing and former recognition policies," he said.

Donald Reenstierna, chairman of the board of trustees, thanked all employees for their flexibility in adjusting to the dramatic changes in health care that have affected all health care deliverers.

Winchester residents, all honored in the category of service awards were:

William Palmer, Symmes Nursing, 15 years;

Jean McDonough, RN, Symmes Nursing, 10 years;

Kathleen Barnes, assistant director, Regional Health Center in Wilmington, five years;

Marylou Colozzi, LPN, Symmes Nursing, five years;

Michael Erdos, MD, director of the Emergency/Walk-In Care Center at Symmes, five years;

Elizabeth Stevens, Choate Nursing, five years; and Francis Welch, Choate Facilities Management, five years.

Red Cross needs drivers

Additional volunteer drivers are needed for the Transportation Services of the Eastern Middlesex Region of the Red Cross for the summer.

This service provides rides to medical appointments for clients who have no other means of transportation. Drivers must be 18, have no current traffic violations, and able to commit themselves to being on call at least ½ day per week.

Interested volunteers should call the Melrose office of the American Red Cross, 665-1351, for an application or additional information.

Hospice Care sets memorial

Hospice Care will hold its second annual memorial service at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 17, at the First Parish Unitarian-Universalist Church, 630 Massachusetts Ave., Arlington.

All who have been involved with Hospice Care as friends and families of persons served by the program, as providers of care to hospice families, or as supporters from the community are cordially invited to attend.

According to Jean M. Trainor, coordinator of Hospice Care's bereavement program, the evening has been planned as "a time to reflect upon and celebrate the lives of those we have cared for together."

Hospice Care is a program designed to meet the needs of terminally ill persons and their families. For further information, feel welcome to call the Hospice Care office at 648-3172.

Arthritis group to discuss nutrition

The Burlington/Woburn area arthritis support group will sponsor an information meeting from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, June 17, at the Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn.

The topic "Nutrition and Arthritis" will be presented by Betty McCarty, clinical dietitian at Symmes Hospital in Arlington.

The program is free of charge and open to the public. All are invited.

Stress course for nurses set

Winchester Hospital is offering a stress management course, "Caring for the Caregiver," to help nurses learn to cope with "burnout" and other job-related problems.

Taught by Margaret Kerns, R.N., of the Nightingale House, the course will cover how nurses can deal with the emotional and physical stresses of their profession, and also offer ideas on how to verbalize problems and develop coping mechanisms.

The program will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday, June 16, in the hospital Kingsbury Seminar Room, and will also be repeated June 30 from 6 to 10 p.m.

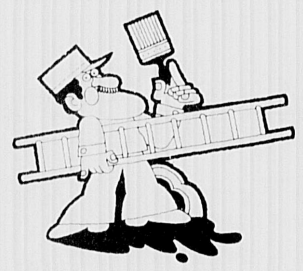

Preregistration is required and 3.5 CEUs will be awarded to nurses taking the program, which is free to nursing professionals.

For more information and for preregistration, call Susan Pineault, R.N., at Winchester Hospital, 729-9000, ext. 3200.

Charles Frizzell and Kathleen McKenna

The Winchester Star

SOCIAL NEWS

Kathleen Mckenna and C. Frizzell are wed

Kathleen McKenna and Charles Frizzell were married last fall at St. Eulalia's Church. The Rev. John Swencki officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Patrick McKenna of Winchester. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Frizzell of Winchester.

The bride wore a "Demetrios for Ilyssa" designer gown made of silk and taffeta with a cathedral-length train. The bridegroom wore a black tuxedo with tails, white vest and white silk ascot.

Patricia Wieczerzak of Nashua, N.H., was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Karen Frizzell Lewis of Lancaster, Pa., Kathleen McKenzie of Chelmsford, Ann Nadeau of Winchester and Susan Burtner of Butler, Pa.

Best man was Stephen Perra of Winchester. Ushers wre James McKenna and Edward McKenna, both of Winchester, Raymond Wieczerzak of Nashua, N.H., and John Cannava Jr. of Medford. Marianne Matthews of Winchester tended the guest book.

Music was provided by Christopher Dotson of Huntington Beach, Calif. who played handbells. Other musicians were Marilyn Poole, Scott Poole and Eileen Kelly.

A reception was held at the Woburn Country Club. After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple reside in Reseda, Calif.

Churches set service schedule

Several Winchester churches have determined a summer schedule of summer Sunday services, all at 9:30 a.m.

Services will be June 22 at the First Baptist Church, June 29 at the Unitarian Church, July 6 and 13 at the First Congregational Church, July 20 and 27 at the Second Congregational Church and Aug. 3 and 10 at the United Methodist Church.

Regular services of each congregation will resume thereafter.

St. Mary's students big readers

Second graders at St. Mary's School recently completed a "Whopper of a Reader" program under the careful direction of their teacher, Cindy Kavanaugh.

The goal of each student was to build a whopper meal. As each student read and completed a short book report, he or she received parts of the meal. As more books were read and reports given, each student completed his or her meal.

Meals consisted of "Whoppers" at a Burger King restaurant in Stoneham. Students who completed a meal had read an average of 20 to 25 books over an eight-week period, no small task for most second graders, the teacher said.

Mrs. Kavanaugh also rewarded students with a colored drawing, a Whopper folder, erasers and other school supplies.

"At St. Mary's we truly have a "Whopper of a Reader" group," she said.

League of Women Voters plans debate

President Gail O'Reilly and secretary Jeanette Baird of the League of Women Voters of Winchester attended the League of Women Voters State Council May 17 in Worcester.

Susan Shaer, president of League of Women Voters of Massachusetts and chairman of the Lotte E. Scharfman Memorial Fund, said the Scharfman Fund will sponsor televised debates for candidates for governor and lieutenant governor.

Shaer said Sept. 9 and 10 have been chosen for a gubernatorial Republican pre-primary debate and a lieutenant gubernatorial debate.

The final pre-election debate for governor will take place immediately prior to the general election. All three debates will be carried live by Channels 5 and 44 in Boston.

Shaer cited the league's expertise as a sponsor of non-partisan televised candidate debates. "Debates have become an expected part of political campaigns and the LWV is the only non-partisan, non-affiliated group with expertise in this area," she said.

Membership in the league is open to anyone over 18 and does not require an invitation to join. For information, please call Susan Cutler at 729-4563.

McCann earns doctor's degree

Joan Celia McCann, daughter of Helen L. Celia of Winchester and the late Vincent J. Celia, assistant attorney general, was recently graduated from Fordham University in New York, where she was awarded a doctor of education degree.

McCann, a graduate of Medford High School, is principal of Fox Meadow School, Scarsdale, N.Y. She holds a cum laude degree from Tufts University and a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan.

She is listed in Who's Who of American Women, Who's Who of the East, Who's Who of Educational Administrators and International Biographies.

McCann, who began her teaching career at the Gleason School in Medford, is an IDEA fellow of the Charles Kettering Foundation, a member of Phi Delta Kappa, the International Garden Club, and Chi Omega.

ABOUT TOWN

Alison Sughrue gets UNH degree

Alison M. Sughrue of Winchester was among 1,900 degree candidates honored at the University of New Hampshire spring commencement May 24.

Sughrue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens Sughrue Jr. of Winchester, is a candidate for a bachelor's degree in mathematics.

Day in two honor societies

Timothy Day, grade 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis Day of Winchester, has been inducted into the National Honor Society at St. Sebastian's Country Day School for boys in Needham.

The Society was founded in 1921 to recognize academic excellence.

To quality for membership, a student must display scholarship, service, leadership and character. In addition, they must maintain an 85 grade point average.

Day has also been inducted into the Spanish National Honor Society at St. Sebastian's.

To qualify for membership, a student is required to achieve an average of 88 or better in Spanish in a minimum of three semesters of study.

Coughlin is Holderness graduate

James Joseph Coughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Coughlin of Winchester, was graduated from Holderness School during the 107th commencement exercises Sunday, May 25.

Richard C. Gallop, parent of a 1983 graduate and currently president and chief operating officer of Columbia Pictures was the commencement speaker.

While at Holderness, Coughlin was a member of the varsity football, basketball and baseball teams, and was voted the most spirited on the baseball team.

His senior project was about drug and alcohol awareness. He will attend Fairfield University in September.

Two graduate from Wheaton

Laura Jane Goodman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Max L. Goodman, received a degree in psychology.

Cynthia Ann Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Robinson, received a degree in economics with honors.

Association art gallery will feature a one-person show

A one-person show entitled "Aquerelli d'Italia" by Susan P. Vrotsos will open Sunday, June 15, at the Winchester Art Association Gallery.

Vrotsos has traveled extensively in Italy during the past two years, both painting and leading an art tour. This will be the first showing of her Italian series.

She is president of the Winchester Art Association, a member of the Cambridge Art Association, the Copley Society and a gallery instructor at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

There will be an opening party from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, June 15. It will be free and open to the public.

The show will run June 14 to July 10 at the gallery, 585A Main St. Hours are from noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Singers workshop set in August

The Treble Chorus of New England will conduct its 10th annual "Singers Workshop" at South Church in Andover Aug 11-15.

Summer home of the regional Treble Chorus, the workshop welcomes musically-talented boys and girls ages 6-16. The workshop will meet daily from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., culminating in a concert Saturday evening, Aug. 16.

Under the direction of founder Marie Stultz, the workshop is widely known for high standards of classical music instruction. The North Reading resident is founder and artistic director of the parent choir, The Treble Chorus of New England. She is an active composer and conductor, with many private voice students.

Students who attend the workshop may elect to audition for the Treble Chorus of New England 1986-1987 concert season. Recent performance seasons have included concerts at Hammond Castle in Gloucester and an American premiere of a newly-discovered "Gloria" of Vivaldi, in addition to an original "Pops" called "Pirates" based on Gilbert and Sullivan.

Recent concerts have been given at Phillips Academy in Andover, a television appearance on Channel 5, a "30's and 40's" performance and a spring Brahms and Britten concert.

In May 1984 the Treble Chorus collaborated with Boston Musica Viva and M.I.T. Advanced Center for Visual Studies to present the American premiere of Paul Earl's contemporary opera "Hearus". It featured a laser display, computer-synthesized music, giant inflatable sculpture and chamber ensemble in addition to the Treble Chorus. All were under the direction of Richard Pittman.

In addition, Treble Chorus performed with New England Conservatory Preparatory Orchestra in November 1985 for its Collins Center debut, and have been invited to join Gov. Dukakis for both the State House Christmas tree lighting and the Japanese Festival.

Recently Treble Chorus members performed "La Boheme" with the Merrimack Lyric Opera Company of Lowell.

Musically-talented young people who enjoy choral and solo singing and would like an exciting music experience in the summer should consider attending Singer's Workshop.

Classes will be offered in voice, theory, music appreciation and classical choral repetoire. Spaces are now very limited. To make an appointment with choir manager Jeanne Thomases call 944-1876.

'Gigi' auditions scheduled June 17

Auditions for the Winchester Players' dramatized version of "Gigi," from the novel by Colettte, are scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 17, in the Michelsen Room of the Winchester Unitarian Church, 478 Main St.

Rehearsals will begin Sept. 16 and continue each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday until performances Nov. 7, 8, 14 and 15.

The title character of "Gigi" is a young French girl brought up by her mother, grandmother and aunt to be a stylish coquette. The man they pick for her is a roue who frequently visits Gigi's home and is charmed by her boyish enthusiasm.

Gigi, however, decides she would rather marry the man than be his mistress and sets out to maneuver a proposal from him.

Five roles for women ranging in age from Gigi to her great aunt Alicia, somewhere between 50 and 70, are available. The male lead, Gaston, should be in the 20s or 30s while the other male, the butler, might be any age.

For more information or a copy of the script, call 729-4986.

Roses bloom here June 21

The New England Rose Society will present the largest rose show in the Northeast Saturday, June 21, at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery in Winchester.

The public is invited to exhibit roses. Entries will be received from 7 to 9:45 a.m. and judging will be from 10 a.m. to noon.

The show will be open to the public for viewing from 1 to 5 p.m.

The show theme "The Music of Roses," guarantees a show of colors from traditional to blue, lavender and multi-colors. Also included are old-fashioned to modern-types roses.

Admission to the show is free. Further information is available evenings from 893-2868.

Cloister concerts series starts tonight

Tonight at 8:30 marks the appearance of the popular "Two By Fours" in the opening concert of the Cloister Garden series at the Parish of the Epiphany at 70 Church St., Winchester.

Three Winchester men, Thomas Worthen, William Jeffery and Robert Whitman, are members of this male chorus which has developed its own sophisticated arrangements of well known tunes from the nostalgic 40s and 50s as well as modern numbers from Bach to Bachrach.

There will also be an interlude of jazz piano by Jack Gilbert, who formerly played with Tommy Dorsey.

Refreshments will be served during intermission and tickets may be obtained at the door. Admission is $4 for adults and $3 for those under 21.

All concerts, weather permitting, are held in the cloister garden. In case of rain, they are held in the parish hall.

Katherine Welch is 'volunteer of year'

Katherine Welch of Winchester was named the New England Rehabilitation Hospital's "Volunteer of the Year" during the hospital's Volunteers Association 16th annual awards luncheon in Woburn.

Loretta Stillman of Winchester, treasurer of the hospital's gift shop, also presented a report.

Volunteer awards went to Catherine Burke, Audrea Clair, Norma Errico, Alice Keating, Alma Keenan, Ursula Keleher, Rita Maggioli, Mary Nunziato, Bradley Shea, Loretta Stillman, Katherine Welch and Anne Wright, all of Winchester. A total of 72 volunteers from 26 towns was honored.

Gov. Michael Dukakis welcomes the family of William and Jean Gurrisi of 26 Tremont St., Winchester, to his office. Accompanying them, standing just to the left of the governor, is Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh of Winchester, who arranged the visit. Gov. Dukakis met the Gurrisis when one of their nine children, Robert, was awarded first place in the 12th annual Citizenship Essay Contest at Northeast Regional Vocational School. He and Saltmarsh honored Bill and Jean Gurrisi for their efforts in raising their family, which includes two adopted foster children and two adopted foster grandchildren.

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority is pleased to announce the expansion of THE RIDE program to Bedford, Burlington, Concord, Lexington, Lincoln, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

THE RIDE

Eligible residents may take advantage of THE RIDE, the MBTA's door-to-door paratransit program, Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Eligibility is granted to residents of the eight communities who, because of physical or mental disability, are unable to use the MBTA. Eligible residents are required to complete an application form and to register through the MBTA's Office of Special Needs.

Reservations, scheduling and dispatching of vehicles will be carried out through Share-a-Ride Inc. of Lexington. The fare is 75 cents for each one-way trip. For additional information on THE RIDE program, please call the MBTA's Office of Special Needs, at 722-5123.

Selectmen debate use of videotapes

"But it's making people paranoid. They're starting to say, 'Oh, oh, here comes Frank Sopper with his video camera.'"

Sopper protested. "Frank isn't going to fool people," Frank Sopper hasn't shot people."

Muggia entered the discussion last. "I for was delighted with the Fells presentation," she said. "But I've gotten five or six calls from townspeople and that's a lot."

"The question was whether selectmen have a camera. Are we building toward 1984? Are we being snooped on? I hope not," I said."

Muggia said she called Sopper Tuesday afternoon to get answers for her callers but Sopper yelled at her.

"I won't subscribe to the selectmen using a camera," Muggia said she told callers, but she called the attorney general's office for more information about the legality of cameras.

"They told me news crews use cameras all the time to film people," Muggia said. "But these crews have to get permission from specific people they film, except for crowd scenes and public people. At least I could tell the callers there is a law on the books about using the camera."

Nonetheless, Muggia said, the thought of selectmen with video cameras "is making people nervous. It's their town, too, and they shouldn't feel spied upon."

Sopper said he didn't intend to film people but would use the tapes to show parking problems, illegal buildings and the like.

"If it's best shown to the public though video, I should do it," Sopper said.

"Since World War II we've been trying to protect our water supply in Winchester. For 45 years, our trying failed. Now my 15-minute video has succeeded," Sopper declared. "Why is everybody so upset about that?"

"The problem isn't with the Fells video," Deering answered. "It's with what's next. Are you going to show who's parking all day?"

"Sounds like a good idea," Lombardi said.

Lombardi described a white Cadillac that had been parked in front of his office all day without getting a ticket. "I'd have used the camera today," he said.

As voices rose even louder, Welch tried to calm the discussion. Deering wanted to make a final point.

"We know how the camera might be used. Mark said if he had a camera today, he would have filmed the Cadillac. I rest my case," Deering said.

Lombardi, however, continued: "Some people in this world have an advantage, the gift of gab. I don't have it. But that's how we've decided things for years.

"Now we have one more tool, videotapes," Lombardi said. He suggested that a tape could decide the truth in conflicting cases, saying that selectmen have received letters both supporting and complaining about valet parking at Logan's.

"I don't want to do anything not in the best interests of the town," Sopper offered. "If the selectmen do not want a videotape shown, it won't be shown."

The discussion simply ended. Nobody offered a policy statement nor did anyone explain how Sopper could show a videotape to selectmen before a meeting without violating the state's open meeting law.

What To Visit: Women Doctors Exhibit
What To Do: Whale Watch '86
What's On The Boards: Horror Spoof Hit
What About Art: Museum School winners

Cover photo: Send Us a Lady Physician: Women Doctors in America is on view at Museum of Our National Heritage.

What To Visit

Clockwise from top left: foundlings and their caretaker pose in front of the cottage at Nursery and Child's Hospital in New York; Dr. Clara Marshall had advice for 20 graduates of the Woman's Medical College in 1879; Dr. Susan Smith McKinney Steward established a successful practice in Brooklyn and Manhattan; Elizabeth Blackwell became the first American woman to receive a regular medical degree.

'Send us a lady physician' echoed in 19th century

When women entered the American medical profession in the early 19th century, they enjoyed remarkable success as physicians.

In the early decades of the 20th century, with changes in medical education and the practice of medicine, women doctors suffered surprising setbacks as their numbers declined dramatically.

An exhibition examining the social history of women doctors, Send Us A Lady Physician: Women Doctors In America, 1835-1920, is on display at the Museum of Our National Heritage in Lexington. The exhibit runs through July 13.

Using the experiences of women's achievements in one profession, the exhibit also examines the changing role of women in American society.

Cries of "send us a lady physician" went out to the medical and scientific communities when American women of the Victorian period were ill.

Send Us A Lady Physician explores individual, community, and institutional efforts that allowed women to enter the American medical profession in the 19th century.

The values and abilities that Victorian women were charged with safeguarding—the care and nurturing of individuals in the family and community—were transferred to more public spheres as the medical profession matured in America. Among the spheres were health care and medical education.

In 1835 there were no qualified women physicians in America; by the century's end women doctors numbered more than 5,000.

Women thrived in the field until the late 19th century, when their numbers began to decline. The high point in Boston, for example, was in 1900, when 18.2 percent of the city's physicians were women.

Women physicians practiced in all areas of medicine, but concentrated their efforts on the care of women and children, and preventative medicine.

The Exhibit

On entering the exhibit, visitors hear Dr. Clara Marshall's commencement advice to the members of the Class of 1879 of the Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania, the first regular medical school for women in America.

These doctors were statistically, biographically, and experientially representative of women physicians of their day, and were successful by the standards of the times.

Dr. Harriet Belcher's memoirs included, "I took off a breast for cancer, although two other physicians had not considered that disease."

Dr. Sarah Cohen's birth reports show how women built obstetrical practices among the working poor.

The saddlebags that Dr. Eleanor Galt Simmons used to store medical supplies for house calls in a frontier Florida town are displayed, as is a typical 19th-century prescription book.

"Institutional Practice" follows five women who worked in foundling homes, "insane asylums," sanitariums, and hospitals. Nineteenth-century women doctors were viewed as nurturers and social healers.

Serving primarily in institutions for women and children, these physicians battled often-fatal epidemics of measles, smallpox, and cholera.

A section on teaching discusses two kinds of teaching given equal value by 19th-century women's medical schools: teaching in the medical schools themselves and lecturing on health and hygiene to women's clubs and associations. Like 19th-century students, viewers can fold back the illustrated layers of Dr. Emily White's "physiological manikin."

"Missionary Work" explores another aspect of women's medical practice and discusses women who saw their healing and spiritual missions as one.

This section presents the work of one women, Dr. Anna Kugler of Ardmore, Pennsylvania, who at age 10 reportedly heard a male missionary speak at her church and vowed then that she'd practice her future profession as a missionary.

"Medical Societies" presents the experiences of women physicians as members and officers of state and local societies.

It contrasts the formality of male-dominated societies with the emphasis of women's medical associations on women's diseases and the emerging public health movements.

"Family and Community Life" explores how women doctors integrated professional, family, and community activities. A soundtrack plays songs of the suffrage and temperance movements, as well as lullabies and popular contemporary songs.

Special programs during the course of the exhibit include lectures on the history of women doctors in America, gallery talks with women physicians from the early 20th century to the present, and women doctors in local schools.

The Museum of Our National Heritage, located at 33 Marrett Road, Lexington, Massachusetts, is open seven days a week. Admission and parking are free.

Hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday hours all year are noon to 5 p.m. Call the museum at 861-6559.

What To Visit

On March 13th, 1879, before the 20 new graduates of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania and their friends and family, Dr. Clara Marshall, Professor of Materia Medica and General Therapeutics, delivered the Commencement Address.

"Care for your knowledge as you would a tender plant. Let no blighting frost of unsympathizing companionship kill it before it becomes strong; but keep it in an atmosphere bracing enough to harden it and warm enough to make it bear its richest fruits."

Breaking barriers: 6 pioneers paved path to medicine

How did women break the initial barriers to medical education and training? One exhibit introduces six of the pioneers who together with "generous men and noble women" paved the way.

Harriot Hunt was the first woman ever to apply to Harvard Medical School.

Elizabeth Blackwell was the first woman to receive an M.D. degree. With her sister, Emily, she founded the New York Infirmary, the first hospital in the world run entirely by women.

Ann Preston, a graduate of the first class of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, founded the Woman's Hospital of Philadelphia, the first for women attached to a medical school.

Marie Zakrzewska helped the Blackwells establish the New York Infirmary and then founded the New England Hospital for Women and Children which, long before the acceptance of germ theory, cut the rate of infection by strict adherence to antiseptic standards.

Mary Putnam Jacobi bridged the gap between the women's medical movement and the rising scientific medicine and opened the door to women in male run hospitals and specialty societies.

Their intertwining stories unfold in a time line depicting key events in U.S. and medical history.

In this exhibit, viewers discover the dual strategy employed by the 19th century women's medical movement: the development of a separate woman's medical sphere and the press for full integration.

Also in this section are two special presentations on Black women physicians and on nursing.

As the exhibit ends, the women's medical movement appears to have won its major battles.

Thousands of women are practicing medicine.

They are thriving as private and institutional practitioners, as teachers in medical schools and before ladies groups, as missionary physicians, as members and even officers of state and local medical societies, and as active participants in their families and communities.

With the achievement of medical coeducation at Johns Hopkins and Cornell medical schools, the leaders of the women's medical movement have won what they regard as their most important victory.

Women: did they have suitability?

Throughout the 19th century, a vigorous debate was carried on concerning the mental and physical suitability for women to practice medicine.

The arguments, excerpted below, often continue today.

In whatever situation of life a woman is placed from her cradle to her grave, a spirit of obedience and submission, pliability of temper, and humility of mind are required of her.—A lady, author of The Young Lady's Book

The differences between the sexes does not imply inferiority, for it is part of the order of Nature established by him.—Mrs. Lydia Sigourney

Woman has a head almost too small for intellect but just big enough for love.—Dr. Charles Meigs

The promiscuous intermingling of the sexes in our schools, I utterly repudiate. I say, let her stay home and put on an apron and attend to her children.—Dr. Henry Gibbons

[We] look to [women] to elevate the profession.—Dr. Joseph Longshore

There is room and need [in the medical profession] for both male and female. The character of the profession will be exalted by a blending of masculine and feminine virtues.—Dr. Edwin Fussell

We will destroy that which God has imprinted upon our race . . . the distinction between male and female in the operations of this world.—Dr. N.S. Davis

We should give to man cheerfully the curative department and woman the preventive.—Dr. Harriot Hunt

If woman's exertions and charities were confined to [the home and family,] where would be the teachers of the land?—Dr. Ann Preston

All professions need the two formative forces of nature—the positive and negative, the masculine and feminine . . .—Dr. Mark Kerr

Medical literature and medical feeling . . . need the refining and ennobling influences that . . . true woman . . . give [sic].—Dr. Ann Preston

This war against women is beneath the dignity of a learned society of scientific men.—Dr. James King

The study of medicine has but strengthened . . . womanly feelings.—Dr. Emeline H. Cleveland

None need tell [woman] . . . that the work is unsuited to your womanly nature. The contradiction comes not only from your observation of society, but from the deeps of your own souls."—Dr. Ann Preston

Cult classic paves its way to Boston hearts

Little Shop . . . is delectable fare

Review

The mounting of Little Shop Of Horrors at the Charles Playhouse is the best ever! This hilarious spoof is the perfect vehicle for the Charles, and the Charles is the ideal facility for Little Shop of Horrors. It is the perfect marriage . . .a jewel in its proper setting . . .a small show that insists upon close audience rapport set in intimate surroundings.

The musical, total entertainment, opened for a four-week stint and its stay has already been extended a couple of times, but considering the top-draw quality of the show and how deliciously it has been mounted and cast, it could easily join its sister production next door (Sheer Madness) and be in residence for years.

The entire interior of the Charles has been gutted for Little Shop and a complete cabaret format installed: tiered levels with tables and chairs and beverages available prior to the performance and at intermission. The stage has been elevated considerably, creating perfect sightlines no matter where you sit. No expense has been spared on this production, thanks to producer David Eastwood and associate producer Steven Warnick.

The background of Little Shop is legend — five years Off-Broadway (at the Orpheum Theatre in New York's Lower East Side and still going strong), a production in London, national and international touring companies, and Outer Critics Circle, Drama Critics Circle and Drama Desk Awards.

Based on Roger Corman's 1960 low-budget horror film, now a cult classic, the action focuses on timid, awkward, impoverished Seymour, who is befriended and put to work by fatherly Muchnik, owner of a florist shop on Skid Row. Aside from the plants, Seymour's only friends are Muchnik and pulchritudinous Audrey, the dizzy blonde shop clerk. Audrey's boyfriend Orin is a motorcycle-freak dentist and a semi-sadist and Audrey is forver sporting the bruises of his S&M games.

While in Chinatown, Seymour obtains a potted cactus cutting. Suddenly there is a total eclipse and when the skies brighten, a new strange growth is in the pot! The plant fares poorly with ordinary nutrients, but when Seymour cuts his finger and the plant licks its chops, comes the dawn. The fly-trap has a sweet tooth for human blood.

The florist shop is failing (after all, who buys flowers on Skid Row?) when Seymour places Audrey II (as the plant is now lovingly called) in the window. It attracts immediate attention, then nationwide celebrity status, and Muchnik's fortunes blossom. Seymour becomes anemic from loss of blood as the plant thrives and grows to humungus proportions. But a few drops of blood simply whet the appetite, little more than an hors d'oevre. "Feed me!" commands ravenous Audrey II in its big bass voice.

Howard Ashman's book is sci-fi at its wildest, filled with wonderful comic stereotypes, and his lyrics are both clever and witty. Alan Menken provides strong support with a bouncy, up-tempo, woop-de-do score and musical director Michael Rafter keeps the outrageous romp moving at a fiendish clip. Victor Valentine's direction and choreography are even better than the original, and James Noone's ingenious set design adapts far better to the Charles stage than in New York or elsewhere.

Carolee Carmello is beguiling as the Daisy Mae-ish Audrey, the masochist with a shady past and a heart of gold, and scores resoundingly with Somewhere That's Green and, with Seymour, in Suddenly Seymour. Bert Hilkes is perfect as the nebbish Seymour, has a most pleasing voice, and excells in the riotous Now (It's Just a Gas) along with Orin, and, joined by the jive-talkin' singin' and dancin' Audrey II, in the show-stopping Git It! Carnivorous Audrey II (Tyrone Aiken) also registers with Suppertime, although, at times, his lyrics are garbled.

But, the big surprise is the young, vivacious and groovy female trio who represent street urchins. Angela Hall, Angel Jemmott and Natalie Oliver! For the first time in four tries, I was able to understand the lyrics and they were terrific throughout, especially in Skid Row (Downtown). Martin P. Robinson's puppets are truly sensational, as is their manipulation by Jonas Gersmehl.

New British play staged in Gloucester

Israel Horovitz, artistic director of the Gloucester Stage Company, has announced the GSC's successful acquisition of British playwright Stephen Jeffrey's stage adaptation of Charles Dickens' Hard Times.

Hard Times will open GSC's summer season July 1, running for three weeks through July 20.

A smash hit in England last year, Hard Times has never been performed in the United States. The GSC production, to be directed by Grey Cattell Johnson, will mark the play's American premiere.

Friends, by Lee Kalchiem and directed by Tom Bloom, will be the summer's second offering, opening July 22 through August 10, and North Shore Fish, a new play by Israel Horovitz directed by Grey Cattell Johnson, will be the summer's final production, opening Aug. 12 and running through Sept. 7.

Performances are 8 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and Sunday, and 6 and 9 p.m. Saturday, at The Blackburn Tavern, 2 Main St., Gloucester.

Ticket prices range from $10 to $12.50. For reservations or information, write The Gloucester Stage Company, 90 Prospect St., Gloucester, MA 01930 or call 281-4099.

Puppets return to Theatre By The Sea

Puppets And Players, the successful family entertainment series, will return to Portsmouth's (N.H.) Theatre by the Sea (T.B.S.) this summer. The series opens June 21 and will run Saturdays through Aug. 23.

T.B.S. will present a variety of programs, from puppets to marionettes, to mime, storytelling, musicians and children's theatre. The program not only introduces children to the excitement of live entertainment, but also provides the family with an opportunity to share the experience together.

Featured June 21 is Dan Butterworth and his Marionettes. In a return engagement, Butterworth will present Cinderella.

Pat Spalding's Ha' Penny Theatre takes center stage on June 28, with a special blend of storytelling and puppetry and material drawn from literature, fables, folk and original tales, and poetry, enhanced by rhythm, rhyme and music.

On July 12, the Gerwick Puppets will present Alladin And The Magic Lamp, and on July 19, Jackson Gillman mixes tall tales with humor and mime in his performance of Sea Stories.

On July 26, Andy Schwartz will present Generations Of Juggling, a program of juggling blended with humor and history.

The Kitchen Sink Mime takes over on Aug. 9, presenting a series of vignettes using music, poetry, masks, costumes and clowning.

Following will be the Poobley Greegy Puppets and their presentation of Dynasty IV — Prime Time In Egypt. A new puppet drama based loosely on The Sorcerer's Apprentice, the plot focuses on an elementary school class learning about ancient Egypt and the extraordinary happenings that occur when the teacher is called out of the room. The show comes complete with a giant talking sphinx. The date is August 16.

Closing the series, on Aug. 23, is Stephen Baird. Back by popular demand, Baird brings his six- and twelve-string guitars, banjo, tamborine, powerful voice and endless repertoire transforming his audience into a hand-clapping, foot-stomping joyous throng.

Performance times are 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Saturdays. Tickets are $2.95, with discount rate for groups of 10 or more. Call Theatre By The Sea at (603) 431-5846 or (603) 431-6660, or stop by the box office at 125 Bow St., Portsmouth, N.H.

Rags premieres at Shubert

The world premiere of a new American musical, Rags, will open at the Shubert Theatre, 265 Tremont St., Boston, June 23, for a four week engagement continuing through July 19, prior to opening on Broadway.

Directed by Joan Micklin Silver, Rags is a new Joseph Stein-Charles Strouse-Stephen Schwartz musical, produced by Lee Guber, Martin Heinfling and Marvin A. Krauss.

Making her Broadway debut, opera great Teresa Stratas will play Rebecca, an immigrant looking for safety in a new country.

Co-starring will be Broadway's own Larry Kert, who earned fame as Tony in the original production of West Side Story on Broadway.

Also featured in the large cast are Daniel Benzali, Terrence Mann, Lonny Price, Judy Kuhn and Marcia Lewis.

Performances for Rags at the Shubert Theatre June 23 through July 19 are: Monday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m.; matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2 p.m., except there are no matinees on June 25 and 28.

Ticket prices are: Monday through Saturday evenings: $40, $35, $25; Saturday matinees: $37.50, $32.50, $23.50; Wednesday matinees: $35, $30, $21. To order tickets by phone call Telecharge: 1-800-233-3123. For other information, call 426-4520.

Carpenter shines in Milford

With five years as artistic director for the American Stage Festival behind him, Larry Carpenter is planning to make the next five years even better.

"The Festival has reflected the changes in the area over those years," he notes. "The level of productions has gotten better. The whole Festival has grown tremendously over the last half decade. But the best is yet to come!" he promises.

Carpenter thinks back to his arrival, to what he remembers as "the sleepy little New England town of Milford, New Hampshire."

"The Festival has grown as much as the town has," he observes. "Today, Milford is part of the North Boston sprawl and the Festival has become a major regional theatre that now must serve many Gods. For one thing, the Festival has become an important part of the New England Theatre Enterprise. We've become part of "The Club," co-producing plays with such notable theatres as the Huntington, for example. We put 'Pirates' together in Salt Lake City, Utah, in February, creating all our own orchestrations. We'll open in Milford June 11, and then send it on to tour the Straw Hat Circuit."

The Milford facility has been the jumping off place for several productions in the past. Carpenter points out. Tintypes, for example, had its world premiere here before going on to Broadway; Corpse, which also debuted at the Festival, is now playing on Broadway after a successful run on London's West End, and last year's smash comedy, Opera Buffa, is currently delighting audiences in London.

Carpenter sees evidence that the Festival is recognized for the quality, dependability and artful approach to its work and says that actors know that when they play the Festival, it will be a rewarding experience.

He gives much credit for the Festival's success to the audiences who support it, confirming, "This is a very bright audience. The Festival theatre-goers are very sophisticated and they don't let us get away with anything!"

The biggest change Carpenter sees for this season is the Festival's new look, as it comes out of its every-two-week summer stock format and into the three-week regional theatre concept.

"We also want to expand our horizons in the area of children's theatre," he explains. "Our Young Company is already doing both traditional and new kinds of programming, but we hope to do more with music, mime and mask and perhaps get into clowning and workshops as well. We'd like to expand the Young Company's season into the fall and the spring too."

Carpenter reiterates plans to continue the Festival's carefully integrated balance of name talent with first-class non-name talent. "You don't just want a 'name' for the sake of having a 'name'," he emphasizes. "A lot of big stars are terrible actors who have been created by the media, but who have absolutely no stage credentials."

Carpenter's own stage credentials range from acting and directing in everything from Shakespeare to working on Broadway with such well-known stars as Gower Champion, Liza Minnelli, and Tammy Grimes. But Milford is where the action is now for Carpenter and he is intent on serving notice to the rest of the theatrical community that the ASF is no longer a nice little summer theatre in the backwoods of New Hampshire. He's letting it be known that he intends to make the Festival one of the foremost regional theatres in the country!

By Dann Kosow

From the top: Angel Jemmott, Natalie Oliver and Angela Hall provide strong, crisp vocals and dance numbers in the long-running hit, Little Shop Of Horrors, at Charles Playhouse Stage I. Sheer Madness, an audience-participation whodunit, is still going strong at the Charles Playhouse Stage II. The show is in its seventh year of performances.

Hit Musical Comedy Continues

Forbidden Broadway 1986, Gerard Alessandrini's hit musical comedy revue currently running in the Terrace Room at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel, recently entertained its 100,000th patron.

Stephen Kennedy of Peabody passed the 100,000 patron milestone as he crossed the Terrace Room threshold with his fiancee, Patty Marx, also of Peabody, for Forbidden Broadway's 626th performance. The couple was regaled with T-shirts, a bottle of champagne, and gift certificates to return to the show as guests. it was the couple's first visit to the show.

Now in its 85th week in Boston, the revised and updated version of Forbidden Broadway roasts and toasts Broadway's brightest stars and shows, including Ethel Merman, Carol Channing, Richard Harris in Camelot, Anthony Quinn in Zorba and Annie. The show stars Jerry Christakos, Toni DiBuono, Brad Ellis, Michael McGrath and Karen Murphy.

The performance schedule is as follows: Tuesday through Friday evenings at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 7 and 10 p.m., and Sundays at 3 and 6 p.m. Tickets are priced at $17 for Tuesday through Thursday evenings; Friday and Saturday evenings $19; and both Sunday performances are $15. For information, and to charge tickets by phone, call the box office at 357-8384, located at the Terrace Room, Boston Park Plaza Hotel, 64 Arlington st., Boston.

What To Do

No longer just seafaring men

Once upon a time, the only whale watchers were seafaring men.

But today whale watching is a seasonal attraction for people from all walks of life.

At least 21 organizations and companies offer whale watch cruises from Massachusetts ports May through October.

Vessels depart from Cape Ann to Cape Cod, and head for Stellwagen Bank, a shallow feeding area 35 miles long and seven miles wide, between Provincetown and Gloucester.

Stellwagen Bank is about 27 miles from Boston Harbor, and it is one of the most convenient places in the world for man to meet whale.

"Whales are much more accessible here than they are on the West Coast, where one can easily travel hundreds of miles before finding them," said Dr. Charles Mayo, director of research for The Whale Project at the Center for Coastal Studies in Provincetown.

"Also, whale watching is optimal in this region, because the whales that come here remain here for a fairly long time," Mayo said.

Whales can be found year-round off the Massachusetts shores, but they are easily observable eight months a year, he said.

"That long residency, the relatively good weather, and the protection from the open seas by Cape Cod make this region ideal for whale watchers," he said.

Mayo said up to seven different species of marine mammals — harbor porpoises and white-sided dolphins as well as whales — can be sighted on a three- to four-hour whale watch cruise.

The large baleen whales, particularly humpbacks, finbacks and minke whales, are the species of whales most commonly seen.

Humpback whales are big and more gregarious than most others, said Mimi Brown of the New England Aquarium.

"Finbacks are considered the greyhounds of the sea. They're very large, but they don't spend too much time on the water's surface," she said.

A rare and thrilling find is the occasional sighting of a right whale.

"During winter and spring," he said, "there are more right whales in the Cape Cod area than there are in any other location in the North Atlantic."

Those who are interested in whale-watching should be prepared for a good five-hour ocean trip.

Bring sweaters, even in summer, to ward off the damp chill of occasional sea breezes, and bring a camera. Some cruises do not permit children under three years, so check first before you bring small tots along.

On many cruises, reservations are advised. Last year, for instance, the New England Aquarium boarded 20,000 passengers on the M/V Voyager, the whale watch cruise ship. On warm weekends reservations may be essential.

With a 98-percent sighting of whales in recent years, most whale watch cruises offer guaranteed sightings, with complimentary rain-checks to take another cruise if no whales are sighted on an excursion.

Admission ranges from $10 to $20 for adults and $8.50 to $16 for children.

Several have marine biologists or other experts aboard to describe and explain the various sealife encountered. Most vessels also have refreshments and enclosed areas.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Compromise is key in dealing with mate or partner — defer to other's wishes. Not the time to extend financial favors to anyone. Don't take on a major project unless you are totally willing to follow through and finish it.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — You could be faced with a serious decision so get some excellent advice first. You're not objective now and cannot trust your own judgment about contracts and legal matters. Don't reveal confidential information.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Ask for what you want and be specific — you're very convincing now. Pay attention to a troubled close relationship and keep communication lines open. Guard against impulse, don't do anything shady and be responsible.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — You could receive a written love message that is thrilling. Your living arrangements could be in a positive process of change. In another important matter, make contacts and organize a team of like-thinking people.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Your intuition and sensitivity to others are at a peak and you're especially perceptive — follow your hunches. Begin a new project but be patient and proceed with caution. Loved ones will show their affection now.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Something you may consider a loss will turn out in your favor in the long run. Don't be depressed by temporary delays. You can accomplish much now and complete an important project that will bring you honors and recognition.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — You're in the driver's seat now so take charge and make your moves! New financial opportunities are around you so pay attention. Follow your hunches about investments or savings, particularly if real estate is involved.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Discard your doubts about a personal relationship, express your feelings and make a new start. Not the time to force emotional issues — watchful waiting will pay off. Pay attention to your appearance and look your best.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Take the initiative and form new friendships — you're very magnetic now. Attend to routine matters and catch up on details you've let slide. Romance is highlighted and a new exciting involvement could come along.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Diversify your interests and don't feel insecure in the company of some high-powered people. Not the time to delegate tasks to another — do it yourself! Accept invitations, meet new people and a wish could come true.

AQUARIUS: (Jan 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Get routine details out of the way to clear the decks for later action. Things are moving quickly, be willing to make changes and use your communication skills. Past efforts pay off now and your future looks bright.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Guard your reputation and credit — live up to your commitments. Someone in a high position is watching you so don't be tempted to "dog-off." In romance, express your feelings of love and you'll get a warm response.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

Traveling Scholars at BMFA

Each year The School of the Museum of Fine Arts selects recipients of traveling scholarships from its alumni and fifth year students.

A total of $76,500 was awarded this year for 20 selected artists to travel and study in other parts of the world. The scholarships have been given by the Museum School trustees since 1899. This year they were chosen by a jury of gallery directors, museum curators, collectors and working artists.

Work by the award-winners — 14 fifth-year students and 6 alumni — is on view through July 6 in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts' Special Exhibitions Gallery.

Museum-goers will get some sense of direction, and especially change in direction, of studio art by seeing this exhibit in the context of the museum's permanent collection, and most pointedly, in light of its newly opened exhibit, Painters of an Elegant Age 1870-1930.

That "elegant age" includes paintings of "Boston School" artists John Singer Sargent, Maurice Prendergast, Childe Hassam and their contemporaries. The academic grounding of these artists' individual vision and expression is a given — both evident and understood.

A change in emphasis from that academic approach to personal expression, social commentary and exploration of media is perhaps the biggest jolt and major revelation of the Traveling Scholars exhibition.

From the video presentations of Shannon Gosch and Nan Goldin to the paper pulp/mixed media installation of Nina Gilbert; from the cement floor sculpture of Philip Ross to the large satirical ceramics of Karen Ami, the exhibit is a varied and diverse media expo.

It is a sign of the times that students' choice of material often becomes the essence of their statements.

None of the materials are really so "new." But the hybrid media use and the the liberal, playful and reactive interpretations of tradition have not been the backbone of art schools over the years.

The Museum School comments on this break with tradition in their printed preface to the exhibit, stating that in 1966 "the School began to experience the exhilaration and agony of self-examination and change.

"The goal, as it emerged, was to permit the students to create in every medium, including newly invented ones, without retreating from the high standards set in the past . . . .The old School gave birth to a new one which encourages young artists to make the best possible use of the freedom to create."

The freedom fostered by the School, as gauged by the Traveling Scholars exhibit, produces works that are plain silly to those that are thoughtful and provocative.

Irene Pletka's quietly forceful photographs on linen are exemplary in the joining of medium, concept and considered formal structure to an expressive end.

Without noise or pizzazz, Pletka makes a statement that is original — and less self-consciously so than some of her fellow exhibitors.

Soft light melts darks into the linen surface of her prints creating, along with tight compositional unity (closely cropped heads, flower stems that spread across and unify the pictorial space), and truly interesting faces of her subjects, a visual intimacy that compels.

Another exhibiting artist whose originality is unforced is sculptor Margaret Rack. Her dark, stark welded steel sculptures have presence that commands viewers' attention, and subtlety that sustains it.

The same taut balance of classification is maintained in the form itself where a solid vertical mass curves gently just as it was about to be crisp and angular, where linear criss-crossed "table legs" open up and lighten the form just as it was about to be solid, heavy and massive.

Renoir's dancers emerge then sink back into the patterned wallpaper of Changing. A bottle of Windex sits atop a doily and a cozy house and yard is stuffed into an open dressing table drawer in Contained, Confined, Designed II.

The humor and tongue-in-cheek imagery of females' growing up in Hamermesh's work is similarly handled and applied to the subject of the artist's studio-world in Nina Gilbert's partial installation, Moved to the Uffizzi.

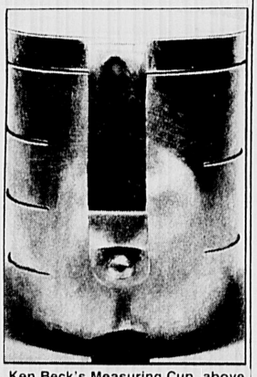

These works are the best among the spirited fun and adventure and humorous commentary that much of the show is about.

But the observer has to question the intent of young artists who appear perhaps too eager to be novel, too willing to impose a current and trendy "gallery personality" on their art.

There is a difference in such an approach and the evolution and emergence of one's style and means of expression from individual impulses and unique ways of responding to the world, which will of course be tempered by cultural milieu.

See the show. While the quality of the work varies, the effort and enthusiasm are consistent and deserve a responsive viewing public.

Call the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, 267-9300, ext. 519, for gallery hours and information.

HOMESTEAD HINTS

Good Ideas from the Past • by Donald J. Berg

Garden Hints

From THE REGISTER OF RURAL AFFAIRS, 1865

HOW TO KEEP GRASS FROM GROWING IN WALKS — When the soil has not been excavated, where the walk is made, to the depth of ten or twelve inches, and the excavation is not filled with stone, gravel, old mortar and other substances, the grass roots on each side of such walks will frequently run into the soil in the walk, and send up shoots so numerous that the walk will be quite green.

Make a weak brine and sprinkle the walks, by means of a water sprinkler, as often as the grass appears. A few pounds of salt used in this way will save a vast amount of hard hoeing, and, at the same time, keep such walks clean and neat.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

HEDGES FOR THE SHADE — A friend inquires what the best hedge plants are to grow in the shade of trees. Nothing is better than the hemlock or the Norway spruce. Any one can readily determine before hand what plants will succeed best, by examining the interior of thickly growing bushes. If, on turning up the branches, the leaves are found dense and healthy inside, such trees will grow well in the shade; but if the inside leaves are dead, or the shoots bare of foliage, they will not succeed. A buckthorn hedge, for example, is found to have all the leaves outside, and none at all toward the centre; as a necessary consequence, the buckthorn is one of the worst of all hedges under the shade of trees.

WE'LL MANAGE!!!

If you own an apartment house, you will have hired a management firm to relieve you of the duties of collecting rents, arranging for maintenance and repairs, finding new tenants, and paying the bills.

If you rent a condo or a single or multi-family house, however, you have to assume these time-consuming burdens yourself. If you do not live in the neighborhood, you may find these tasks quite a chore at times.

So, let us manage! Our rental manager will manage small rental properties at very modest monthly costs. When you are leaving the area temporarily and wish to rent your own home, or are the proud owner of a profitable two or three-family property you wish to keep without retaining the hassles, call our management agent, Lois Ardito.

Louise Ruma-Ivers is the immediate past President of the Greater Boston Women's Council of Realtors, and a past Director of the Marketing Institute for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. She is a member of the Arlington Historic Districts Committee.

Dot Stein is a Vice President of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and a Director of its Multiple Listing Service. She was a long-time Arlington Town Meeting member, and a member of the Arlington School Committee.

Prayer To The Holy Spirit

HOLY SPIRIT, thou who make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Amen. A person must pray this for three consecutive days. After the third day your wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Promise to publish this as soon as your favor has been granted. Mine was. C.M. 5.29/6.12l

Audi Remanufactured Parts. Built Like New. Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit — alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts — is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts.* The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

*Ask for Autobahn or Audi Limited Warranty at our Parts Department.

'Chad' Mitchell Says: The majority of our used cars have been on Full Maintenance Lease Agreements. They are better maintained than the average private car. We have been in the business of leasing vehicles (Cars and Trucks) for Twenty Seven (27) years. We believe in "Customer Goodwill All-Ways". Check our vehicles and prices before you make a decision to buy. You won't be disappointed — I guarantee it. "Twenty Seven years in business is your assurance of our integrity."

Selectmen debate who's in control

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Selectmen struggled with questions of local control, specifically their own control, Monday night.

"Maybe we don't want the project," selectman Mark Lombardi said of an Aberjona River erosion control proposal. "Nobody asked us."

"The state representative knows what's going on, yes. But he's not running this town. We are," he said during discussion of an MBTA plan to improve the Winchester and Wedgemere train stations.

"We didn't join the North Suburban Emergency Medical Consortium," Lombardi said during a third discussion. "But the state gave them a certificate of need and it looks like they're going to come in here without our permission."

Questions about the selectmen's role, including their role versus the town manager's, permeated Monday's session.

After 10 p.m., during discussion of the train station improvements, the issue came to a head, if not a conclusion.

Town manager Chad Maurer presented a list of maintenance projects to be performed by the MBTA at the town's two train stations.

The work will include improved drainage, repaving, painting, installation of a pigeon net under what the MBTA calls "Common Street," and installation of two dumpsters at Wedgemere station.

Lombardi was not pleased. "Again, nobody came to us to explain. They're jamming this down our throats again," he said. "The stations are ours (the town's)."

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, agreed. He said he learned of the project when he got the packet of town correspondence given weekly to selectmen just before their meeting.

"I remember the art project proposal for Wedgemere station," Welch recalled. "I took some heat for that but now I wonder how that would have coordinated with this."

A proposal for an art mural at Wedgemere was defeated in February.

He said he also objected to learning what would be done to town property by someone else only after a decision had been made.

"So what are we going to do about it?" Lombardi asked. Welch said he didn't know.

Selectman Judie Muggia suggested the town write to the MBTA, saying Winchester wanted a letter of intent ahead of time, even if other towns didn't.

Selectman Frank Sopper concurred. "If we had known ahead of time, we would have asked questions. Why do we need dumpsters? Where are they going to be? Who empties them? How often? What color are you going to paint the station?"

Bob Deering, the final selectman to join the discussion, asked if the town manager had consented to the project. Maurer said yes.

Deering said a clarification of "where the town manager's powers

Pregnant girls find help at high school

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

Pregnant Winchester High School girls for this first time this year have had in-school help.

MaryAnn LaPierre, a human development teacher at the high school, provides the service of educating pregnant teens.

The program is federally funded. This year Winchester received $1,200. Winchester is looking for another grant for the 1986-87 school year, but will not know until September, according to Harriet Nelson, home economics department coordinator at the high school.

LaPierre agreed last fall to take on the task last fall.

"Being a mother, I understand the psychological and emotional changes they are going through. I've experienced them," said LaPierre.

Pregnant teens at the high school come to LaPierre after they have decided to keep their babies.

"I'm not here to make a value judgment," she emphasizes. LaPierre's responsibility is to inform and teach the girls about prenatal care and nutrition, not to act as a counselor.

"I'm here to provide a service, not a lecture," she said.

According to LaPierre, three Winchester High School students who chose to keep their babies, took advantage of the pilot program.

Nelson said the three pregnancies she knows about are not necessarily the only ones at Winchester High School. "Most of the pregnant teens who go through the high school have abortions," she said.

> "We can't put our heads in the sand and say we're not the same as everyone else," Fiorillo said.

Winchester is not alone. Teenage sex and pregnancy is a nationwide problem. Across the Commonwealth, statistics indicate all high schools are facing the problem. In Arlington, an unofficial count for this year's pregnancies was 17 (including those who got abortions) at Arlington High School.

The former chairman of Winchester's Council On Youth, Veronica Fiorillo, notes that Arlington's population is more than twice Winchester's.

"We can't put our heads in the sand and say we're not the same as everyone else," Fiorillo said.

In 1984 in Massachusetts 2,730 girls under 18 gave birth. Of 31,876 abortions, 2,328 were for girls under 18.

How do schools work to prevent and educate teenagers?

LaPierre strongly suggests in-school health courses as a "preventive medicine."

Winchester High School offers two such courses, human development and early childhood development. Both courses are optional.

"I wish the courses would be required," said LaPierre.

"I think it's so important for children to be well-rounded," she said. The enrollment is small, due to students who must contend with full academic schedules. Each semester, only about 25 students enroll in the classes.

Nelson said part of her early childhood curriculum introduces juniors and seniors to Winchester Hospital's labor and delivery wards.

Nelson said her students don caps and gowns and visit the mothers and the newborns.

"It's important for them to be familiar with the whole environment," said Nelson.

Another part of the curriculum invites a nursery school to class once a week. Students plan the activities and each is assigned to a child. Nelson said the students are also given the opportunity to talk with the parents of the toddlers.

Nelson said students are surprised how much youngsters mimic them. She said she tells them, "little children are like clay in your hands, you have to set an example."

"Building self-esteem is one of our main goals," said LaPierre.

Pigeon net to be installed

It will soon be safer to walk beneath the Waterfield Road bridge.

Pedestrians won't need to look out for low-flying birds and navigate a messy sidewalk at the same time.

Joe Tabbi, health director, responded last week to a letter to the editor of The Winchester Star, assuring that a steel mesh net would be placed under the bridge in the next two weeks.

Marion Hatch complained in a May 29 letter, calling the mess caused by roosting pigeons "disgusting."

Tabbi said it has taken more than a year since he was hired and told to correct the problem but Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh recently promised installation of a net. Saltmarsh assisted the board of health in discus-

Local group hopes to bring 'civility' back to Winchester

"Civility is coming back to Winchester," says an optimistic Lee Behnke.

With the unanimous endorsement of the McCall Junior High School Parents' Association, Behnke will begin trying to teach junior high boys to fox trot.

"Most private schools see to it that students learn the pleasures of civility," Behnke says. "Public school used to."

Behnke admits junior high students aren't usually interested in learning manners, ballroom dancing and all Amy Vanderbilt might have approved. Most haven't even learned to talk to adults, she says.

But she is undeterred. "Why not junior high kids? They don't want to do anything anyway," she says.

If Behnke has her way, junior high boys and girls will learn in spite of themselves.

"No 13-year-old is going to do this willingly. But this is an idea whose time has come," Behnke predicts.

She plans to begin a formal dance program with two sessions of seven dances each, from 7 to 9 p.m. the first and third Fridays of each month, beginning Sept. 19, and another session next spring.

The first hour of each session will feature professional instruction in ballroom, disco and rock dancing as well as intruction in social skills and polite behavior.

The first session will end with a "Christmas Cotillion," a word many junior-highers will have to look up in dictionaries. The second session will end with a spring fling.

Worst from a kid's point of view, all boys must wear coats and ties while girls must wear a dress or dressy skirt and blouse. Sneakers are ultimately gauche and will not be tolerated.

"The young people might even have fun, if they don't mind learning to pass things correctly and talk to adults," Behnke says.

Winchester man beats the odds and his 'learning disability'

By GEORGE DERRINGER

"Learning disability" may have become a cliche to many, but dyslexia victim John Polcari knows it as a polite term for the enemy.

The good news is that Polcari is winning. He plans to enter law school next year.

Two years ago, Polcari was the subject of a Winchester Star article when he was the first sophomore to be elected student body president at the College of St. Anselm in Manchester, N.H.

The college hadn't even been sure it could handle somebody who has trouble reading and writing. Polcari knew better.

"I'm different, but I want to be better. I enjoy being the underdog. I want to make it big," Polcari freely admits.

Dyslexia is thought to be a structural brain disorder which causes victims to see the word "saw" and understand the word "was," the exact reverse. The letter M sometimes becomes W or E when a dyslexic person sees it.

With great encouragement from his parents, Polcari set out to defeat the enemy. At Winchester High, he succeeded, earning an award from the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and getting letters in football, wrestling and track.

Now only a year from his college graduation, Polcari recently spoke to the annual meeting of Recordings For The Blind, an organization based in Lenox.

"I went to say thank you. I wanted them to know the impact their organization can have on one person. They're my lifeline," Polcari says.

He surprised at least some in the audience when he told them, "we're going to law school together."

Most standard textbooks have been recorded on tape by the organization and Polcari has relied on them for years.

"Any time a professor assigns a new book, I buy three copies," Polcari explains. "I keep one and send the other two to Recordings For The Blind."

During his senior year, Polcari won't be student body president. "I held the office two years and wanted to give somebody else a chance," he says. "So I didn't file for re-election."

Polcari already has enough to do anyway. He's chairman of the committee to re-elect Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, Winchester's representative in the state legislature.

A naturally outgoing person, Polcari holds a part-time job during the school year at St. Anselm, working in the admissions office.

"I have to talk with hockey recruits, give tours, do some public relations and interview prospective students," Polcari says. "In a certain

Town says MDC favors access over reservoirs

Plans for increased use of the Middlesex Fells Reservation, which surround Winchester's reservoirs, are "more oriented to public access than to resource management," according to town manager Chad Maurer.

Maurer, selectman Frank Sopper, Department of Public Works director Dom Serratore, town engineer Jake Ciarcia and police chief John McHugh met last week with three representatives of the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), including commissioner William Geary, to hear more about expanded recreational use of the Fells.

Maurer said the MDC asked for $350,000 to prepare a management plan for the Fells but the governor reduced the request to $129,000 and nothing has yet been appropriated by the legislature.

One component of the plan is an interpretive services division, whose members would teach appreciation of nature and protection of the public water supply. New trails would be built.

"At present, the most accessible trails are adjacent to the (town-owned) water supply and in fact encourage people to come to the water," Maurer said.

Noting that full-time patrol of the banks would cost the town $97,000 per year, Maurer concluded that $129,000 would not be nearly enough to manage the area and staff interpretive services.

> "At present, the most accessible trails are adjacent to the water supply and in fact encourage people to come to the water," Maurer said.

Maurer's recommendations after the meeting include support of the higher appropriation of $350,000, creation of a watershed management program by the town for its own property, enforcement of trespassers and other abusers of the reservoir property and development of an alternative plan for increased enforcement, pending consideration of a future town meeting.

"It seems all the initiative in on Winchester," selectman Bob Deering said. "Are they just giving us lip service?"

Without directly answering, Maurer agreed that the intiative is Winchester's, but he said the town "can't criticize the MDC for not managing its property unless we manage our own."

He also said the MDC's "primary goal is interpretive services." He said the creation of the MDC reservation system in 1893 was intended for public use.

"There are conflicting purposes in here," Maurer said.

"How much would a good filtration system for the reservoir cost?" Deering asked. Winchester's water is totally unfiltered.

Selectman Frank Sopper said $4 million would be a good estimate.

Sopper said MDC officials, halfway through their meeting with Winchester officials last week, told the visitors, "You people are here because you have a problem. You didn't maintain or protect your reservoirs.

"Now we want to do something with interpretive services and you're upset," the MDC group said.

Sopper admitted they were right but said the MDC should not open up the area before Winchester corrected its past lack of management.

POLICE LOG

Police arrest man on drunk driving charge

Police arrested John E. Dunning, 18, of Arlington, for operating under the influence of alcohol on June 16 around 1:30 a.m.

Officer Jonathan Dean stopped a 1978 Ford on Pond Street after observing the car fail to stop for a red traffic light.

Monday, June 16

At 10:15 a.m., police arrested a Somerville resident on four outstanding warrants.

Officer William Maggio Jr. stopped a 1974 blue Plymouth sedan at the corner of Highland Avenue and South Border Road for an expired inspection sticker.

Maggio ran a check on the man and found the man wanted on an outstanding warrant from Saugus police for shoplifting, two from Stoneham for receiving stolen property and driving with an expired inspection sticker, and one from Somerville for breaking and entering during the daytime.

Sunday, June 15

At 5:45 a.m., police assisted the fire department at a fire at Winchester High School. Police were met by a custodian on the scene.

The fire started in the courtyard at the gym entrance. Police found plexiglass burning and smoke filling the upper and lower gym area, according to the report. The fire was extinguished.

At 7:14 p.m., two George Road residents told police someone smashed storm windows in their homes.

Saturday, June 14

At 12:05 p.m., a Fells Road resident told police someone smashed the window on her antique Chevrolet Corvair.

At 12:15 p.m., police arrested a Somerville resident for swimming in the Middlesex Fells reservoir.

At 7:34 p.m., police responded to a car accident at the corner of Highland Avenue and Prince Ave. A Medford resident was cited for failing to grant right of way at an intersection, police said.

Police said the resident failed to stop at the top of Prince Avenue. Damage to her car was to the driver's side door and the rear quarter. The other car suffered damage to the entire front end. Both cars were towed. Police reported no injuries.

At 11:54 p.m., officer Carl L. Fuller shot a dog at the transfer station after the dog was seriously injured in a car accident on Highland Avenue.

Police said a South Border Road resident hit the dog while driving on Highland Avenue. The dog suffered a broken spine, two broken hips and internal damage. Police said the dog was wearing no identification and an owner was not found.

Friday, June 13

At 9:44 a.m., an employee at Winchester Hospital told police someone stole a $279 dictator machine from an office in the hospital. The incident happened May 16, the employee said.

At 2:45 p.m., police cited an Arlington resident for driving with an expired inspection sticker, driving an unregistered, uninsured car and illegal attachment of license plates.

Police stopped the 1975 blue Ford Torino on Main Street. The car was towed.

At 6:15 p.m., a Bates Road resident reported a dog bite. A five-year-old girl was bitten by a doberman pinscher. She was taken to Winchester Hospital emergency room where she received 10 stitches in her cheek. Later she was taken to Harvard Community Health in Medford.

According to the report, the youth was bitten once before by the same dog and remained in the hospital for three days.

The dog belongs to a neighbor on Bates Road, who was babysitting the youth.

Police said dog officer Nick Molea has the dog in his custody and it will be put to sleep within the next week.

At 10:56 p.m., police cited a man at the corner of Grove Street and Fenwick Road for speeding and driving an unregistered car.

Winchester safety officer Kevin Mawn hands Karen Branley of 7 Sussex Rd. a Winchester Star newspaper under the rotary bridge in the downtown center. Last week the department randomly stopped cars in the center. Anyone wearing his or her seatbelt received a Winchester Star as part of a safety drive across New England.

FINANCING TODAY

Until just a few years ago, there was one basic type of loan. It had a fixed interest rate, level monthly payments, and ran from 20 to 30 years. It is still available and remains the favorite of most buyers.

Today, however, there are more loan varieties than Babe Ruth had home runs. Chief among them is the Adjustable-Rate Mortgage (ARM), which allows changes in the interest rate at specific times during the life of the loan. Adjustments are tied to changes in an independent index that reflects current market interest rates. Some ARMs permit rate adjustments every one, three or five years.

The interest rate on ARMs usually starts a couple of percentage points lower than the fixed rate mortgage. Then the interest rate fluctuates. True, the rate can go up if that's the way rates are going, however, they can go down automatically too. In that case, the borrower gets a lower rate without refinancing and incurring the fees and closing costs of a new loan.

No. 1 in Winchester because we care... It's more than just a business with us... it's you and the professional service we provide for you that is the cornerstone of our continued success... that's why more buyers and sellers select ANN BLACKHAM & CO. to be their Real Estate broker.

There's more than one way to finance an education!

With educational expenses on the rise and financial assistance more restrictive, families are looking for alternatives to pay for school. At Winchester Savings Bank, you'll find loans specifically for students . . . loans for parents of students . . . and even loans for students or parents who own homes. And in most cases, there are no restrictions on age, the type of school you're attending (or plan to attend), or if you're a half-time or full-time student.

HELP Loans: Administered by the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation, this federally sponsored program offers low-interest loans to undergraduate and graduate students. Parents are not required to co-sign, the first payment is deferred until after graduation and you have up to 10 years to repay.

PLUS Loans: This is also a locally administered, federally sponsored program that offers below-market rates to parents of dependent undergraduate students as well as to independent undergraduate and graduate students. Payments start within 45 days and the repayment period is negotiated.

Home Equity Lines of Credit: With a Winchester Savings Bank Home Equity Line of Credit, homeowners can use the equity in their homes to pay for the cost of education . . . or for whatever else they want. Lines of credit are available up to $150,000.

To find out more about financing your education, call 729-2130 or visit any office of Winchester Savings Bank.

Casey plans 'Sports Night'

Democratic legislative candidate Paul Casey will sponsor a "Sports Night" for the people of Stoneham and Winchester from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, June 19, at the Stoneham Knights of Columbus hall, 4 Spring St.

The event will feature hockey stars Neil Sheehy, of the Campbell Conference champion Calgary Flames, 1984 U.S. Olympians Mark and Scott Fusco, winners of the Hobey Baker Award, and several other sports guests.

Casey, who is running for the 34th Middlesex legislative seat comprising Winchester and two-thirds of Stoneham, encourages the sports minded public from both towns to come by. Admission is free, refreshments will be available, and a sports raffle with prizes will be held.

Eileen Cummings, first grade teacher at Lincoln School, was given a retirement party last week at Winchester Country Club. Cummings was a teacher in the Winchester School System for 32 years. Aberjona River erosion control project outlined

By GEORGE DERRINGER

A project to repair 430 feet of riverbank on the Aberjona River won't prevent future flooding, Winchester selectmen learned with some dismay Monday night.

Ronald Jackson, an officer of Collaborative Consulting Services, told selectmen both banks of the river between the Swanton Street bridge and the high school culvert would be shored up to prevent erosion.

Jackson's firm was hired by the state Department of Environmental Management's division of waterways to design the river slope reinforcement. The project is now waiting for all the necessary local, state and federal permits.

Selectmen, however, were surprised to learn that the project would not stop flooding of nearby homes.

They were more upset to learn that the town would be responsible for disposing of the waste soil taken out of the area when stone walls are built. The waste must not be taken out of Winchester, Jackson said.

Jackson noted especially severe erosion of the riverbank on the east side. He said a retaining wall will be built there for about 120 feet. Elsewhere, on both sides of the river, a riprap method, using granite blocks about two feet square, will be used.

Jackson said his project would not prevent flooding but suggested the study of the Skillings Road field, authorized by town meeting last month, might incorporate flood control.

He said flooding of homes is caused by water circling around from the culvert to the east side of the river, not by the river overflowing its banks in the Swanton Street area. Building a higher wall there, he said, would only prevent water from draining back into the river when floods subside.

Told they must dispose of the material to be excavated within town limits, selectmen said they had never heard of that responsibility until Monday.

Jackson said the material "is not objectionable soil and can be used elsewhere" but selectmen said the soil would be wet and would carry an unpleasant smell.

Jackson agreed and admitted the smell would be carried around town. "There's no such thing as a waterproof truck," he said.

No dredging is involved in the project. Because the river moves swiftly at times, Jackson said, "there's not much on the bottom."

"I don't believe we agreed to this," selectman Mark Lombardi said. "The state is saying they're going to do this project but we have to get rid of the waste.

"Maybe we don't want this project. This is the first time we heard about taking the waste," Lombardi said.

"The fill might be of benefit to us," selectman Wade Welch said. "We want the Woburn Loop we might want to fill."

Lombardi, however, still objected. "If it doesn't stop flooding and it costs the town a bunch of money to dispose of the waste," the town might not want the project, he said.

"The waste is a sensitive issue," Jackson agreed. "The Army Corps of Engineers requires that it not be placed in wetlands. And no town wants another's fill material."

Frank Sopper asked if anyone had picked out a place to put the waste.

Nobody had but Lombardi suggested it be put at the rear of the Lockeland Road site where subsidized housing will be built.

"Maybe we don't want the project," Lombardi said again. "We should say 'Don't give us the lollipop. The stick is too long.' "

Council for Children asks more money

The Mystic Valley Council for Children, based in Winchester, has urged legislators to continue support for both licensing and advocacy services of the state Office for Children.

In a letter, council chairman Maureen Redmond Richichi said the state office provides both licensing of programs and providers and advocacy services for children and families.

In a version of the fiscal 1987 budget passed by the House, funding for both programs would continue, she said.

Fees for commercial rubbish haulers still undetermined

BY GEORGE DERRINGER

The battle of rubbish haulers' fees went unsettled again Monday night with selectmen undecided about the fees they would charge for dumping at the transfer station.

They did decide the new system would be based on weight and directed the town manager to install scales at the station.

A new letter will be sent to commercial users of the transfer station, seeking their opinions about the question.

Selectmen began trying to raise tipping fees in April when it became apparent that solid waste disposal fees to the town have doubled from $21.50 to $43 a ton in the past two years.

Commercial haulers, particularly those who haul residential rubbish, objected to the fee schedule proposed by Dom Serratore, director of the Department of Public Works.

Since then, Serratore and town manager Chad Maurer met with two "representatives of the trash hauling community" to try to increase transfer station revenues without causing a giant increase in hauling fees for residential customers.

They agreed to charge all commercial vehicles owned by Winchester residents an annual registration fee of $200. The fee would be $500 for non-residents.

The DPW director and the town manager were unable to agree on all fees for weighed trash, however. In Serratore's recommendations, the fee would be $50 per ton for commercial refuse, building demolition debris and tires, $38 per ton for commercial haulers' household refuse and $31 per ton for leaves, grass and wood chips brought by commercial haulers.

'Half the landscapers are going to go out of business. It doesn't seem right,' Lombardi said.

Maurer's recommendation was identical, except that the fee would be only $10 per ton for commercial haulers household refuse.

Bob Deering said he "has problems" with the proposed rates. He said residents are already paying for the transfer station through property taxes.

Frank Sopper asked how anyone could tell if a commercial hauler was bringing trash from another town. Maurer said they couldn't.

Mark Lombardi pointed out that his son, who used to be in the landscape business, would have objected to an increase in grass clipping charges from zero to $31 a ton.

"Half the landscapers are going to go out of business. It doesn't seem right," Lombardi said.

Sopper said he opposed $31 a ton for grass clippings, which really don't cost the town anything to accept.

After much discussion, selectmen decided to invite all haulers, plumbers, carpenters, builders and others who make regular use of the transfer station to a meeting to seek an equitable solution.

John Edward Airey, a hauler, suggested that residents also be represented at such a meeting.

"We represent the taxpayers. That's what we were elected to do," selectman Wade Welch said.

In other business Monday night, selectmen:

• Approved a new rate schedule and a new sign for Wildwood Cemetery.

• Approved a July 4 block party for residents of the Fells Road, Kenilworth Road and Euclid Avenue. The party is from 3 to 9 p.m.

• Deferred any decision to require cast iron pipe sewer connections because Jim Courchaine, head of the DPW's water and sewer division, was on vacation and unable to offer comment last week.

• Heard a report from Mike Connolly, saying the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority "is behind the town" in its dealings with the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) to protect town reservoirs.

• Agreed to seek further information about the incorporation of the Domino's Pizza location and its effect on the restaurant's license.

• Objected to the state's issuance of a certificate of need for North Suburban Emergency Medical Consortium to implement an advanced life support system. The consortium is of Choate-Symmes and Winchester Hospitals and Lahey Clinic and originally approached selectmen for support. The group did not contact selectmen again, however, until after it obtained the required certificate of need.

• Learned that water levels in town reservoirs are at their lowest levels since 1981 and that water will be pumped from Spot Pond at the rate of two million gallons per day.

• Sent congratulations to Susan Keats, newly elected chairman of the nine-member town hall building committee. Randolph Kazazian was elected vice chairman and Dan Chane secretary.

• Agreed not to meet July 7 and 28, Aug. 18 and Sept. 1. The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. other Mondays through September with another meeting Tuesday, Sept. 2.

• Reorganized representatives for negotiations with firemen and policemen, two groups which have not settled their contracts with the town.

Surplus food to be given out

Surplus food from the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be distributed from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday, July 9, at the Winchester veterans' services office on the ground floor of the town hall.

To be eligible, individuals must have income of less than $7,000 a year or bring proof of participation in one of the following programs: welfare, AFDC, SSI, fuel assistance, food stamps, WIC, Head Start, veterans aid or Medicaid.

Recipients must appear during the assigned time. Those with last names beginning with letters A-G are to come at 11 a.m., those with names H-P at 12:30 p.m. and those with names Q-Z at 2 p.m.

Elderly home care services expanded

Minuteman Home Care Corporation (MHCC), a non-profit agency providing services to people 60 years and older in Winchester, offers expanded services.

Last March, new income eligibility guidelines went into effect for the State Home Care program, opening access to frail elders in a higher income group.

"For ten years we have had to turn people away because their income was just a few dollars over the allowable level, even if they were very frail and needed our services. Now many more older people in our 16 communities can have access to case management and a wide range of services to help them remain independent at home," explained MHCC executive director Joan Butler-West.

Eligibility guidlines were raised considerably: up from $9,348 to $12,371 of annual gross income for an individual and from $12,213 to $17,524 for a two-person household. A sliding fee scale is used to determine the rates for home care services according to an older person's ability to pay.

For people whose income exceeds these levels, a new community resource program is now offered, providing a home visit and consultation, at no charge, from MHCC's community resource coordinator, Donna Popkin. Popkin will help older persons and their families identify the specific type of assistance they need, inform them of available resources and associated costs and assist them in securing services they can afford.

With the approval of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs, MHCC has created a home care hospital liaison services coordinator position, whose sole responsibility is to assure that when elders go home, services are in place to support them during recuperation.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

HOW TO REMEMBER WHAT YOU'VE SEEN

You've just spent the day looking for a new home, in a new neighborhood, and now it's all become one giant blur. Which house had the great dark room? Was it the same one with the awful kitchen? You saw so much that you can't remember anything! Many of us experienced this when we were new in the business and, subsequently, we developed little tricks to help us remember the thousands of properties we see each year which can help you too!

Carry a notebook with you when you're house hunting, and give each house its own page. On the top, note the address and price. Next, write down the exterior construction, style and color—"red brick colonial with blue shutters." Note the color of the living room carpet and walls and any other major feature that will jar your memory when you get home. Some people will nickname houses—"the white cat house" or "copper pots house" — anything to help you retain a mental picture of the property as well as those features you especially liked or disliked. This will help you to recap the day with the agent you're working with so you can give important feedback that will speed up the search for the perfect home!

If you're planning to buy or sell a home, calling Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors is a good first step. Our real estate professionals can service all your real estate needs. Call us at 729-7000, or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street, Winchester, MA.

Town, Trodella discuss new plant, town road to dump

Trodella, with help from a $3.2 million bond issue by the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency, plans a 45,000 square-foot structure on McKay Avenue, known to most residents as the street to the transfer station.

The site now houses the Grief Brothers paper manufacturing warehouse. The town has a right-of-way through the property to the transfer station.

Attorney Lawrence Murray presented the proposal, showing 18,750 of light manufacturing space and 26,250 square feet of space in a two-story office building.

Although the site is in a light industrial zone, several variances and waivers would be require to construct the proposed building, Murray said.

Site review is also required because the site is adjacent to a conservancy zone, specifically the transfer station. The Sons of Italy hall is in the same zone and also adjacent to the Trodella site.

Murray said a new parking lot, larger than the company needs, would help accommodate overflow crowds at the Sons of Italy hall. The new structure would also replace "an unsightly building," he said.

The project has not yet been discussed with neighbors, he admitted.

Trodella manufactures electrical components for heating and air conditioning systems and for elevators, Murray said.

"You're going to add 75 new jobs to 225 employees you have now. I can see 600, maybe 800, more cars per day on Swanton Street," selectman Bob Deering said.

The company and its 225 employees now have headquarters on River Street, off Cross Street.

Joe Trodella, however, said most of the company's workers are not at the headquarters but scattered over perhaps 36 job sites. Many only come to the office once a month, he said.

"There might be 55 cars or so in a given day," Trodella said. He pointed out that Grief regularly parks many trailers on the site while Trodella employees take vans home to provide 24-hour service to customers.

The building would be occupied from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, Trodella said, and a truck dumping a load of trash would make more noise than the company.

> 'Something's wrong,' Sopper said. 'Why can't you build something according to our zoning bylaws? Can't that be done?'
> Murray responded. "The zoning bylaws have a variance process built in,' he said.

Selectman Mark Lombardi suggested the town might like to turn its right-of-way into a public road. "I can envision in 10 years we'll be selling the transfer station," he said.

Lombardi said he would not agree to reducing a fire lane at the rear of the building from 15 to 10 feet, based on the empty lot there now at the transfer station.

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, agreed the transfer station would not be a permanent fixture. He also said the proposal "might be one instance where the board might want to send a letter to the board of appeals, stating our views."

Selectman Frank Sopper, who calls zoning his "pet peeve," said "every development has been granted through all kinds of variances."

He said the necessity for variances means to him "either that our zoning is too restrictive or the developers are saying it's a joke and nothing to worry about."

Citing a familiar statistic, Sopper said 37 of the past 47 variance requests have been granted.

"Something's wrong," Sopper said. "Why can't you build something according to our zoning bylaws? Can't that be done?"

Murray responded. "The zoning bylaws have a variance process built in," he said. "Both the town bylaws and the general laws of the commonwealth talk about variances. If there should never be any, they should be eliminated from the laws."

Murray said the board of appeals "has exercised its discretionary rights with great concern" during his 17 years in Winchester.

The attorney said a high percentage of variance requests is granted because many people never file requests. "They investigate first and don't feel their case is meritorious," Murray said.

In the lot under discussion, Murray said, the only way to do anything without asking for a variance or site plan review is to build nothing.

Later, Murray nearly offered to make the town's right-of-way a public road. Before he got the words out, however, Lombardi and Welch said he should only think about it at the moment.

"Had Mr. Lombardi asked about it, he would be favorbably disposed to our answer," Murray said.

The proposal is under preliminary site plan review by the planning board and board of appeals. Official public hearings will be scheduled later.

Town hall openings

One member is sought to serve a one-year unexpired term on the Town of Winchester's personnel board.

The personnel board conducts research on area wage and working conditions and serves in an advisory capacity to town agencies and the town manager.

The board also assists in the coordination of collective bargaining activities with all organized groups except the professional school staff.

Not later than March 1 each year, the town manager submits a proposed compensation plan and personnel policy guide to the personnel board. The board holds a public hearing on the plan and guide, followed by the board's submission of recommendations to the town manager.

Recommendations of the personnel board which are not adopted by the town manager are attached to the final compensation plan and personnel policy guide brought before the town meeting.

Letters of interest should be sent by July 2 to the chairman of the board of selectmen or the town manager, both at 71 Mt. Vernon St., Winchester 01890.

Who's in control?

and the selectmen's powers begin and end" is needed.

He said the MBTA originally outlined its plan for maintenance to selectmen but went to the town manager, the Department of Public Works (DPW) director and Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh for later discussion.

"We need a better definition of how the town manager and the selectmen interact," Deering said.

Selectmen and Maurer agreed the work should be done but also agreed the "problem is with the process, not with the project," as Welch said.

"We want to avoid an inner circle and an outer circle, where some people know what's going on and some don't," Welch said. "Our concern is why the selectmen were informed so late in the game."

The MBTA has contracted for the train station work, which will begin "within the next few weeks."

Lombardi said the town manager should have invited selectmen "along for the field trip" to talk with MBTA representatives.

"What's going to happen when kids set fires in the dumpsters?" he asked.

"Can't we stop the dumpsters?" Sopper asked.

Perhaps backing off a bit, Deering declared, "We don't want to decide the colors of the paint. That's why we have a town manager."

Lombardi disagreed. "I remember when a different town manager and the DPW director painted the building at the (Wildwood) cemetery orange," he said. Lombardi protested and the building was re-painted gray.

"And they agreed to replace three broken boards in a park bench with two boards," he said.

"Oh, we can't decide all the colors," Welch said, agreeing with Deering.

"Should we leave them all orange?" Lombardi said forcefully.

"Maybe we should," Welch said. "If the dumpsters are ugly, so be it."

Deering said the role of selectmen did not include "criticizing the town manager or DPW director because they chose orange."

Deering said such criticisms would be better handled with phone calls, not at a public meeting.

"We can't nit-pick everything in town. We have to show some confidence in our town employees," he said.

"Amen," Muggia responded.

Lombardi disagreed. "I ran for selectman because I wasn't happy with things. I want to talk about them and try to correct them. I'm not sitting here trying to make friends," he said.

"What we're doing here," Welch said, "is trying to make the town manager form of government work."

"If the process worked, we would have been able to ask about the dumpsters and where Common Street is," Sopper said. "If the MBTA puts the pigeon net under the wrong bridge, I'll be very unhappy."

Civility returning

Junior high girls may like civility classes more than boys, though. Senior high boys will serve as "extras," dancing with girls at the sessions.

"A while back, it became obvious that some senior high kids are desperate," Behnke says. "A few of them even tried to organize a class in ballroom dancing. But senior high is really too late for most people."

Yes, there are also openings for "charming high school boys" to both help the class and learn a modicum of civility, at a greatly reduced fee.

Civility at McCall costs $70. Interested parents (no kid will admit interest, Behnke says) should contact Behnke at 28 Maxwell Rd. for more information.

Comprehensive Dentistry with an emphasis on caring . . . about you!

Drs. Peter Coakley and Louis Trainor have always put their patient's concern first. They, along with their friendly staff, are experts at making you feel relaxed . . . from the moment you enter . . . to the time you leave including stereo headphones and television, to make you feel right at home.

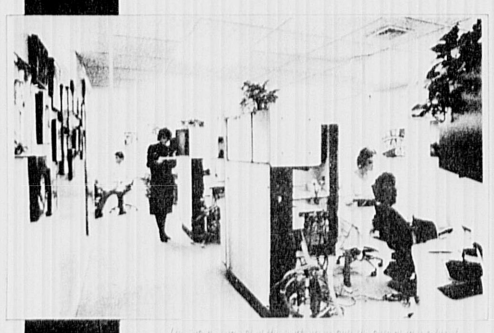

This unique philosophy, combined with state-of-the-art equipment and methods, creates a dentistry office that the entire family will enjoy visiting.

The staff is looking forward to serving their current patients and those new patients who will discover the recently expanded offices at 90 Pleasant Street in Woburn.

And to give you a reason to visit them, Drs. Coakley and Trainor, along with their staff, are holding an Open House on Friday, June 20th, from 12 noon to 7:00 p.m. Free gifts for everyone who attends.

Remember . . . we cater to cowards.

ASK THE EDUCATORS

Charles Mitsakos Superintendent

Queston: Do you have any suggestions for the students, staff, or community for this summer?

Consider focusing on reading and processing with your children during their summer vacation.

Encourage them to read a book a week or to participate in the exciting summer reading program through our fine public library. Three of my favorites that I would recommend to children of different ages are "A Rose for Pinkerton" by Steven Kellogg for primary graders, "Superfudge" by Judy Blume for eight to ten year olds, and the award-winning novel by Sylvia Cassidy, "Behind the Attic Wall," for older children.

The summer is also a great time to tackle the classics. "Cobblestone" or other children's periodicals are good choices as well. The important thing is reading.

Take time to process some of the experiences you have with your children during vacation. Chart travel on maps and note mileage, differences in terrain, architecture, and so forth. Raise questions about objects found on the beach or other natural phenomena. Talk about the way your kids feel about some of the things they are doing and the discoveries they are making.

Most of all just take time with your youngsters. Share and celebrate their childhood.

Danice O'Neil and Peggy Keefe McCall nurses

Question: What can I do to make this summer a healthy one for my child?

To maximize your enjoyment of family activities, keep basic health suggestions in mind. Increased activity, combined with higher temperatures, can lead to dehydration in children. Be sure to supply them with extra fluids, particularly water and juices, to replenish fluid lost through perpiration.

Children can tolerate the addition of moderate amounts of extra salt when temperatures are extremely high to help counteract excessive fluid loss.

Sunburn is also a major problem. Children's skin is sensitive and can burn easily, particularly near the water. Precautions should be taken by applying sunscreen, the higher the number the better the protection, and covering up. T-shirts should be worn for swimming by especially sun-sensitive individuals.

A word about safe play rules, bicycle riding, skating and skateboarding. Remember that accidents are the leading cause of death in children and it is better to over-caution your child than assume they will respond appropriately.

Exposure to nature can also mean exposure to poison ivy and oak, insect bites, cuts and scrapes. Immediate washing of the skin after exposure to these plants with an alkaline brown laundry bar soap is sometimes effective in eliminating the toxins from poison ivy and oak.

Keep cuts clean and covered to minimize the risk of infection. Be aware of the date of last tetanus shots for all family members. Immunization must be renewed ever 10 years.

Lastly, don't forget to check your child frequently for head lice. Close contact, summer camps, and increased sleep-overs can rapidly spread this problem. Caution your children not to share combs, brushes and headgear with other children.

Question: Can you give us some summer safety tips?

I have listed below summer safety tips which I feel are appropriate:

Bicycle Safety

--Ride on the right near the curb, with the flow of traffic
--Watch for cars turning into traffic
--Watch for car doors opening suddenly
--Ride in single file when with a group
--Obey all traffic signs, signals, and road markings
--Use hand signals to indicate a turn or stop

--Walk bicycle across all busy intersections
--Never weave from lane to lane, or hitch a ride on any moving vehicle

--Allow pedestrians, cars or trucks the right of way when they are about to cross in front of you

--Be aware of road hazards such as sewer grates or manholes with openings large enough to trap bicycle tires; avoid loose gravel

Swimming

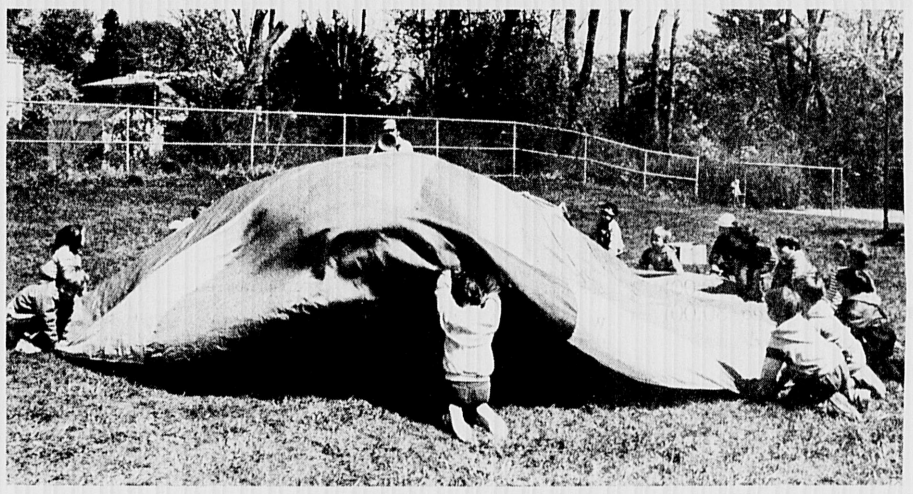

--Never swim alone or when tired, overheated, or chilled
--Avoid roughhousing
--In a rescue situation, don't swim to aid drowning person unless trained in life saving techniques
--Never enter water during an electrical storn
--Wait at least one hour after eating before swimming

Seat Belt Safety

Buckle up your seat belt when in an automobile. It's a law and the life you save may be your own!

NOTES FROM THE BLACKBOARD

Jury selection is highlight

The eighth grade government classes of Kenneth Tully at McCall Junior High visited the Middlesex County Courthouse in Cambridge to observe the judicial system. Each class spent a day at the courthouse to see a judge at work and a trial in progress. A highlight of the trip was being present for actual selection of a jury.

Earth science field trips

Eugene Bouley and Neal Gillis, science teachers at McCall, led eighth graders on extended earth science field trips.

One was an all-day trip to New York state to visit rare earth formations. With two changes of clothes en route, students returned tired but exhilarated after a day of crawling through caves and hiking over rough terrain.

The other trip, closer to home, was to Nahant to pursue scientific inquiry in McCall's award-winning earth science program.

A winning barbecue

The Project WIN annual barbecue was held June 11 despite rain. AM WINners went to the Stone Zoo, umbrellas in hand. Then they returned and were joined by the primary and intermediate students in the learning disabled classes, who had helped to set up for an indoor barbecue feast, cooked on covered grills by umbrellaed chefs.

All meats were donated by Frank Bianco and his family.

PM WINners provided and joined everyone else for dessert in the afternoon.

Destroyers to Smokey Bear

The all-school field trip, a learning experience as well as an end-of-the-year social event, was a huge success. About 250 students from the kindergarten through Grade 6, along with 50-plus faculty and parent chaperones, spent a memorable day touring and exploring.

They toured the Heritage Museum and saw a scale model of the Titanic, learned the importance of knot-tying and of old Fall River as a mill town. They also explored the battleship "U.S.S. Massachusetts," the destroyer "U.S.S. Kennedy" and the PT boat "Sea Lion".

After a picnic lunch in the seaside park, everyone saw park animals and a short film. They also constructed some simple crafts. Topping the day off was a vist from "Smokey the Bear."

When the buses rolled back in late afternoon, a tired but smiling sea of students swept through the doors, expressing many of the same sentiments when asked about their day. "That was the most awesome field trip ever!"

Puppet show

During the final weeks of the school year members of the Lincoln fifth grade will present a puppet show to the school community. Using elaborate puppets made in art class under the tutelage of Sophis Mone, the class will perform an adaptation of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales."

Pupils wrote the script themselves in modern prose, for the benefit of those with rusty middle English. Teacher Steve Frazee directed the project.

Gumballs and reading

Lincoln's fourth grade reading students have been involved in a personal reading program. Each student started with an empty gumball machine printed on white paper. Colored dots represented gumballs and each gumball represented a book.

After reading a book and having a conference about it with the teacher, each student got to place one gumball in his or her machine. By the end of the year, the machines were full of gumballs.

Mississippi River Project

One day a week during social studies, Lincoln fourth graders studied different states east of the Mississippi River. The project involved writing, math, geography and history.

Travel agencies, librarians, friends who traveled to a faraway state, and friends who have lived in other states became involved.

Fun time came when the students played trivia about the states.

Lynch aide appreciation day

Teacher-aides at Lynch got a nice surprise recently when fellow teachers celebrated them with aide appreciation day. Principal Andrew Allan presented each aide with a corsage before a home-baked buffet breakfast was served.

Stuents learning calligraphy with art teacher Marguerite Masserian made diplomas for each aide and throughout the day students and teachers alike approached the aides with their own reasons why they were appreciated. The aides at Lynch include: Janet Andrews, grade 2; Linda Barrile, primary special needs; Kathy Collins, resource room; Glenda Cook, WIN program; Peggy Gagnon, kindergarten; Ellen Gaiero, WIN program; Peggy Hallisey, library; Patsy Matsudea, kindergarten; and Marilyn Rivela, intermediate special needs.

At week's end the aides were hinting a celebration of their own in honor of their teacher colleagues that could be complete with dandelion corsages!

Spelling bee

Second graders in Peggy Kerr's class at Lynch and third graders in Maria Ramirez's class have been practicing their spelling lessons recently to meet head on in a spelling bee. The top three spellers in grade two are: Vincent Pallaver, Cheryl Casserly and David Luongo.

The top three spellers in grade three are Timmy Salter, Nicky DellaCioppa and Janka Chovanek. The overall winner of the day was Vincent Pallaver.

Library activities at Lynch

Although the Lynch library is conducting its annual book inventory, students and their reading needs have not been forgotten. Each classroom has a large box of library paperbacks for children to read, and each class has been given a set of library magazines to browse through.

Students who have been participating in the Literary Luncheons all year had a special pizza lunch in June. They brought in works by favorite poets to share.

Winners of the library's Seashore Month shell identification contest were: Michael Hennessy, Grade 4; Gemma Porter, Grade 3; and Tracey Dooley, kindergarten. Hennessy is now the proud owner of a shark's tooth. Porter and Dooley are proud owners of whelk shells.

Teamwork

After a two-month study of Eastern Woodland Indians, Jamestown, and Plymouth, Mary Conley's fourth grade social studies students at Muraco recently organized an information performance.

Four teams did extensive research and note-taking in preparation. Some activities involved were plays, costume design, filmstrips, visuals, arts and crafts, sign language, cooking, and weapon and tool making.

Biographies

Muraco School first graders were made famous as subjects for biographies written by fifth and sixth graders. Interviews were conducted and the finished product was bound in book form. These special books were placed in the school library or given to the younger child.

Parents participate

Parents of first graders at Muraco have organized a year-end "Fun Day" at Leonard Park. Plans include games, parachute play, popsicles and a picnic. Teachers Marilyn DiMassa and Patricia Slater are special guests.

Second graders are having their annual Japanese banquet. Students of Susuan Bokil and Leslie Eggeling will be in costume to present a show and tell session detailing their learnings about Japan. The highlight of the day will be the banquet, prepared and served by second grade parents.

Congratulations

Congratulations to the following Vinson-Owen students: Fifth grader, Jonathan Simeone, for winning a "Special Merit Award" for his poster submitted to the Water Resource Committee. This award was presented June 12 at the State House.

Congratulations to Joey Corkery, Tim Callahan, Kathryn Wilson and Palash Misra, grade 4/5, who participated in the system-wide poetry fair at Winchester High School.

Congratulations to Advanced Projects/Mentor program students fifth graders Jonathan Simeone and Kirt Minihane, whose investigation of the legal system culminated in a dramatic presentation, and to sixth grader Lauren Blanchard for her project on animal trapping.

Museum of Science trip

Grade 2/3 at the Vinson-Owen School recently visited the Museum of Science on a field trip, touring in small groups. After lunch on the banks of the Charles River behind the museum, children attended a live animal presentation given by Leslie Kennedy, aunt of student Michelle Kennedy, who is employed by the museum.

The trip to the museum correlated with the science curriculum. In addition, science classes have been involved in a two-part presentation by representatives of the Boston Edison Company. The children saw a film and received information about electricity, discussing safety procedures in the home and school.

Logo programming used

For the past few weeks math students in the Vinson-Owen's grade 4/5 have been using their creative powers to develop some very interesting LOGO programs. Students have been working in small groups, first learning the LOGO computer language, then writing programs that draw a variety of geometric shapes, and finally using all their skills to do some free programing.

Many students devoted quite a bit of their free time and after-school time to work on some very sophisticated programs.

SCHOOL NEWS

Bett named National Scholar

Christopher Bett of Winchester, son of Titian and Martha Bett, is one of 258 high school seniors across the nation recently named a "National Scholar" by Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

Accepted as a member of the class of 1990 at Cornell, Bett will be a student in the College of Engineering and plans to major in electrical engineering.

The Cornell National Scholar Program, established in 1944 by the university's Board of Trustees, recognizes depth of extracurricular involvement, diversity of interests, and leadership capability of a select group of high school students accepted for admission. Approximately 500 students are nominated each year from more than 6,000 eligible secondary school seniors.

In Winchester High School, Bett's extracurricular involvement included Eagle Scout in Boy Scouts of America, Boys' State, the school newspaper, and math league.

Three graduate at Matignon

Winchester graduates are Carrie Greco, Michael Palmer and Suzanne Quill.

Hill graduates at Brimmer and May

Kimberly Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hill, was recently named to the honor roll at the Brimmer and May school in Chestnut Hill.

She graduated June 5, and as president of her class, gave the commencement address and presented the senior gift.

She was also honored with the coveted Alumnae Award. She will attend Roger Williams college in the fall.

Brimmer and May is the oldest non-sectarian independent school for girls in the Boston area. The school accepts both boys and girls in grades nursery through six and girls in grades seven through twelve.

Amelia Davis earns diploma

Amelia Davis, daughter of Mrs. Maxine B. Davis, was among 412 students to receive diplomas from Northfield Mount Hermon School in Northfield.

Davis is a member of the Cum Laude Society and the recipient of the Bard College prize for critical writing.

Davis will enter Newcomb College in September.

COMMENT

Winchester Kernels

Class reunions are underway and The Star recently printed several stories about reunions this year.

One man, however, stopped by to discuss the class of 1921.

The class had 48 graduates but only nine boys.

"It was right after World War I and a lot of boys lied about their age and enlisted," Murphy recalls. Some had to eat a lot of bananas to make the required weight.

Some never returned the war. By 1971, at 50th class reunion, Murphy was the only male.

Murphy has many fond memories. One of relatively few Irishmen in Winchester early in the century, he left to work out of Pittsburgh. "I was at every refinery and power plant east of Tulsa," he says.

His brother, Charlie Murphy, stayed in town until he died in July 1984 at 75. He owned gas stations and served on the board of directors of more than one local bank.

Vincent Ambrose, who grew up to be a bank president, was also in the class of 1921. He was named the "smartest boy." A good choice, Murphy thinks.

He remembers Miss Naven, Miss Cullen and Mrs. Doherty, who taught the first four grades. "They taught appreciation of reading," Murphy says.

Sadly, there will be no 65th reunion of the Class of 1921. But Jack Murphy will never forget.

A good education and dimples to boot

By TERRY MAROTTA

Picture this: a boy about 21 with more dimples than the Campbell Kids and forearms to make strong girls cry.

He grew up in a middle class town; made A's in school and hung out at the playground; got into fights, and was football captain; played cards and was Senior Class President.

I met him on a summer job when we were both in college. We worked as research assistants in a library, which meant I sat each day across from all those muscles. I lost my head and asked him out our second week there. He made an excuse, and blushed furiously.

I followed his progress through the rest of college. I was the type, at that stage, who bought the books and marked 'em solid with yellow highlighter pen, not daring to call any part unimportant. He was the type who never bought them at all, but borrowed them instead to read two days before the final. As far as I could tell, the rest of his energies he directed toward sports, toward late-night conversation, and, in confederacy with a room-mate of equally casual outlook, toward perfecting and betting upon a game of many rules that involved the lobbing of small bits of wadded-up paper into a dented metal wastebasket fifteen feet from the bed.

By the time we both graduated, I'd won higher grades than my friend; he may have won the better education.

A few years later, the following incident took place. I recount it here because it seems to capture, about as well as any one anecdote, the kind of person this young man was.

Somebody had stolen his car again. He lived then in the kind of neighborhood where it was entirely routine to walk out the door in the morning and find one's vehicle missing. He drove the kind of car that had "steal me" written all over it, the easiest vehicle in America to hotwire, a sweet and elderly Dodge Dart.

It had been missing for three or four days. My friend was hitching a ride home with somebody else.

They slowed down at an intersection. Suddenly, there was the car — his car, a teenager at the wheel, tearing at a decidedly unelderly clip, in the opposite direction.

"That's it!" he yelled to his friend. And, just like in the movies, "Follow that car!"

They followed it. Screeched a U-turn onto the protesting asphalt and gave chase. A pair of astonished and terrified eyes glanced up at the rearview mirror as the thief saw them bearing down. In tandem, they barrelled down streets and careened around corners.

Finally the thief shot up over the curb and onto the sidewalk, threw open the door and took off on foot.

My friend pursued him through backyards and over fences.

When he caught him at last, he lifted him in classic playground fashion by the seat of the pants and the scruff of the neck; and over the boy's desperate and whirling fists, without once hitting him back, jammed him into a phone booth and called the police.

It was a neat sweet illustration of a citizen's arrest. A neat, sweet illustration of my friend's character.

Now what would you do, if you were a young lady with a friend like this? A man that so nicely combined the merciful and the tough, the gentle and the decisive: a Jesus, with muscles; a Spartan, with sentiment.

You'd marry him.

Which is what I did. Sixteen years ago tomorrow.

Fella came up to him on the street last month and said, "It's your wife, isn't it, that writes in the paper."

"Sure," my friend answered.

"The stories she tells about you: the revelations. I don't know how you stand it!"

But my old friend, he just smiled.

He knows these aren't columns, only, that I write about him here. They're love letters. From the biggest fan he'll ever have.

GUEST COLUMN

Joggers are best Fells protection

By ROBERT J. CARROLL

I read with dismay that the Winchester selectmen have instructed the police to arrest people who venture into the Winchester reservoir area.

Simply cutting off all public access to the reservoir area is self-defeating. Here's why: joggers and walkers are the only people who actively protect the Fells and reservoirs on a daily basis.

For example, I saw a party of people with fishing gear headed to the reservoir and I saw some kids starting to light a campfire near the reservoir.

When I returned to my house, since Winchester police do not cover the reservoir Monday through Friday, I telephone the MDC police, who said other joggers had already called about the fishing party and the MDC police had dispatched a cruiser.

My point is this: No number of police patrols or fences can protect the Fells and reservoirs as well as concerned citizens can.

Instead of cutting off all public access to the beautiful roads around the reservoir, thus leaving the area to those few who will sneak in and abuse the land, why not issue yearly or seasonal permits to run and walk there?

The permit could be for road use only, leaving the reservoirs' shore out of bounds.

It would be no more complicated than issuing a permit to use the dump.

People who love the reservoir area enough to pay for a permit are the very people who will protect the area by reporting anyone fishing, swimming or drinking liquor and littering.

Contrary to what is implied by some people who would go to extremes or trying to protect our water supply, the reservoirs are not sterile test tubes.

Fish, forest animals and geese all eat, defecate and raise their young in and on the reservoir, so people walking on the roads nearby can do no harm.

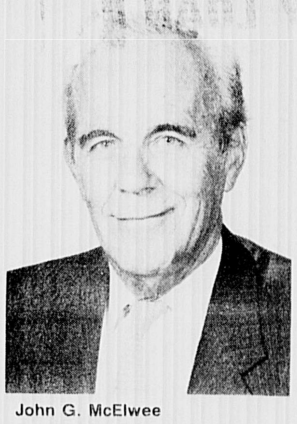

Furthermore, I believe the high school cross country team runs on those roads without doing any harm. Incidentally, the Quabbin reservoir provides water too and limited public access does not harm the Quabbin.

Let's use an available people resource to protect the reservoirs. Let's allow the joggers and walkers to use the reservoir roads by permit and let them continue to watch over the place they cherish.

P.S. If anyone wants to pay a $50 fine for being too near the reservoir, I'll be happy to — after Mr. Sopper pays his fine!

Elizabeth Keyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Prescott Keyes, graduated May 25 from Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Howland graduate at Pine Manor

Jacqueline Sue Howland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Howland of Winchester, received an associate of arts degree in liberal studies from Pine Manor College during the school's 75th commencement May 18.

Pine Manor, located in Chestnut Hill, is a four-year liberal arts college for women.

Ten graduate from Tufts

About 1,700 degrees were awarded by Tufts University during its 130th commencement May 18 on the university's Medford campus.

Local graduates included:

Michael Anthony Annino of 61 Oxford St., who majored in classics. He received a bachelor of arts degree.

Martha Jane Doherty of 49 Oxford St., who majored in classics. She received a bachelor of arts degree and graduated cum laude.

Kathleen Jane Girard of 5 Herrick St., who majored in psychology. She received a bachelor of arts degree and graduated magna cum laude.

Gregory Julian Hanes of 51 Washington St., who majored in geology. He received a bachelor of science degree.

Leslie Ann Howell of 76 Irving St., who majored in education. Howell received a master of arts degree.

Mark Andrew Micciche of 5 Amberwood Dr., who majored in biopsychology. He received a bachelor of science degree.

Brian Ronald Milauskas of 20 Sargent Rd., who majored in English. He received a bachelor of arts degree.

Wayne Eric Paskerian of 5 Warren St., who received a bachelor of science in mechanical engineering.

Laszlo Arpad Von Lazar of 91 Church st., who majored in international relations and history. Von Lazar received a bachelor of arts degree and graduated magna cum laude.

Catherine Josephine Walsh of 45 Wedgemere Ave., who majored in education. She received a master of arts degree.

Two get degrees at Bunker Hill

The graduates were among 439 awarded degrees at the college's 12th spring commencement May 31 in Boston.

Fair brochure available free

The 1986 agricultural fair season has begun!

Throughout this season, home gardeners, as well as commercial growers, exhibit their produce, live stock, canned goods, baked goods, handcrafts and special hobbies for competition and profit at fairs across the state.

There are over 100 of these agricultural fairs including grange, 4-H and youth, livestock and flower shows, with the majority from August to October.

The Middlesex County Cooperative Extension Office offers a free "Massachusetts Agricultural Fair" listing. This colorful brochure lists all town and regional fairs in the state.

One of the most delightful fairs of the season is the Middlesex County 4-H Fair, held at the Westford 4-H Fairgrounds, August 22-24. This year will mark the 30th anniversary of the fair in Westford.

Write to "Fair Brochure", Middlesex County Cooperative Extension, 105 Everett St., Concord 01742 for a free fair listing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More severe sentences needed

TO THE EDITOR:

You are right. The danger of the drunk driver is considerable, and we all are at risk.

Those arrested should spend some period of time in jail, if only 24 hours. Also, all licenses should be suspended for a longer period of time.

When manslaughter is involved, our courts must convict, and more severe sentences be given.

Channel 2's helpers thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

The figures are in, and the Channel 2 auction has surpassed its goal, raising $1.3 million this year!

For this success, of course, we owe a sincere debt of gratitude to the many donors and high bidders in the Winchester area. My special thanks go to Barbara Ahern and her team of go-getters for their hard work in collecting all the donations.

The generosity of our supporters will be reflected in the programming to come.

Yours truly,
Mary Ann Armstrong

Alcohol got a full page

TO THE EDITOR:

You had an impressive amount of space in The Star focused on alcohol this week, more than a full page all together. Parenthetically, I observed that about half was advertising.

What we need from The Star is more facts. An informed electorate is the road to change. This requires much background information and investigative reporting. The paper must follow each case to its final conclusion.

Take for example the case of Richard Stamm. Although he has been twice noted for drunken driving we are given no further facts. What happened in those cases? Why did it happen? What did the police do? What did the court do? Why did they do what they did? What options are allowed by the law and by regulations?

And then there is Richard Stamm's future. Will you report his appearance at court? Will you find out why the court acts as it does? Will you follow Richard Stamm to the end of the case?

With reference to Valerie Jones-Long's editorial, she seems to infer that the police are not abiding by the law. She should get more facts and rely less on inference. The facts are out there, Valerie: Go get 'em!

Brown Bag Opera helpers thanked

TO THE EDITOR:

Brown Bag Opera recently performed "Hansel and Gretel" and "Carmen" in all five public and two private elementary schools in Winchester.

The group's visit was a Community Schools Association enrichment program, partially funded by a state arts grant and Parent Teacher Organization contributions.

The 15 performances were also supported by local grants from EnKa and the Winchester Arts Lottery, pending state arts lottery approval.

We thank these local organizations for helping to sponsor memorable, enjoyable operas for elementary students.

Stiffer penalities would help cause

TO THE EDITOR:

Stiff penalities will make a difference in lowering the number of drunk driving offenses.

Any citation for OUI should result in a year's suspension of license. Second offenders should have five years' suspension and finally reokation of their licenses.

Any accident involving bodily harm should carry an automatic jail sentence, in addition.

Medford Boat Club recovers from fire

By WILLIAM B. HAYNES

The show must go on.

Despite the Easter Sunday fire that gutted the Medford Boat Club off Lake Shore Drive in Arlington, members are filled with hope for the coming season.

The club's summer schedule this year is just as packed as those of summers past, and members plan on opening as usual on June 21, according to club manager John Hanley.

Members have worked hard in the short time since the blaze to raise money, boost membership, and get plans under way for a new clubhouse on the site located on MDC land between the Mystic Lakes.

The old wooden clubhouse, built in the early 1900s, was demolished after the fire which caused an estimated $250,000 worth of damage. Most members own their own boats and had them stored at home at the time of the fire.

However, three rowboats, two whalers, and a sailboat burned with the structure, along with years of acquired memorabilia.

On the site now sits plenty of picnic tables, a bocce court, and a trailer with bathroom facilities and a large tent.

"We didn't lose water or sand," said club secretary Pam Driscoll.

"We are now planning full-scale summer activities the same as in the past — with swimming, sailing, social activities, and dancing," said Hanley.

"There is a big drive on to raise funds. There's a raffle going on and a big push for membership," said Hanley. "We have 30 new families this summer," he said. "We are always looking for more. The more the merrier."

Hanley said the club has purchased a new whaler, rowboat and picnic tables.

"Everybody who was a member last year is enthusiastic about putting it all back together," said Hanley.

Putting it all back together means constructing a new boat house. And club officers have started the ball rolling toward that end.

"We've had many architects knocking on the door," said Driscoll. "We have narrowed it down to two."

The club has a long-term lease with the MDC for the site, and club officers have to gain approval for their plans from the MDC.

Permission has already been granted by the Arlington building inspector, and the club is still waiting for an OK from the Arlington Conservation Commission because the site lies within a floodplain.

Members hope to quickly gain the necessary approvals and begin construction after Labor Day.

The Medford Boat Club is made up of members from many towns but primarily Winchester, Woburn, Medford, and Arlington.

The Medford Boat Club is looking for more members. Those interested in joining need a sponsor from the club and a $350 membership fee. For more information, call membership chairman Tony Puopolo at 488-4841.

ABOUT TOWN

Hosts needed for Spaniards

A group of 30 students from Spain will be in the area July 16 - Aug 13.

Local families are needed to host the students, who range 15-22 years old, speak English well and bring spending money. The students will attend classes four days a week from 9 a.m. to noon at Medford High School. Field trips are scheduled after classes and four whole-day trips are planned.

One does not have to have children at home to be a host family. These young Spaniards are here to experience American life and to be part of the family, not guests. They can share a room, go on trips and vacations and spend weekends with the family. Host families are also invited to participate in a welcoming party and graduation event.

This program is sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Studies (AIFS) which provides students with insurance, transportation and a 24-hour support team.

Families interested in participating in the program may contact Norma Karibas at 628-9218 as soon as possible.

Exercise during pregnancy class set

Expectant mothers can learn to exercise safely during pregnancy at a six-week "Fitness Through the Childbearing Year" class offered by New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham, starting Thursday, June 26, from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Participants must preregister and have their physician's permission. Cost is $30. Classes will be in the physical therapy department on the subground level of the hospital. For additional information, call 665-1740, ext. 316.

Local scientists say NASA violations 'hard to believe'

By ERIC BLOM

Alleged safety violations, surfacing in the wake of the space shuttle Challenger's explosion, are hard to believe, say Arthur D. Little scientists Richard Berthiaume and Richard Spencer.

Both men worked closely with NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) on several projects, including a blood-storage experiment on the last successful shuttle flight.

NASA always put safety first during that mission, say the two Winchester residents.

"They said, 'We don't give a damn if the experiment works, as long as it doesn't hazard the crew or the shuttle,' " Spencer recalls.

Berthiaume, who says even elastic bands had to be NASA-certified, was in charge of quality control for the project.

"I reviewed everything that came in for the project to make sure it was exactly what we asked for," he says. "It [the explosion] made me feel all the effort I put into quality control was worthwhile. I would have been devastated if something in my project had caused a problem."

As it was, the January shuttle Columbia mission and the Winchester-linked experiment it carried proved unqualified success stories.

Both performed as expected and show the value of space exploration, Berthiaume and Spencer say.

The experiment was designed to determine the effect of weightlessness on stored human blood. Because blood does not settle in the micro gravity of space, it acts more like it does while circulating in a human body.

Scientists hope the information will improve blood-storage methods here on earth.

The experiment was a team effort, including local hospitals, Arthur D. Little engineers including Spencer and Berthiaume, and NASA personnel. Spencer and Berthiaume's part was to build a refrigeration unit to keep the blood alive during its space flight.

In building five refrigeration units, the engineers ran into difficulties they would not have faced building earth-bound units.

They could not use copper because NASA feared it would react with the shuttle's aluminum shell. Wires had to be carefully insulated to protect against fire, and energy use had to be slashed to a bare minimum.

"We were a substantial consumer of the space craft's power," Spencer says. "Power is very cheap on the ground. It's very expensive up there."

Because the units were to be stored in lockers out of the astronauts' reach, the blood components could not be agitated as was needed to keep one blood part, the platelets, alive.

The ADL group found they could keep the platelets alive by squeezing the plastic bag, making it very narrow. This keeps the platelets from settling and crushing each other.

Spencer and Berthiaume originally used cake racks and rubber bands to try out the innovative procedure. It worked, bringing about the first of many project-associated medical advances.

"The doctors were really excited about this," Berthiaume says.

However, the project ran into difficulty after the refrigeration unit was loaded onto the shuttle.

Originally scheduled for a Dec. 18 launch, the Columbia ran into a record seven delays, either for safety or weather reasons.

Because the blood would not be useful if donated more than 24 hours before the launch, new donors had to be recruited several times. In all, 160 people donated blood for the experiment.

"When it took off, I was in bed listening to it on the radio at 7 in the morning," Berthiaume says. "I felt I was part of it."

"For five mornings, I was doing the same thing," Spencer recalls. "When it finally went up, I said 'Hooray.' "

Sporadic NASA reports told the ADL engineers their experiment was working perfectly. However, poor weather in Florida endangered the project.

Life expectancy for the blood cells in a refrigerated state was about five days, the amount of time the shuttle was scheduled to fly.

"When that fifth day came, we were glued to the radio," Berthiaume says. "We had televisions going all over the place, and it didn't come down. It seemed like everything was against us."

On the seventh day, NASA decided to land the shuttle at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

"Our experiment was taken off immediately because most of the experiments had died and ours was still alive," Berthiaume says. "There is an excitement in seeing something you have designed, something you have built, actually works."

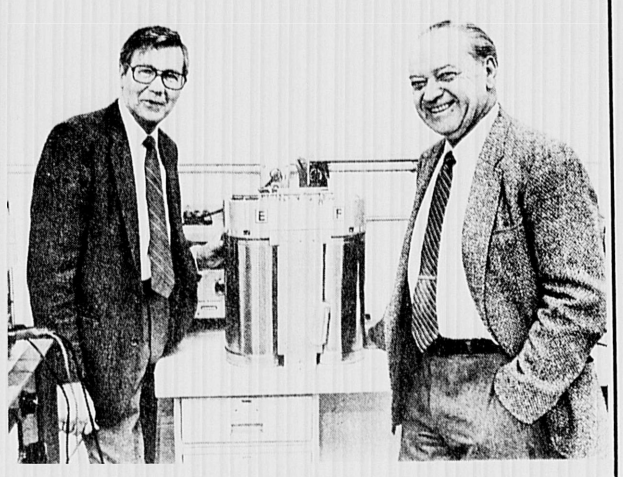

The blood was flown to Florida where it was compared to a control sample kept on the ground. The results will not be out for at least six months.

"There were hundreds of individual tests to be done, as I understand it," Spencer says.

In the past, Berthiaume has worked on NASA projects that have measured the distance from earth to the moon to within six inches, determined the composition of the moon's core and found gravity waves on its surface.

Both he and Spencer are currently working on a defense satellite. Spencer is also helping build a robot (anthropomorphic) arm for astronauts.

"Over the years you work on so many things you forget what you've done five years ago," Berthiaume says. "It's exciting work because you never get bored."

They said, 'We don't give a damn if the experiment works, as long as it doesn't hazard the crew or the shuttle,' Spencer recalls.

Times Have Changed

And Choate and Symmes Hospitals Have Changed with Them.

Choate and Symmes Hospitals have provided quality patient care since the two acute care community hospitals were founded 80 years ago. Over time, as the meaning of 'quality' has changed, Choate and Symmes have changed too.

Today, 'quality' care at Choate and Symmes means comprehensive care. It is expertly trained staff, using up-to-the-minute diagnostic equipment. It is modern facilities, not only for our inpatients but for our outpatients as well.

Recently completed construction and renovation has enabled us to expand programs and services in new or renovated facilities, so that at the same time that we continue to provide quality care for our inpatients, we are meeting the comprehensive needs of our outpatients with:

- 24-hour Emergency/Walk-In Care Centers
- Round-the-clock comprehensive Home Care including respiratory and nursing services and Lifeline
- Surgical Day Care
- State-of-the-art Diabetes and Enterostomal Care
- Chemotherapy and Cancer Care
- Laser Services
- Special Procedures
- Diagnostic Laboratory and X-ray Services including head and body CT-Scanning
- Special Diagnostics (EEG, EKG, Echocardiography, Exercise Testing)
- Rehabilitation Services (Physical, Speech, and Occupational Therapy)
- Respiratory Therapy

. . . All available to you close to home.

At Choate-Symmes, we mean it when we say, 24 hours a day, our patients are our number 1 concern.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Recent plays to be in 'Encore!'

"Encore!" a musical revue of the Broadway shows recently performed in Winchester, will be performed for one night only at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 26, in the Winchester High School auditorium.

Directed by Brian R. Milauskas and choreographed by Kristen Kelly, Encore! will continue the tradition started last year by the recreation department of offering inexpensive theater entertainment during the summer.

Last August both Milauskas, a recent Tufts graduate, and Kelly, a Tufts student herself, approached the recreation department with the idea of producing summer theater with high school and college students. The result was the sold-out performance of "Grease." This year they set their ambitions slightly higher and hope to produce several evenings of entertainment for the town.

Audience members will be delighted with the fast-paced, brightly-costumed night of song and dance which revisits the best moments of the various dramatic organizations in town. Selection have been chosen from "Grease", "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," "Annie," "Pippin," " Once Upon A Mattress," "Man of LaMancha," "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown," "How to Succeed in Business," and "Annie Get Your Gun."

"Summer theater rehearsals are much more intense than school year productions," explains choreographer Kelly. "We learn over a dozen dance numbers in just three weeks." The usual rehearsal period for a musical is eight to ten weeks.

Milauskas emphasizes that "if it is not fun, then it is not worth being involved. This is summer and it is traditionally a time to become involved in a recreational activity. Rehearsals may be long, hot and tiring but when we get it right, it is fun."

Cast member Denise Preston agrees. "There is a real sense of teamwork at the rehearsals; with such a short period of time every minute has to be utlized. While some people are with Kristen learning a new dance, others will be reviewing a step in the hall while assistant director Katrina Nelsen will be running someone through a solo on the piano."

Tickets may be obtained through the Recreation Department at 721-7125 or by calling the ticket line at 628-2029. All seats are reserved and all tickets are $4. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Gymnast in Nationals

By DAVID MOORE

"I get nervous if I can't do a routine all week during practice and I have to do it at a meet. Once it's over and I've done it, I'm relaxed."

That's how 12-year-old Andy Knouse explains the pressures and excitement of competitive gymnastics. Knouse, a Winchester native, has enjoyed great success competing for the Montvale School of Gymnastics in Woburn.

After three years, he has won two Class 3 state championships and twice placed second in regional competition.

He has a collection of medals and ribbons that would be the envy of many kids his age, but says most of his friends know very little about this side of him.

"Oh, sometimes they ask me to do a flip or something," says Knouse, "but when they think of gymnastics they don't think of boys doing it."

Boys certainly do it, as the United State's dramatic 1984 victory over China in the Olympics amply proved.

These days, children compete at ever earlier ages, and Knouse has chosen one of the most exacting of all sports. Mastery of such exercises as the side horse, high bar, and rings requires mental discipline, fearlessness and development of fine motor skills surpassing those needed in most team sports.

Try "going into an 'L'," as gymnasts describe one of the most basic tricks, and you'll see how difficult is this sport.

Knouse competes in the 10-12 age division of Class 3. He placed first in both the compulsory and optional exercises at the state meet April 6 at Milton High School.

Knouse says the horse, rings and high bar are his favorite compulsory exercises, which also include the parallel bars, vaulting horse and floor exercise.

The optionals consist of these same exercises, with the gymnast creating his or her own routines. Knouse creates his own routines, in part, from watching others.

"I show the coaches a move I've seen kids doing or on TV and if I can do it, we practice it until I get it down," he explains.

"Otherwise, we drop it for a while."

After winning the state meet, Knouse clinched second in regional competition May 31 at Southern Connecticut College. His performance earned him an invitation to try out for the National Junior Team at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs this fall.

Athletes chosen to the team spend three weeks at the prestigious camp, training with an elite group of coaches.

Before he undertakes this challenge, however, Knouse will get some very serious summer training at the U.S. Gymnastics Training Center at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay.

He will be able to develop his skills with an impressive array of United States, Russian, and Romanian Olympic coaches, including Abe Grossfeld, Vladimir Reyson and Castache Gheorghiu.

That's heavy company for a young man from the Vinson-Owen School. Yet in a sport where nerve and concentration are everything, Andy Knouse looks right at home.

Allard sparks big Huskie comeback

It's a good thing Winchester's Chuck Allard and the Northeastern University baseball team didn't pack it in after 14 games of the Huskies' 1986 schedule.

At the time, the Huskies had a 6-8 record, while Allard, a sophomore left-fielder, was hitting .171 with one extra-base hit, a double, and two runs batted in.

The next day, Allard went three-for-five with a home run against Tufts as the Huskies pounded the Jumbos, 13-4. From that point, the Huskies won 17 of 21 games to earn a spot in the ECAC Tournament, and Allard stroked the ball at a .414 clip, tying himself and Husky alumnus Billy O'Leary with a Northeastern record seven round-trippers.

For the 25-14 Huskies, it marked the first time since 1973 they qualified for a post-season tournament. Under first year head coach Neil McPhee, they posted a 9-5 record in the ECAC North, finishing second to College World Series participant Maine.

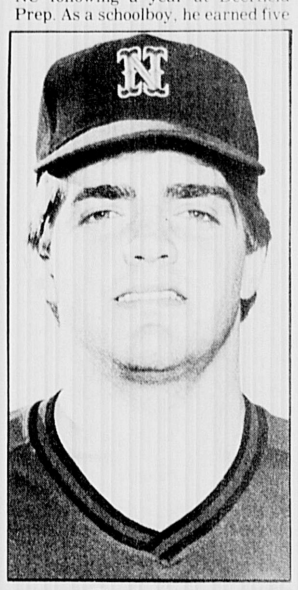

In addition to setting the team record for wins in a season, the Diamond Dogs tied a 52-year old Husky mark for consecutive wins with 11.

Allard hit in nine of those 11 games and sported five two-hit games during the stretch. In a 17-2 rout of Providence College, he had a double and a homer with three runs scored and five knocked in. One week later, he scored four runs and knocked in three more on a double and a homer as the Huskies trounced Worcester Tech 13-6.

As a team, the Huskies broke the University record for runs in a season with 292, and Allard did his share, scoring 31 times. His slugging percentage was among the tops on the team a .552, making his career slugging percentage a Northeastern record .628. He set the single season mark last year, with a .716 mark.

At Pawtucket's McCoy Stadium, the Huskies proved that their appearance was no fluke, beating Maine and Canisius before losing to New York Tech and being eliminated by a revenge-minded Maine outfit. Allard stroked four hits in the double elimination tournament including home runs in the Huskies' 8-1 win over Maine's Black Bears and their 9-1 loss against Tech's Bears.

Allard, a 1983 graduate of Winchester High School, matriculated to NU following a year at Deerfield Prep. As a schoolboy, he earned five varsity letters in football and baseball, and he captained the Sachem baseball squad his senior year. That campaign, he earned the team's Most Valuable Player award, while picking up All-League, All-Eastern Mass. and Boston Herald All-Scholastic accolades.

Chuck Allard

Allard, the Huskies' rookie of the year in 1985, is a member of the class of 1989, majoring in mechanical engineering.

Belmont Hill School gives athletic letters

Christopher Wadsworth, headmaster of Belmont Hill School, announced the varsity sports awards for the spring season. Among those honored were the following from Winchester:

John Wiseman

Wiseman wins letter in crew

John Wiseman, a recent graduate of Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., and a resident of Winchester, earned his third varsity letter in crew at the college, head coach Will Scoggins said.

An integral member of the varsity heavyweight eight crew, Wiseman helped the Cardinals finish the 1986 regular season with an 8-0 record, including a first-ever victory over perennial powerhouse Coast Guard, as well as triumphs over Little Three rival Williams and intra-state rival Trinity.

Wesleyan placed third among nine crews at the New England championships and fifth among 30 boats at the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia, considered the small college national championships.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiseman of Lawson Rd., Wiseman is a 1982 graduate of Winchester High School where he lettered in baseball, track and cross country and played soccer.

Wiseman received his degree in psychology from Wesleyan earlier this month.

Members of successful crew

By DAVID MOORE

It was 11 o'clock on a sunny, breezy Tuesday morning and David Reno wanted to take a nap.

Four hours earlier, he and seven teammates, including fellow Winchesterian Tim Buckley, were already pulling their oars through the dark water of the Charles River. Now he would rest and gather his strength before the five o'clock evening practice begins.

Reno and Buckley are members of the Belmont Hill School's successful varsity crew team that will compete in the Henley Royal Regatta July 2-6 in England.

The Belmont Hill team, which went 19-0-1 in four-man competition during the season, combined its top two boats into an eight-man shell for the Henley. The Belmont eight will compete for the Princess Elizabeth Cup against some of the finest high school boats from England, Canada and Europe.

"I like the eight-man better," said Reno, who is captain of the team and plans to attend Princeton University next fall. "It's a lot faster and, besides, I'll have to row it in college, so this is good practice."

"It's certainly a nice change from the fours," agreed Buckley, a junior and captain of the school's football team. "We've had to go outside of the high schools for competition. We've had some great scrimmages against college teams, like Harvard's freshman crew up at Squam Lake."

The team began practicing with eight rowers and a cockswain 2½ weeks ago. Much of each practice session involves the physical conditioning required for the one mile, 550-yard Henley. Still, considerable time is spent on strategy: finding the most efficient weight distribution and determining which rowers best complement each other's strokes.

Both boys seemed confident their boat will turn in a good showing in their first race July 3.

"We've made a lot of changes during the past weeks," said Reno, "but the boat's looking better and better.

"We've been told we're the first seed among American teams," added Buckley.

Although no United States boat has captured the Princess Elizabeth Cup, Belmont Hill's 1959 crew finished second. It was Belmont Hill's only other showing at the Henley.

The team left for England yesterday and began double-practices today. With two weeks left before the July 3 race, the team will take in two more regattas. Saturday will be the Marlowe Regatta, composed of three 1500-meter races, which Reno describes as a kind of seeding process for the Henley.

Later next week, the team will compete in the 800-meter Reading Regatta.

"Then, maybe, we'll take a couple of days to go visit the sights," said Buckley.

Most of their thoughts, however, will be on the race, when they will sit at opposite ends of the boat, feeling each other's pull even as they feel their teammates pull — all at the same time.

Then, saddling among the brightly clad crews from around the world, they will turn their attention to the river Thames and the race that has been contested annually for 147 years.

Doherty earns lacrosse letter

Michael Doherty, grade 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Doherty of Winchester, received a varsity letter for participation in lacrosse at St. Sebastian's Country Day School for boys in Needham.

On July 16, a soup and sandwich luncheon will be prepared by Helen Hodgdon, food coordinator at Jenks Senior Center, assisted by her kitchen staff. Make reservations at the center.

Fiesta Fair items needed

During these spring days, people have the urge to clean house and discard many items that can be given to the Jenks Senior Center for their annual Fall Fiesta Fair Oct. 1 and 2.

Usable items will be greatly appreciated by Ann Ciampa, fair chairman.

During the hot weather, sit quietly and put your knitting skills to work for both children and adults. Linens and other items for the women's boutique are sought. Articles for the men's boutique include such things as wallets, hand-made articles and materials for Christmas giving.

White Elephants, games and dolls for the children's table, and decorative items for the holiday table will be gratefully received.

Because of the construction in process at the center, it is requested that all donations of materials be held until a few days before the fair since there will be no place for storage at the center.

Notification will be given in the September newsletter about when to bring donations for pricing.

Filagree Deep next in Cloister Garden Series

The second Cloister Garden Concert of the season will feature a folk music trio from Boston, Filagree Deep.

The performance begins at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, June 26, at the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St., Winchester. Adult tickets are $4, students 21 and under are $3.

Gay's affection for the rare and unusual is reflected in his compositions and arrangements. These interests, with his skills as a chorus master, harper and keyboard player, have resulted in long associations with the New England Touring Program, the Castle Hill Festival and the Christmas Revels.

Gay is known primarily as founder and music director of Northern Harmony, a much-acclaimed folk chorus based in Boston.

Cicone's arrangements of traditional music for the hammered dulcimer have led to appearances with Christmas Revels, and his original compositions are a mainstay of Filagree Deep's repertoire. As an original member of Northern Harmony, he appeared as vocal soloist and put his extensive experience with international folk dance to work as choreographer and dancing master.

Robbins' vocal diversity has found expression from coast to coast. She has appeared as soloist with the Vermont Opera Theater, performed medieval and renaissance music with Alexander's Feast, Christmas Revels, and Mistral, and led Balkan song workshops.

She is founder and artistic director of Libana, an ensemble fast gaining national recognition for its celebration of women's ethnic musical heritage.

Cloister concerts are a tradition in Winchester, presenting four biweekly concerts each summer to benefit the music program of the Parish of the Epiphany. Subsequent concerts will be July 10 and 24. For further information, call 729-1922.

HEALTH

Summer safety book offered

Summer can mean hazards such as severe sunburn after too many hours in the sun, food poisoning after a neighborhood barbecue, or an allergic reaction to a bee sting.

A little knowledge helps keep summer safe and fun.

A "Summer Hazards" brochure is available from Choate-Symmes Health Services. Prepared by Mary Ellen DeTeso, RN, a nurse in the Emergency/Walk-In Care Center at the Choate Hospital division, the brochure includes information on sunburn, cuts and lacerations, fires and severe burns, near drowning, insect bites, sprains and fractures.

"Summer Hazards" provides first aid information until medical attention is obtained, if necessary.

A copy is available without charge from the Choate-Symmes community relations department, 646-1500, ext. 1441.

Winchester Art Association president Susie Vrotsos presents a donation of $1,500 to Dr. Donald McLean, chairman of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation finance drive. To donate, mail a check to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, Box 174, Winchester 01890.

Art association donates to scholarship foundation

Winchester Art Association donated $1,500 to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation finance drive.

Winchester Art Association consists of 56 artists that have donated one painting each to be loaned during the year to 40 subscribers.

Many of their current members have been recipients of this scholarship gift.

Winchester woman's book urges 'challenging emotions'

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Winchester resident Mona Johnian says every member of the human race needs mental and emotional renewal.

Her first nationally-distributed book, "Renewing Your Mind," offers what she calls "God's prescription for wholeness."

"People are controlled by their emotions — fear, rejection, anger, unforgiveness," Johnian says. "But there are three natural releases — tears, laughter and music, especially singing."

Johnian believes most people are afraid of themselves and their own fears. She thinks the precepts in her book can help anyone, not just those at the end of their emotional ropes.

"And there are so many people who need the help," she says.

The wife of Paul Johnian, pastor of the Christian Teaching and Worship Center at Cummings Park in Woburn, Mona Johnian is an author, a singer and a composer.

"We used to travel together. We worked on the Queen Elizabeth II, Paul as a concert violionist and I as a singer, giving classical concerts."

Using "the principles of God's word," Johnian says, people can escape being controlled by their emotions and sliding the slippery slope toward giving emotions even more control.

"We'll be controlled by emotions until we challenge them," she says. "Fear, for example, just gets worse if we don't challenge it."

Johnian's book, published by Whitaker House of Springdale, Pa., is available at bookstores in the Woburn Mall and at a Christian bookstore operated at the church.

She also appears on television on Channels 27 and 50 each Sunday morning and has a radio show at 11 a.m. Monday through Friday on WEZE-AM, 1260.

"Mental and emotional renewal is what many people need," she says. "Renewal means renovation, improvement. Everybody can use that."

"We do all the basics that other drycleaners do, we just do them better."

In a world where quality workmanship and door to door service seem like relics of the past, Faulkner's Cleansing, located at 437 Franklin st., Melrose, offers both of these to area residents.

For more than 38 years Faulkner's Cleansing has served the cleaning needs of Winchester residents and has built up a reputation for quality workmanship that has made them a trusted name in drycleaning and has made many Winchester residents lifelong customers.

Faulkner's not only drycleans all the usual items including pants suits, dresses, and coats, and cleans and presses shirts, but they also go one step further — Faulkner's inspects every article of clothing and replaces buttons or sews seams at no charge.

"We do all the basics that other drycleaners do, we just do them better," explains owner/proprietor Francis Hardy.

As far as service is concerned Faulkner's Cleansing offers something we tend to associate with past decades — door to door service. At no extra charge Faulkner's will pick up and deliver your drycleaning to your house.

Every Tuesday and Thursday their truck goes through Winchester for convenient door to door service. There is no extra charge for this convenience and customers can arrange for free pick-up and delivery by calling Faulkner's Cleansing at 665-6300.

In addition to cleaning all the usual items, Faulkner's also cleans various household items including slipcovers, draperies, and bedspreads. They are also experts at cleaning both suede and leather garments.

And, if you don't have the space around your home or apartment to store seasonal garb, Faulkner's offers storage for anything from furs to wools. Box storage is available in which you receive a large box to store your clothes which are cleaned and pressed just prior to pickup, and ready to wear when you retrieve them by calling Faulkner's Cleansing several days in advance.

For quality workmanship and the customer satisfaction which has been the trademark of Faulkner's for more than 38 years, or for convenient door to door service at no extra charge, come into Faulkner's at 437 Franklin st. Melrose, or just pick up the phone and call them at 665-6300.

Faulkner's Cleansing is open Monday through Friday, 7-5, Saturdays, 8-5.

Two earn degrees from Lehigh U.

Two Winchester students were among 890 seniors to receive bachelor's degrees June 1 at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa.

Timothy J. Crowley, son of Thomas Crowley of 200 Swanton St., received a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering at the school's 118th commencement.

Belmont Hill School graduate Frederick Paul Guthrie, son of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Guthrie, 54 Everett Ave., received a bachelor's degree in business and economics with a major in finance from the university.

At Lehigh, he was a member of Pi Lambda Phi fraternity, a member of the ski team and a founding member of the organization Alcohol In Moderation.

HEALTH BEAT

Assertiveness, Growing Up Male and Female classes set

The community health education department of Choate-Symmes Health Services is offering a variety of programs during July.

Aerobic exercise classes are for improving the cardiovascular system. Classes are offered at Choate on Tuesdays and Thursdays, July 8 through Aug. 28, at 7:10 and 8:10 p.m., and offered at Symmes on Mondays and Wednesdays, July 7 through Aug. 27, at 5 p.m.

First aid for coaches combines the American Red Cross Multimedia First Aid program with athletic injury prevention and treatment. It is offered at Choate July 1, 8, 15 and 22 from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

First aid for teens is offered at Choate July 7, 14, 21, and 28 from 2 to 4 p.m., and offered at Symmes July 8, 15, 22, and 29 from 2 to 4 p.m. The three-year American Red Cross certification will be awarded.

Assertiveness training to improve interpersonal communication skills is offered at Symmes July 29, Aug 5, 12, 19 and 26, 7 to 9 p.m.

Babysitter training for boys and girls, 11 to 15, who need to improve their ability to deal with household emergencies and who would like to learn infant and child care, such as diapering, chokesaving and child development is offered at Choate July 8, 10 and 15 from 9 a.m. to noon, and at Symmes July 11, 18 and 25 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Preventing sports injuries through athletic training is for boys 11 to 16 and includes a full day of theory, practice and exercise to learn the proper way to exercise. It is offered at Choate July 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and offered for girls only at Choate July 29 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"Growing Up Male" is for boys 11 to 14. It explains the physical and emotional changes of adolescence. It is offered at Symmes July 31 from 9 a.m. to noon.

"Growing Up Female" for girls 10 to 13 includes an understanding of the female anatomy. It is offered at Symmes July 16 from 9 a.m. to noon.

CPR basic life support teaches the techniques of cardiovascular resuscitation and includes chokesaving for adults and infants. It's offered at Choate July 14, 21 and 28 from 7 to 10 p.m. and at Symmes July 16, 23 and 30 from 7 to 10 p.m.

All classes require preregistration. For Choate classes, please call 933-6700, ext. 377. For Symmes, call 646-1500, ext. 2291.

Mercurio wins $25,000 cancer research grant

Arthur Mercurio of Winchester recently received a cancer research grant from the American Cancer Society's Massachusetts Division, according to Dr. David S. Rosenthal, division president.

The grant is part of $411,500 awarded to cancer researchers by the Massachusetts Division for 1986.

Mercurio, a scientist at New England Deaconess Hospital, will receive $25,000 this year for research on macrophages, a type of cell that can kill tumor cells under appropriate conditions. He will seek to discover how macrophages recognize and kill tumor cells.

"The Massachusetts Division of the American Cancer Society is committed to funding imaginative projects and young scientists to gain new insights about cancer," Rosenthal said. "Too often, investigators with promising ideas find it difficult to obtain the funding necessary to pursue their theories in the laboratory."

Research grants support cancer-related projects by investigators in the formative stage of their careers, or established researchers interested in testing new theories that arise from their main programs. Mercurio is an assistant professor of surgery and pathology at Harvard Medical School and the New England Deaconess Hospital's Cancer Research Institute. He has performed postdoctoral research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and holds degrees from Columbia University and Rutgers University.

Blood pressure clinic scheduled

The monthly blood pressure clinic will be held at the Winchester Red Cross Chapter House, 39 Church St. from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, June 21.

No appointment is necessary and there is no charge. The clinic is open to all residents of Winchester and surrounding communities. Two registered nurses will take blood pressure. Red Cross volunteers will assist.

Symmes program for teen girls

Symmes Hospital in Arlington will host a girls program from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursday, June 26, for girls 12-17.

Demonstrations on skin care, make-up, dieting, nutrition, assertiveness, wardrobe tips, healthy snacking and aerobics will be given. Lunch and a wake-up juice and muffin session are provided.

The cost for the day is $15 including all handouts, recipes, lunch and make-up samples. Space is limited.

The Winchester Star has several different phone numbers for its various newspaper departments. To subscribe, call the circulation department at 643-7900. Judy Lynch of Winchester, standing, models a beaded cocktail dress from Elizabeth's of Winchester for Unicorn Park tenants at the park's spring fashion show. Beth Ann Stevenson of Winchester was also one of eight models in the show.

Local women model local fashions in Woburn show

May Day was a fashionable affair at Metropolitan Life's Unicorn Park during the park's first spring fashion show. Models sporting the latest in women's spring and summer fashions strolled throughout the lunchtime crowd in the Woburn office park's cafeteria.

The highlight of the affair was the modeling of a bridal gown on the outdoor dining terrace. The show was organized for Unicorn Park tenants by Metropolitan Life and Affiliated Companies, owner and developer of the park.

Fashions for the show were provided by Betty Terpko, owner of Elizabeth's Bridal Boutique and Dresses for Special Occasions, at 39 Thompson St., in Winchester and by a Reading shop.

OBITUARIES

Ruth Browning

Ruth Jordan Browning, 86, of Hinsdale, formerly of Winchester, died April 8 at Monticello Convalescent Center in Hinsdale, Illinois. She was a resident of the nursing home for five years.

Born in Sutherland, Iowa, she lived most of her life in Winchester before moving to Sebago Lake, Maine.

Mrs. Browning was preceded in death by her husband, Glenn H. Browning.

She graduated in 1917 from Sutherland High School and in 1921 from Cornell College at Mt. Vernon, Iowa.

Among her survivors are: her daughter, Mrs. Barbara Poole of Clarendon Hills, Ill. and her husband Mr. John W. Poole; daughter, Mrs. Mary Jean King of Hinsdale, Ill.; ten grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; many nieces and nephews; and one sister, Mrs. Jane Hill of Sutherland, Iowa.

Betsey Morton

Betsey Goodrich Morton, 80, of Winchester died June 14 at Winchester Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in West Medford, Mrs. Morton was a Winchester resident for more than 50 years.

She leaves her husband William F. Morton.

Mrs. Morton graduated from Medford High School and Radcliffe College. She was an active member of the Radcliffe Alumni Association.

Before she was married she taught Latin at the Medford Public Schools.

Mrs. Morton contributed to many civic organizations in Winchester and Boston.

She was a trustee of the Winchester Public Library for many years. She also helped to organize the library at the Jenks Senior Center.

Mrs. Morton was an avid golfer and life-long member of Winchester Country Club.

Among her survivors are: her four children; Betsey Krusen of Boxborough, Susan Duncan of Chicago, Prudence Horne of Winchester and William F. Morton Jr. of Essex; ten grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

A memorial service was held June 17 from the Gaffy Funeral Home in West Medford.

Memorial donations may be made to Winchester Public Library, 80 Washington St.

John DiIorio

John Paul DiIorio, 51, formerly of Winchester, died June 11 in Andover at his home after a long illness.

Born in Winchester, Mr. DiIorio was a resident of Winchester Burlington and Andover.

Mr. DiIorio leaves his wife, Paula Lanigan DiIorio of Andover.

He graduated from Winchester High School in 1952, where he was an outstanding athlete and student. He captained the 1952 New England Champion Basketball Team and was also captain of the baseball team.

Mr. DiIorio graduated from Dartmouth College with an associate's degree in 1956 and attended the Amos Tuck Business School and the Stonier Banking School at Rutgers.

He began his banking career as a teller at the Middlesex County National Bank and became a vice president of commercial lending. In 1967 he became one of the founders and first president of the Burlington Bank and Trust.

In 1972 the bank merged with the Bank of Boston and became the Old Colony Bank of Middlesex. Mr. DiIorio continued as president and chairman of the board until 1983. He then moved to Boston as a senior vice president of the Bank of Boston in charge of strategic planning a marketing. During his banking career, Mr. DiIorio taught seminars on financial management for small businesses.

His activities included many years of coaching youth basketball and baseball both in Burlington and Andover. He served as vice president of the Woburn Chamber of Commerce and was a member of the Andover Industrial Commission.

An alumnus of Dartmouth College, he was the president of the Merrimac Valley Dartmouth Club and vice president of the Dartmouth Club of Eastern Massachusetts. He was recently elected to the Alumni Council at Dartmouth.

Among his survivors are; his four children, Mark, Debra, John Jr. and Lisa; his daughter in-law, Priscilla DiIorio; and a brother, Joseph.

Funeral services were held June 16 from the Lane Funeral Home followed by a funeral mass at St. Mary's Church.

Memorial donations may be made to the Hermatology Research Fund, Brigham and Womens Hospital, 75 Francis St., Boston 02115.

Fair Winds Tours, a travel agency that specializes in vacation trips, honeymoons and cruises, has opened an affiliated office in Winchester. The company was established in 1963 in Stoneham. The agency is in the new professional building at 165 Washington St. Manager of the new office is Josephine Vitello, left, who has been employed by Fair Winds since January 1978 and her assistant is Karen Coffin. Vitello is a Winchester resident.

Christian Science school continues

Christian Science Sunday school, as well as Sunday and Wednesday services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 114 Church St., will continue throughout the summer. All young people up to the age of 20 are welcome in the Sunday school.

"Teaching is based on the Bible, and classes of all ages consider how its teachings can be made practical in daily life," church spokesmen said. Church services and Sunday school both begin at 11 a.m. Wednesday evening testimony meetings are held at 8 and last one hour.

Beginning in September, the regular time for Sunday services and Sunday school will be a half hour earlier, 10:30 a.m.

LIBRARY NEWS

'Dinosummer' to open

Attention dinosaur lovers! The Winchester Public Library's summer reading program, "Dinomite Dinosummer", beings Monday, June 23.

Children's librarian Heidi Zeibig invites Winchester children to get back to books and "saur" to new heights at the library this summer. The program is open to any child who can read, and will continue through Aug. 18.

To register, children should read one book after school closes, and then come to the junior library to register and receive a reading kit. The kit contains a dinosaur button, a booklet to record titles of books read, and a dinorama to stamp for each book read.

All children who have read at least 10 books by the end of the program will have their names posted in the display case at the library and will be invited to an awards celebration Aug. 21. The party will feature "Dinosaur Talks" by the Museum of Science, awards, prizes and refreshments.

For library patrons interested in current events, the library has recently acquired the Boston Globe on microfilm for 1985 and the first four months of 1986. The library will continue to purchase the microfilm as it becomes available, maintaining a complete run of the paper from January 1985.

An index to the Globe, arranged by subject and personal name, is also now available in the reference room, allowing access to specific articles in the paper. Columnists and cartoonists are listed in the name index, as well as subjects of news articles.

The library begins summer hours Monday, June 23. The adult department will be open Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. The junior library will be open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

New program helps pregnant teens

Fiorillo sees advantages and disadvantages in making sex such an open topic of conversation.

"It's a Catch-22. If you're that open about it, then there is that viewpoint there's nothing wrong with it," she said.

The advantage, she says, is "girls are no longer ostracized." They are no longer forced to drop out of school like they were 30 years ago.

Fiorillo was instrumental in starting the council and opening a youth center for Winchester students.

Fiorillo, the mother of seven, said her children were part of the reason she became so involved.

The center provides planned activities for teenagers and also provides them a place to call their own. Fiorillo said many teens take advantage of the time to talk to adults at the center and their friends about their problems.

In her five years of service to Winchester youths, Fiorillo has seen a wide range of problems teenagers face.

Fiorillo says girls at age 14 or 15 tend to keep their babies instead of putting them up for adoption. "They don't see the consequences," she said.

"They are not capable of making a decision at that age. It's the immediate fun of having a baby to show off," said Fiorillo.

Fiorillo recalled that when an underclassman girl was pregnant at Winchester High School, several of her friends wanted to get pregnant.

"We had girls who wanted to get pregnant. It was glamorous when their friend was expecting," she said.

Fiorillo, LaPierre and Nelson agree that lack of self-esteem can lead to problems such as pregnancy, drug abuse or alcohol abuse.

Fiorillo stresses the need for building self-esteem in the family and in school.

"It needs to be reinforced within the school system. They have more hours with the child than the parent," she said.

Fiorillo said one of the best courses the high school has to offer is human development. "It should be a mandatory program. It's one of the most worthwhile programs," she said.

sions with the railroad, Tabbi said.

A net was installed in 1985, Tabbi said, but lasted only two days until vandals ruined it.

The Boston and Maine Railroad later promised to install a steel net, similar to one it provided in western Massachusetts, in April 1986.

But railroad workers were on strike then. Installation was postponed.

Tabbi said he and the board of health have been "doing everything we can" to eliminate the mess.

Winchester man beats odds

way. It's very much like politics. I sell the school's good points and the candidate's good points."

At St. Anselm, Polcari has been equally active in politics, particularly during the 1984 Democratic Party primary campaigns in New Hampshire.

"I'll show you the pictures," he says. He flips through Reuben Askew, Jesse Jackson, George McGovern, Gary Hart, Alan Cranston, Ernest Hollings, Walter Mondale and John Glenn.

"I have one more picture of me and the cardinal," he says, "but I'm saving that for when I run for office."

Polcari loves New Hampshire, a political hotbed every four years. When he was in high school, he worked with his brother, an intern in Rep. Ed Markey's campaign for Congress, and found he liked politics.

"But don't think I'm a flaming liberal. I'm not," he says, realizing he has historically linked himself with Markey.

St. Anselm, home for one of three debates among the candidates, and Manchester, the state's largest city, gave Polcari the perfect setting as well.

"As president of the student body, I was invited to all the receptions and met all the candidates," he says. "I got a better understanding of national politics."

Often compared to a horse race, national campaigns are better likened to a wrestling tournament, Polcari says.

"Everyone is seeded in a campaign," he explains. "In 1984, John Glenn was the top seed. But the top seed doesn't always win. It depends on tactics."

You must have talent to win a wrestling tourney or a campaign, Polcari says, but you also have to know how to make your move," when to make it and how to pace yourself for an all-day event.

Other campaign memories make Polcari smile. "There I was, making $3.35 an hour, with all these Secret Service agents, wandering through rooms with dogs trained to sniff out bombs. I even watched them deck somebody, they'd been friendly with a half-hour before, just because he was in the way," Polcari says.

In the end, Polcari registered to vote in New Hampshire and cast his ballot for South Carolina Sen. Hollings. "He was closest to my views. He's a Democrat, but a Southern Democrat. And they're practical people."

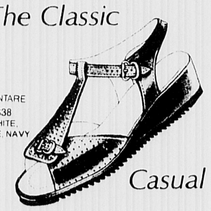

Hollings told jokes on the sidelines, Polcari says, further endearing himself to campaign workers. "I like him because he has fun. And that's what I tried to do when we gave away 1,700 'Whip' sundaes on Town Day."

By his own estimate, Polcari is driven to succeed, in part because of his learning disability. But he hasn't forgotten others with problems.

"I've spoken to the guidance counselors of Greater Boston and I tried to emphasize that a lot of kids have learning disabilities. It's important that guidance counselors look at alternative resources to help them."

What To Visit

Head west, young for summer sights and sounds

Stories by Diane Broncaccio

The hills are alive with the sound of music.

Summer visitors to the Berkshire Mountains are certain to find this out.

The countryside hills and the quaint old towns of the Berkshires offer performing arts rivaling those of any major city.

A bonus this year is that Tanglewood has not raised its ticket prices.

The beautiful grounds are open daily, admission-free, from 9 a.m. to sundown. Saturday morning rehearsals are open to the public. Lawn admission is $6.50.

Tanglewood Concert line is (413) 637-1666.

More music. . .

The music-lover can also enjoy 17th and 18th-century music performed on original instruments at the 14th annual Aston Magna Festival at St. James Church in Great Barrington July 12-26.

The music continues with Chamber music at South Mountain in Pittsfield in late summer. The 3 p.m. concerts Aug. 23, Sept. 7, 14, 28 and Oct. 5 include performances by the Juilliard and Guarneri String Quartets as well as the Beaux Arts Trio.

The concert hall is located on Routes 7 and 20, south of Pittsfield Center.

Small, rarely performed operas by Mozart and Britten will be 7 p.m., July 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 6-9 and 13-16, at the Berkshire Opera Company's home on the Cranwell estate in Lenox.

. . .And dance

Berkshire County is also the home of the nation's oldest dance festival, Jacob's Pillow, off Route 20 on George Carter Road in Beckett.

This season's dance festival June 24 through Aug. 30 features such famous acts as the Paul Taylor Dance Company, stars of the Royal Ballet, Mark Morris Dance group, New York City Ballet, and Avner The Eccentric.

Performances will be 8 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, with 2 p.m. Saturday matinees.

Two hours before the show are free concerts by emerging talents and works-in-progress at the outdoor stage.

There are also guided tours of the historic grounds, alfresco dining, boutiques and more.

Renowned jazz artists perform on select Sundays throughout the summer.

The schedule is soon to be announced.

For information, call (413) 243-0745.

Ballet anyone?

In Pittsfield, the home-grown Berkshire Ballet polishes its steadily growing national reputation with a six-week season, July 13 through Aug. 18, at the Koussevitsky Arts Center, 210 Wendell ave.

Play it again

The Berkshire Theatre Festival, now in its 58th season, presents a four-play series of classical American drama in its historic Stanford White-designed playhouse on Main st., Route 102 in Stockbridge.

Works to be presented include: A Little Night Music, June 30 through July 17; A Delicate Balance, July 23 through Aug. 2; and All The Way Home, Aug. 6 through 16. A final play, to be announced, is scheduled for Aug. 20 through 30.

The center also houses the Unicorn Theatre, a Children's Theatre (at noon on Thursdays and Saturdays), and a staged reading series of new American plays.

Avant-garde

And up the road in the town of Interlaken, Lenox Arts Center/Music Theatre Group, winner of more than 20 Obies in New York City, presents a series of new, avant-garde, music-theatre works from July 2 through Aug. 24. Curtain time is 9 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

Shakespeare lives at The Mount, and so does Edith Wharton.

The house at the junction of Routes 7 and 7A is open for tours June through October, noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekends and holiday Mondays. Admission is $3.50.

Shakespeare And Company is on-stage at 8 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday, July and August.

Not to be overlooked is the prestigious Williamstown Theatre Festival, at Adams Memorial Theatre, on the Williams College campus.

Over 240 performances of 45 different events, including new play readings, cabarets, the mainstage, workshops, and Sunday special events take place July and August.

Historic Tanglewood

On Aug. 5, 1937, a large crowd gathered under a tent to hear Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra give the first concert at Tanglewood.

The historic estate held a main house, farm buildings and 210 acres of lawns and meadows.

In addition to the regular BSO summer concerts, weekly chamber music concerts, prelude concerts and open rehearsals are regularly scheduled.

The BSO begins its 10-week Tanglewood season June 27. BSO concerts are performed in the Music Shed, Friday 9 p.m., Saturday 10:30 a.m. for open rehearsals and 8:30 p.m., and Sunday 2:30 p.m.

Highlights of the season include: the June 27 opening night gala, featuring Marilyn Horne and Mussorgsky/Ravel's Pictures At An Exhibition; the Fourth of July celebration, with musical entertainment beginning 2:30 p.m. and concluding with fireworks and the BSO's version of Gershwin's Rhapsody In Blue; Boston Pops July 9; the Leontyne Price recital July 13; Leonard Bernstein, conducting Tchaikovsky's Pathetique Symphony July 26; and the Brass Spectacular Aug. 1 featuring the Canadian Brass, the Empire Brass and the BSO brass section.

In the traditional Tanglewood-on-Parade, Aug. 26, the BSO joins forces with the Tanglewood Music Center Orchestra in a gala concert featuring the 1812 Overture, complete with bells, cannon and fireworks. Itzhak Perlman plays Brahms Aug. 29. Zubin Mehta and The Israel Philharmonic perform Aug. 30. The BSO season concludes with Britten's War Requiem Aug. 31.

The 1986 Festival of Contemporary Music, Aug. 2 through 7, highlights some of the fresh new approaches by emerging young composers.

A new highlight of this festival is an Electro-Acoustic Prelude series, featuring electronic/computer music from studios worldwide. These concerts start Saturday 2 p.m., Sunday 10 a.m. and 8:30 p.m., and weeknights 8:30 p.m.

The Tanglewood Music Center Orchestra, featuring gifted music students, offers concerts most weekday and Sunday evenings 8:30 p.m., Saturdays 2 p.m. and Sundays 10 a.m. These concerts are held in the Theatre-Concert Hall or Chamber Music Hall. Admission ranges from $5 to $7.

BSO concerts and other special events are priced from $6.50, for lawn seats, to $50, for Music Shed seating during special events. For weekly program and concert information, call (413) 637-1940.

forming arts to see and experience in the Berkshires.

And the arts. . ..

For more than 100 years, the Berkshires have nurtured artists of every description — from writers Edith Wharton, Herman Melville and Nathaniel Hawthorne to sculptors and artists Daniel Chester French, Henry Hudson Kitson and, of course, Norman Rockwell.

Everywhere their former presence is evident.

Longfellow lived here for a while. So did Cole Porter. W.E.B. Dubois was born here, as was Abraham Lincoln's favorite humorist, Josh Billings.

Norman Rockwell drew his visions of America from the inspiration of his picture postcard hometown of Stockbridge.

The public is welcome to visit that house or view a unique collection of Melville's books, letters, pictures and memorabilia at the Berkshire Athenaeum, 1 Wendell Ave.

At the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, one of the finest small art museums in the country, is an excellent collection of Impressionist and Old Masters works, ranging from Renoir, Degas, Monet and Toulouse-Lautrec to Winslow Homer.

In addition to a fine collection of 19th-century American landscapes and portraits, the museum houses fresh- and saltwater aquariums, plus exhibits on animals, birds, biology and minerals.

Shake, rattle and. . .

The Shakers settled in the Berkshires in the late 1700s, and the Hancock Shaker Village, on Route 20, west of Pittsfield, is a living monument to the way they were.

This restored, working museum of Shaker rural life, 100 acres large, offers daily guided tours, Shaker music programs, demonstrations of 19th-century crafts, plus exhibits, an herb garden, farm animals and special events.

Reproduction Shaker furniture and other handcrafted Shaker items are for sale in the three gift shops.

Choo choo

Tickets are $7.50 for adults, $6 for seniors and $5 for children. Passengers can depart and later reboard after shopping or sightseeing.

There is also a continuous slide show and railroad memorabilia in Lee.

Trains depart at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. on weekends and 6 p.m. Friday after July 2.

The Berkshires Visitors Bureau offers a fine, free summer guide, featuring points of interest, plus information on dining and lodging.

To receive one, write the bureau at The Common, Pittsfield, MA 01201, or call (413) 443-9186.

Great Woods' premier

The Miller Music Series at the Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts enters the second week of its premiere season with concerts by comedy superstar Bill Cosby, Stephen Stills and America, Jackson Browne, and Robert Palmer. The summer-long concert series will consist of a spectacular line-up of top, popular artists presented under the auspices of the Miller Brewing Company.

The Great Woods Center for the performing Arts is under the sponsorship of WBZ-TV 4, Boston. The amphitheater has 7,000 fixed seats under a pavilion and seating for 8,000 additional patrons on a 5-acre banked lawn. The facility offers a diversity of programming that is unique to New England, including classical music, jazz, folk and dance, in addition to the popular artist series. Great Woods is located just off State Road 140 at the junction of interstates 495 and 95; take exit 6A off I-95 South to exit 11 on I-495.

On Monday evening, June 23, the Miller Music Series will welcome Stephen Stills and America. Singer-songwriter Stills played a major role in the folk-rock era of the 1960s as a key member of the group Buffalo Springfield. Later, with friends David Crosby and Graham Nash, he formed Crosby, Stills and Nash who produced a series of hits such as Suite Judy Blue Eyes and Woodstock, which became anthems for an entire generation of fans.

At Great Woods, Stills will be joined by Gerry Beckley and Dewey Bunnell, whose soft-rock vocal harmonies led the group America to success in the 1970s. From their first smash hit, Horse with No Name, to 1982's You Can Do Magic, America garnered a string of awards and platinum albums while developing a world-wide base of loyal fans. Special guest will be Tom Chapin. Tickets for this concert are priced at $17.50/$15.50 for reserved seating; $13.50 for lawn.

British native Robert Palmer comes to Great Woods on Tuesday, June 24. In the 1970s, a series of successful solo albums established him as one of rock music's most eclectic performers. More recently, he teamed up with John and Andy Taylor of Duran-Duran, and drummer Tony Thompson to form Power Station. Their debut album, released last year, yielded three top-ten singles, including the smash Some Like It Hot. Palmer's return to solo recording produced this year's album, Riptide, and his current chart-busting single Addicted to Love. Appearing with Robert Palmer is rhythm and blues queen Chaka Khan, who brings a spirited passion, tenderness and emotional intensity to her performances. Her hit recordings, like her concerts, showcase the astonishing range of musical moods in Chaka's repertoire. Tickets for this show are priced at $17.50/$15.50 for reserved seating; $13.50 for lawn.

Comedian Bill Cosby performs at Great Woods on Saturday and Sunday evenings, June 28 and 29. He is one of the legendary greats of the entertainment industry, whose wit and earthly innocence have endeared him to a vast legion of fans. Cosby underscores the humor in our lives, through revealing insights into our roles as parents and children, men and women. On records, he is the best-selling comedian and his current TV series, The Cosby Show, is the highest-rated show on television this season. Tickets for Bill Cosby's concerts are priced at $23.50/$19.50 for reserved seats; $16.00 for lawn.

All performances in the Miller Music Series begin at 7:30 p.m. Individual tickets are currently on sale by telephone charge through Ticketmaster: 1-800-682-8080 (or call in Boston 523-6633; in Worcester 754-8800; in Providence (401) 351-1616). Tickets may also by purchased at Ticketmaster outlets located at the Orpheum Theater in Boston, Garnicks Records in Lowell, good Vibrations Record Stores, Video Connection Stores and MVP Sports Stores.

Noises Off opens Trinity season

Trinity Repertory Company's first offering of the Summer Season, Michael Frayn's funny and fast-paced farce Noises Off, opens in the air-conditioned Downstairs Theatre, 201 Washington St., in downtown Providence, June 13, running through July 20.

Noises Off is directed by Tony Giordano, who earlier this year directed the popular production of The Tavern at Trinity Rep. The set design is by Robert D. Soule, lighting design by John F. Custer, and costume design by William Lane.

The cast includes Company members Barbara Orson, Richard Kavanaugh, David PB Stephens, Jennifer Van Dyck, Becca Lish, Daniel Von Barge, Anne Scurria, Richard Ferrone, and Howard London.

Noises Off presents the onstage and backstage high jinks of a bumbling troupe of actors rehearsing and performing a comic farce. The behind-the-scenes antics show every actor's nightmare becoming true — forgotten lines, missed cues, and misplaced props.

First performed in London to sellout audiences, Noises Off was brought to New York for a long and successful run on Broadway in December, 1983. The play earned rave reviews, and many critics called it the funniest farce ever written. In Noises Off, the audience gets to see this inept group of actors rehearse part of a comic farce on the night before its opening. Then the action shifts to behind the set, one month later, as we watch the actors struggle with the play and their frenzied entrances and exits during a performance. Finally, we see the play after another month, during which the actors have either forgotten their lines and lost interest in the production. Noises Off is a slapstick ballet that calls for split-second tim-

Now in its final two weeks of performances at the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam, Conn., the vintage French musical Irma La Douce is a colorful cartoon of the Parisian underworld. With Nikki Sahagen as the sweet Irma, Kevin Gray as Nestor-le-Fripe, and Bob Morrisey as the wryly comic bar proprietor Bob-le-Hotu, Irma La Douce features a cast of thirteen in a fast-paced musical comedy of love.

A smash hit in Paris and London before opening on Broadway in 1960, Irma La Douce has an accordion-accented score by Marguerite Monnot. Its songs range from the romantic ballads Our Language of Love and The Bridge of Caulaincourt to the melodic power of From a Prison Cell and the show-stopping dance celebration Dis-Donc. Irma's original book is by Alexandre Breffort, a Parisian author and sometime taxicab driver with first-hand knowledge of the back streets and cafes that are the setting for this sparkling, irreverent musical. The English book and lyrics are by the British songwriting team of Julian More, David Heneker and Monty Norman.

Curtain times for Irma La Douce are Tuesday through Friday at 8:00 p.m.; Saturday at 5:00 and 9:00 p.m.; Sunday at 5:00 p.m., and a Wednesday matinee at 2:30 p.m. Extra matinees will be at 2:30 p.m. on Monday, June 23; Tuesday, June 24 and Friday, June 27. For tickets call the Goodspeed Box Office, (203) 873-8668.

Outdoor stage premieres show

The Publick Theater will open its 1986 summer festival of performing arts under the stars at the Christian A. Herter Park, Soldiers Field Road, Boston, with the New England premiere of the musical Quilters this week and continuing through July 19. The Broadway show is by Molly Newman and Barbara Damashek, with music and lyrics by Damashek.

Their second production will be Shakespeare's The Tempest, July 30 through Aug. 30. Curtain for both shows is 8 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday.

The festival includes Improv-Boston, June 15 and 22; Dance Visions, July 13; the Impulse Dance Co., July 20; Herb's Heard (big band music), Aug. 10; and the Studebaker Movement Theatre Co., Aug. 17. Special guests are the Pousette-Dart Band and Trent Arterberry, mime, July 25.

There is free parking. Tickets are $9; $7 for senior citizens and children under 12 and are available at the Bostix Booth, Quincy Market; and at the door evenings of the performances. Subscription passes are also available. To order subscription passes/tickets in advance charge on MasterCard or VISA by calling 720-1007 or write for tickets to: The Publick Theatre Inc., 52 Joy Street, Boston, Mass., 02114.

Dames At Sea opens North Shore season

The critically-acclaimed New York production of Dames At Sea will open The North Shore Music Theatre's 32nd season in Beverly, June 16 through June 21.

The long-running, off-Broadway musical spoof will replace the previously announced The 1940s Radio Hour, which will not be touring the summer circuit this year.

Dames At Sea will come to the 1790-seat North Shore Music Theatre directly from its highly acclaimed eight-month engagement in New York.

A nostalgic salute to those spectacular movie musicals of the '30s, Dames At Sea recaptures the famous song-and-dance style of the Ruby Keeler-Dick Powell glamour period.

Performance times for Dames At Sea are: Monday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Wednesday and Saturday. Ticket prices are $15, Monday through Thursday evening; $16, Friday evening; $18 Saturday evening; and $12.50 for the matinee performances on Wednesday and Saturday. Tickets are now available at the North Shore Music Theatre box office, 62 Dunham Rd., Beverly, Mass. 01915, or by calling the box office at 922-8550.

Subscription series for the entire season, June through September are still available, and a detailed brochure can be obtained by writing or calling the North Shore Music Theatre box office.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Communications are highlighted and you may be reunited with people you love and haven't seen for a while. A foggy situation clears up now and you'll like the results. You should get all promises or agreements in writing.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Look at the big picture in relationships with partners, don't nit-pick at details and play the waiting game. A change of residence may be in the offing. You'll get a positive response if you express your point of view.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — You may have to make a difficult decision — be diplomatic and you'll come out on top. Don't be discouraged, good things are ahead so focus your efforts on achieving your goals. Good news about money may reach you now.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Let moderation be your motto, take care of duties but don't overdo. In your partnerships you should defer to others, let them take the lead and play the role of observer. Improve your personal image and public relations.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Use your ability as diplomatic peace maker to settle conflicts around you. You have the support of someone in your immediate environment who backs you financially or offers a job opportunity. Stick to your health resolutions.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — A loving parent or older friend could help you get what you want and give you emotional security. Discard the things you no longer need and clear the decks for future action. Don't get involved in other people's arguments.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Stick with your ambitions and look for ways to increase your income. For your mutual benefit you may have to break with someone who is overly dependent on you. Use your creativity and charisma now to forge ahead!

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Complete current projects and start out on new paths to progress. Opportunities to increase your earnings are all around you — be alert! Expand your horizons, get new information and move confidently into the future.

AQUARIUS: (Jan 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — You're in the driver's seat now, so pay attention to your feelings or hunches and follow them. Accept social invitations and you could impress someone important to your plans. Shop for bargains — don't buy on impulse!

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Don't give in to fear and doubt; listen to your intuition and a wish could come true. Good time to begin long term, dedicated diet and exercise program. Adjust some personal habits to achieve domestic harmony.

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

Frances Pratt's sculpture, Pirouette, of butternut wood, rises and swirls from its base in the gallery of the Cambridge Art Association.

A trio of natural artists

Forms of nature have inspired the work of three artists exhibiting at the Cambridge Art Association gallery, 25R Lowell St.

The soaring movements of birds and foliage growth, curves of sea shells, and finely-tuned neutrals of light-struck crystals and strata fill the gallery's quiet white-grey spaces.

Barbara Barss' collages hang on the walls. They are delicate assemblages of handmade paper accented with patterned patches of fabric, old stamps and shiny silver strips and rectangles.

A warm and full dusty rose or muffled red often pushes through or forms a ground for the near-achromatic pieces that make up each work.

Images are suggested only by titles, colors, shapes, and most important, organization of parts. The flecked paper and circular shapes of Celebrating the Solstice might allude to sun, snow, or even a celebratory toss of confetti.

Barss combines crisply cut and softly torn edges, as well as angular and curved shapes in her works.

Her understanding of that flat two-dimensional picture plane and sophisticated handling of its surface give little clue to Barss' previous work in sculpture.

"I have recently worked in handmade paper collage after an elbow injury put a temporary end to carving," explains Belmont resident Barss. "I plan to work in both media in the future."

Sharing the gallery walls with Barss' collages are white latex-painted homasote constructions by Marion Tippetts.

Angular and geometric, Tippetts' sculptures appear to draw more from nature's light and shadow than its organic forms. The juncture of two planes becomes, in the simplicity of the works, a major visual event, with the shift of light and of one unbroken surface to another.

Tippetts' small Construction #84, in which a ruffled form — perhaps inspired by a seashell — emerges from the bottom of a circle is among her best pieces.

The surprising and less severe break of that perfect circle has a certain unpredictable and spontaneous quality not present in some of Tippetts' other works.

Frances Pratt's sculptures are very much in the round, on columns and bases throughout the gallery, and complement the wall pieces of the other two artists.

Working in a variety of media, the Cambridge artist has a special sensitivity to her material and the interplay between its surface and the form it takes.

The smooth, satiny finishes of Soaring and Pirouette, both wood, contribute to the sense of flowing movement in their forms.

Pratt accomplishes the same integration of form and surface with an entirely different material in Sea Otter and Shell Rhythm. The rich and crusty bronze of these two pieces is as "natural" to their bone-like form as the smooth wood or the shiny aluminum in other works.

Pratt's sculptures are not large. The average height is between one and two feet. But they are striking in their visual multiplicity.

The form and personality of each work changes as the viewer walks around it. A vertical movement becomes a horizontal curve, or an angular mass becomes an open space with linear-like boundaries.

Each of Pratt's sculptures has a spirit that is both contained and completed within its form.

It is interesting to see the variety of her approach — especially in terms of material — and the resulting piece in which artist and material, process, and content are in unity.

Natural Forms: Three Perspectives continues through June 28. Gallery hours are 11-5 Tuesday through Saturday. Call 876-0246.

China — at BPL

There is still time to see the remarkable images of China that fill the great hall and stairway walls of the Boston Public Library. Selected from over 200,000 photographs by the Japanese photographer Hiroji Kubota from 1978 to 1984, the fine exhibit of large photographs and murals gives viewers a look at the broad and varied landscape, multiple cultures and people that make up this big, beautiful country.

Kubota has an eye for color and composition as well as for visual cultural information and revealing ironies.

The library is located at 666 Boylston St., Copley Square. Hours are 9 to 9 Monday through Thursday and 9 to 5 Friday and Saturday. Call 536-5400.

Abstract works by Qiu

The paintings of Qiu Deshu at the Chinese Culture Institute, 272 Tremont St., Boston, are neither about his native Shanghai nor about Somerville, where he works during his residency as artist at Tufts University.

While Qiu's abstract works make reference to the ancient Chinese traditions of calligraphy and scroll-mounting, the process of a personal search and means of expression is, in fact, the subject of the paintings. Fissures and chasms, interpreted by Qiu as representing "life's wounds and scars" run across and through the multi layered and agressively colored Xuan paper.

The gallery is open 10 to 5 Tuesday through Saturday and Qiu's work will remain on view through June 30. In addition to the exhibit of paintings in the Chinese Culture Institute gallery, a large triptych by the artist, commissioned by Tufts University, hangs in the Medford campus's new Mayer Student Center.

WHAT KIND OF STORE DID THESE GOODS COME FROM?

A large local retailer whose name we promised not to use, not even hint at, suffered this small fire. They were so fussy about using their name that they even took their name off the tickets. If you do recognize who this famous chain is, please promise you won't tell.

WITH QUANTITIES LIKE THIS... YOU GOTTA BE EARLY!

If you walked into this famous chain's stores you'd find sufficient quantities at their high discount store prices. At our low cheaper than anyone else prices, this stuff is gonna fly out; and because quantities are small we will ask you again... please be early.

What To Wear

The color purple:

Dressing for power or persuasion: color specialists tell how

Story by Christine Palamidessi

"People react positively and give more attention when you wear your personal power colors," says color expert Barbara Zawislak.

She addressed a recent meeting of the Boston Professional Chapter of Women in Communication, Inc. (WICI).

"You can look good or you can look great," said Zawislak.

"When you look great you radiate confidence; friends will notice and ask, 'Are you losing weight? You're changing! What are you doing?' "

Professional color and style consultants, Zawislak and May are founders and partners of "The Color Difference," headquartered in Arlington.

For the past three years the pair have been helping women and men from major New England corporations and organizations pull their image together and find their optimum "look."

By following their strategy, clients learn what colors and styles flatter them and why.

"The objective is to draw attention to the face," said Zawislak. "Then people remember who you are."

No doubt about it, color has impact.

An enhancing shade lights up a woman's face and adds to her attractiveness and self-confidence.

Zawislak and May recommend a core wardrobe of neutral shade suits, jackets, skirts and pants.

Those basics can be dressed up with blouses and fashion-colored accents. Since everything coordinates, a woman is never plagued with the dilemma, "What am I going to wear?"

Instead she can simply dip a hand into her wardrobe and pull out several pieces of clothing that automatically work well together.

Like all colors, neutral colors convey a message; brown, one of President Ronald Reagan's favorite colors, communicates security; gray communicates diplomacy; black, sophistication; and navy, trustworthiness.

"Like the IBM logo, navy blue with white shouts 'I believe you,' " said May.

Intensities and tints vary within the neutral spectrums.

Zawislak and May give every client an individual analysis.

With all the flair and vitality of style sorceresses they juggle the rainbow and come up with straightforward guidelines and practical lessons for perfect dressing.

All colors read differently on every person.

And, according to those differences, the working concept of "The Color Difference" catagorizes individuals into a season--either winter, summer, autumn or spring.

A winter person's best colors are bright, dark, bold and vibrant--she wears black-brown, charcoal grey and deep navy.

Summer colors are somewhat similar to winter colors but softer--a summer person has a "Dresden doll quality" and she is the kind of woman for whom men most often open doors.

Spring colors are clear, fresh and radiant.

"Most East Coast women are either winter or summer," said Zawislak.

"In the Midwest, where ethnic backgrounds are conglomerous, you find more autumns and springs."

Different social as well as professional situations dictate color choices within the season too.

'If you're going to meet a new client and are dressed up like a million dollars and they aren't, you're going to offend them and probably lose the deal,' says Barbara Zawislak.

"Once a woman knows her season, she can get up in the morning and decide what she wants to accomplish that day," said May.

"If she's speaking or giving an important presentation, she can choose a dark power color.

"If she has to be feminine, for whatever reason, a soft color is best. If it's a festive day, or party night, she can wear a vivid, saturated color."

Cheryl Landy, President of WICI and associate publisher of Banner, usually wears subdued colored clothing to work--except on Mondays.

"On Monday I always wear red," she said. "It's deadline day and I want my staff to see me coming and get going."

"Red is assertive and your clothing probably does get your staff's attention," said May, "but remember there's a big difference between red-orange and blue-red.

That difference reflects on your face. Before I understood color I was attracted to red-orange clothing--and i bought it.

"But red-orange isn't me.

"Now, when I want to communicate "action," I wear blue-red--my skin glows, my eyes light up and my hair looks darker, richer."

"Sometimes, when you wear bright colors--even if you've had a good night's sleep, feel great and are raring to go--people in the office will look at you and ask "Do you feel OK?'."

"That's because a bright color--if it's not your perfect shade--will make you look tired, sallow and sad.

"Then you actually lose impact. A clear yellow, for instance, is especially tough on most faces."

Dressing for business requires a well-honed knack for manipulating clothing--so that the clothing doesn't jeopardize the situation.

"If you're going to meet a new client and are dressed up like a million dollars and they aren't, you're going to offend them and probably lose the deal," said Zawislak.

It is important to assess every situation and know what color and style will help achieve goals.

Women competing in a man's world should never wear ruffles or garments that make them look soft and weak.

"As soon as you emulate what men in your corporation wear, you'll have power too," said Zawislak.

"You don't want to overdress or underdress. Be aware of your position within the organization and dress for maintenance or advancement accordingly."

On the way to the top Zawislak and May say navy basics with silk and silk-like blouses are safe.

Once a woman reaches the top, she can be bolder and more dramatic. Power is reflected in clothing.

Women who reach the top wear Chanel suits, quality tailored outfits made from very expensive fabric, and buy top-of-the-line.

Once individual colors are defined, a shopping trek need never again be overwhelming or purchases be prompted by impulse buying.

Every store does have garments and accessories that fit within each women's season and style guidelines.

Choice becomes determined by what a woman knows is best for her and not by what attracts her eye on the rack.

Both consultants object strongly to bargain buying.

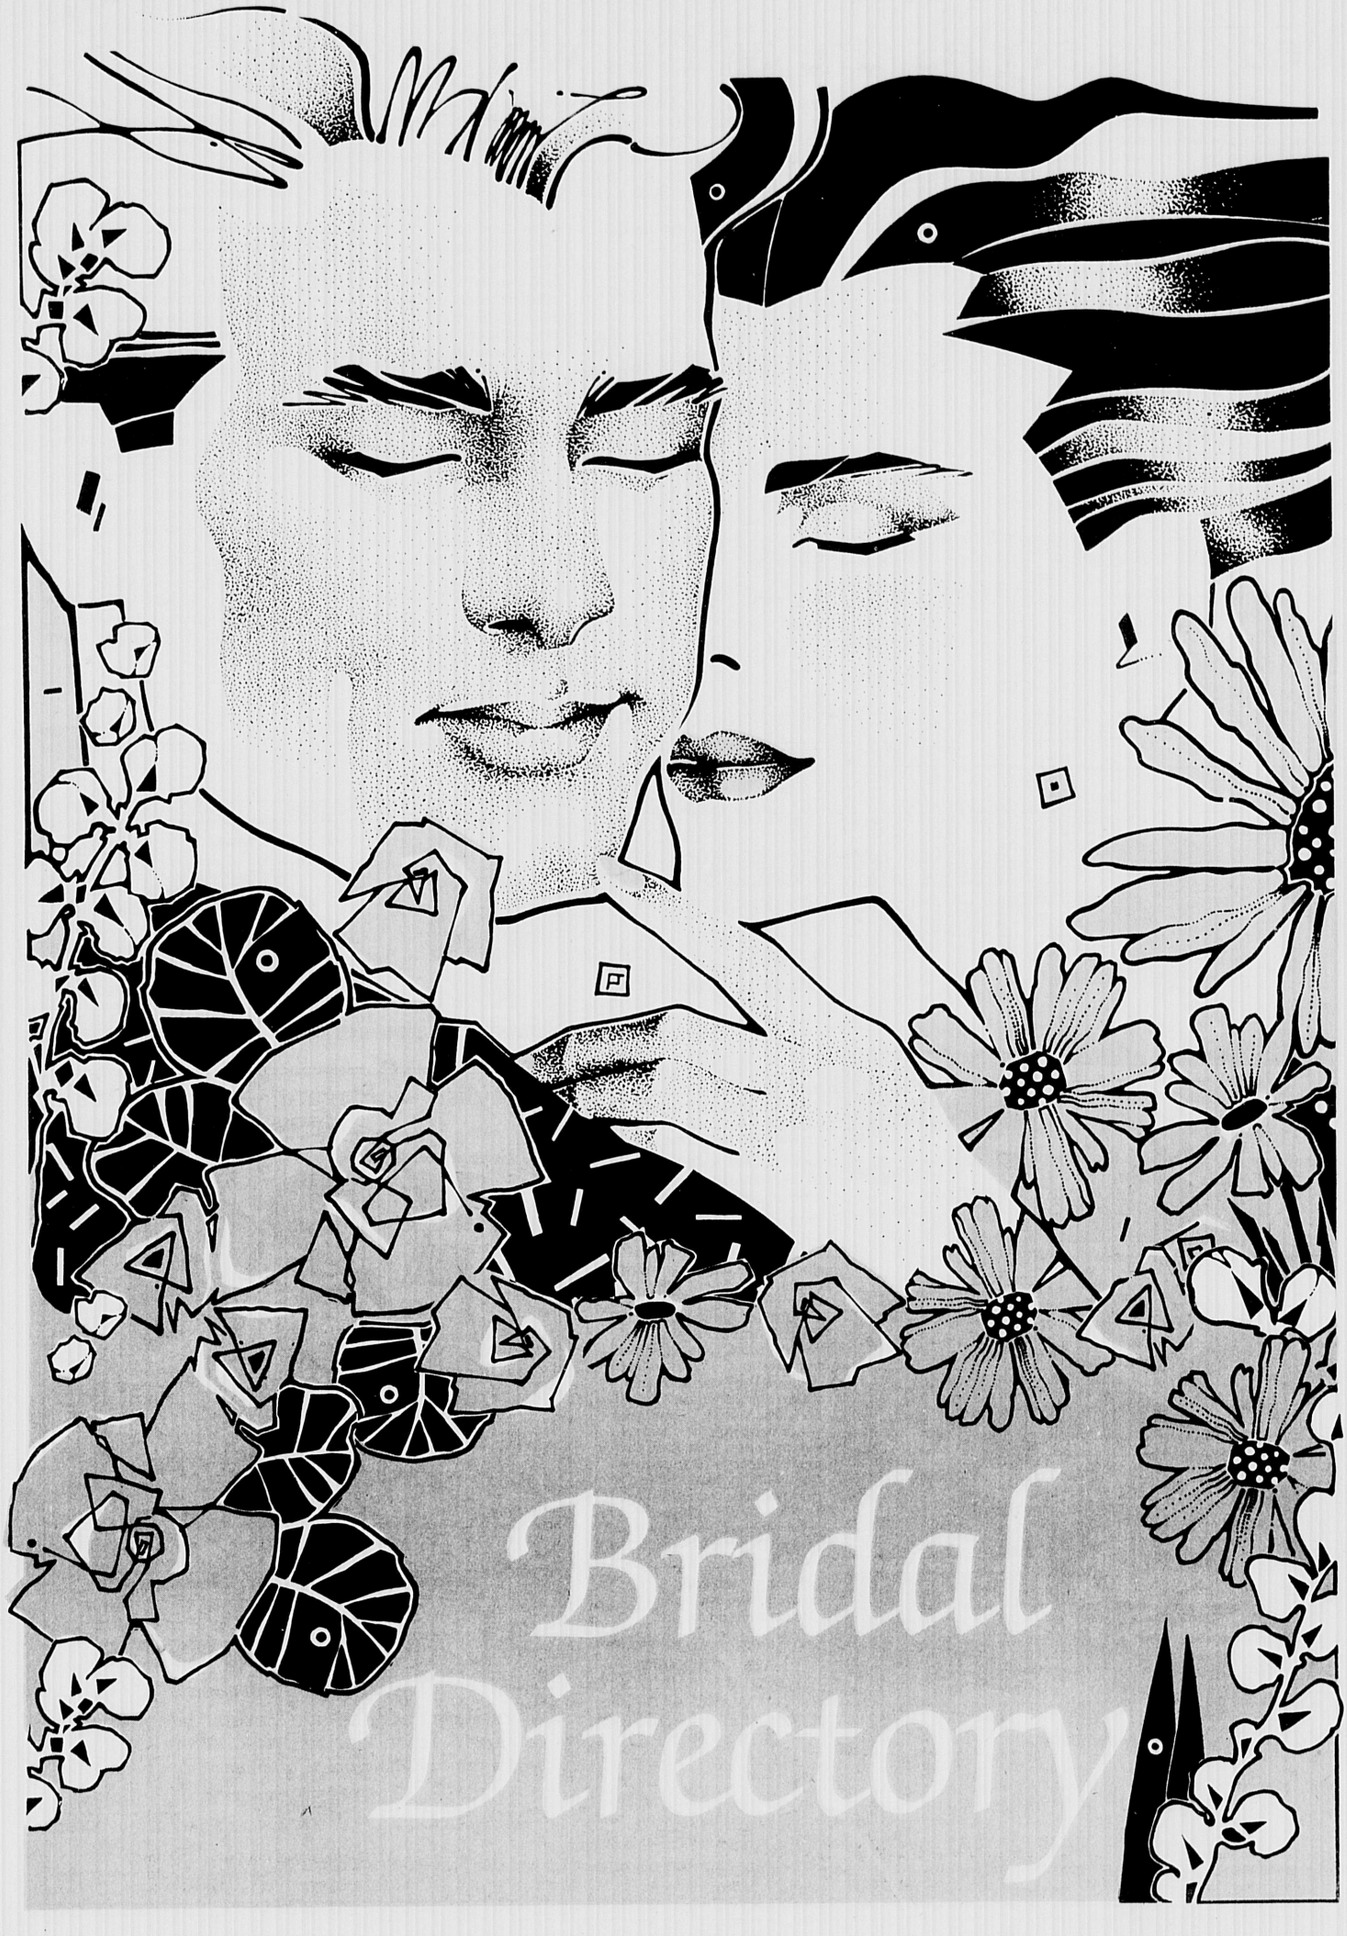

"There's only one way to save money," said May, "and that's not by filling up closets with clothing you never wear.

"Gearing yourself to your personal power and natural beauty enhancing colors makes life a lot easier."

Zawislak said it takes about three years to completely turn over a wardrobe after a color consultation.

They advise clients on how to gently color update a current wardrobe with a blazer, blouses, scarves--and look their best without emptying their pocketbooks.

And--good news--every woman's season lasts a lifetime. Even if a woman's haircolor changes throughout her life, her colors stay the same.

Bridal Directory

Wedding styles are white, white, white

The newest, freshest look in bridal wear is an all-white theme.

And typical of the fashion industry, it's a look we've seen before but with a new appeal. Revived from the '20s, this is a wedding in which everyone wears white.

Also from the flapper era are body-clinging gowns with dropped waists — perfect for long strands of pearls — and a fashionable alternative to the traditional look.

The glamour of the '30s has been recreated in the bridal business, too, and brides wanting to make a dramatic entrance will do it in stark white satin sheaths with low backs and draped hips, sans ruffles lace and seed pearls.

But don't think the traditional or romantic gowns are gone. They're still in vogue with a definite European influence.

Called fantasy gowns, they're full skirts of Swiss or Italian embroidered organza and chiffon, sometimes irridescent and always adorned with ruffles and appliques of petals and leaves. The ruffles take on a new dimension with tiny wires in the rolled hems to make them stand up, and the petals and leaves give an art deco air of sophistication on sleeves, bodices and hemlines. Some of the leaves dip low enough at the hem to create a scalloped effect, particularly attractive on the tea-length or intermission-length gowns that have staged a big comeback.

Once suggested only for second marriages, this time around it's considered terrifically chic.

Also topping the fashion list is the emergence of provocative — almost sexy — gowns. Some have backs that dip to the waist, others plunge in the front, and others are completely strapless. And they sparkle. Seed pearls may be the standard accent, but the newest look is translucent sequins, rhinestones and crystals.

And with this new embrace of sophistication are cocktail hats and headpieces also adorned with sprays of pearls, sequins, crystal beads and rhinestones.

Trendy for the '80s — and very youthful — is the veiled picture hat or derby, and you'll see it covered in embroidered fabric to match a gown, often accented by a sweep of tulle, silk flowers and pearls.

Perfect for the picture hat is the Scarlett O'Hara gown that continues in popularity this decade, with its pinched waist, hoop skirt and low-cut bodice.

In bridesmaid dresses the newest trend is bright colors, such as orange, Day-Glo green and violet — with sophisticated designs. Some are strapless and could double as a cocktail or dinner dress.

But traditional styles are still the mainstay of the market, and you'll see embroidered organza, pouf sleeves, scalloped tea-length hemlines — and even trains.

Accessories for the bride and bridesmaids include appliqued stockings, beaded shoes and gloves. A new look in gloves for the '80s is the crocheted, fingerless mitt.

'But not for lunch'

Building or Remodeling?
GREAT IDEAS BEGIN WITH KOHLER

Bathrooms are real rooms now. Lush and colorful . . . fresh and convenient. And there's a color and convenience revolution brewing in the kitchen, too.

Kohler offers plumbing fixtures, faucets and colors to meet all your building needs.

Bathtubs in durable enameled cast iron. One-piece bathing modules in easy-care fiberglass. Luxurious whirlpool baths. Convenient self-rimming lavatories — some big enough for bathing the baby, others compact for narrow countertops. Toilets that will not overflow . . . and toilets designed to flush with less water. Showerheads that use 50% less water . . . and save water heating costs. Water-saving faucets that add the perfect decorator touch. Colorful acrylic bar sinks for family room, recreation room or patio. And colorful enameled cast iron sinks that make kitchens look better and work better.

Hand care: happy hand in marriage

On your wedding day, more than any other day in your life, people pay attention to your hands — whether you're holding a bouquet, greeting guests, showing off your ring or raising your glass in a toast. No wonder people use the phrase, "giving one's hand in marriage."

Naturally, every bride wants her hands and nails to be in glorious shape for this special occasion. Roughened skin, chipped nail polish and broken nails are wedding day no-no's — and it's never too early to start preparing for your show of hands.

The skin on your hands is thinner than almost any other exposed body part, which means it needs protection to stay soft and smooth. Many models believe that gloves are your hands' best friend. They advise wearing rubber gloves for household tasks, work gloves for outside chores such as gardening, and warm gloves for cold weather.

Above all, protect your hands with rubber gloves when washing dishes. Not only do soaps and detergents rob your skin of natural oils, but water weakens nails and makes them more likely to split or peel.

After you've had your hands in water, be sure to slather them with a moisturizer that has humectants to keep the skin moisturized longer and emollients to provide a barrier against further moisture loss. Not only will skin be softer, but frequent moisturizing also keeps nails supple and cuticles in good shape, according to spokesmen for Vaseline Intensive Care Lotion.

Before you can have beautiful hands and nails, however, you must have healthy hands and nails. And basic to that is good nutrition. Since nails are made of protein, make sure you get a sufficient amount of protein each day.

Although Grandmother may have advised you to swallow a daily dose of gelatin to achieve strong nails, modern science disagrees.

"Gelatin has never been shown to be scientifically effective," said dermatologists Arnold W. Klein and James H. Sternberg in "The Skin Book."

What is effective is a healthy lifestyle with adequate rest, exercise and proper diet. When your entire body is in good shape, so are the hands and nails.

Once your hands and nails are in good shape, manicures will keep them that way. That doesn't mean you have to wear nail polish if it's not your style. The word "manicure" simply means "hand care," and a proper manicure will improve the appearance of both skin and nails:

— File nails with the fine side of an emery board, always filing toward the center. Don't file too close to the sides since this weakens the entire nail and leaves it prone to snagging or splitting.

— Soak each hand in warm, soapy water to soften the cuticles. Rinse and dry nails carefully.

— Massage a generous amount of lotion into hands, paying special attention to cuticles.

— Push cuticles back gently with a cotton swab. Never cut cuticles — that encourages hangnails. If you don't wear nail polish, buff your nails slightly.

Ideas for '80s style bachelor parties

Traditional weddings may be back in style. But grooms are not necessarily following the "old" rules for bachelor parties, according to results of the Smirnoff Bachelor Party survey, which polled hundreds of recently married men.

The survey revealed, for example, that most men had what they described as a fun but sophisticated, low-key affair or a small gathering of close friends sharing good conversation. Only a small percentage described the occasion as a wild, raucous, "anything-goes" celebration.

The majority said that their bachelor parties were held in a restaurant or the home of a friend or relative, followed by parties in bars and dance clubs.

The Vodka Information Bureau, a source of entertaining ideas and recipes, offers these tips for throwing a fun and memorable bachelor party:

— Choose a setting that is appropriate to the groom's and invited guests' tastes, interests and the time of year. For example, a bachelor who loves the ocean could have a floating celebration — overnight on a rented yacht if funds allow. Others may prefer settings as diverse as a fine gourmet restaurant or neighborhood tavern for a farewell to their single days.

— Arrange for a proper bar, one with a variety of spirits, wine, beer and soft drinks. Be sure to inlcude low-calorie varieties. Remember to ask special friends or relatives to prepare a short toast in advance.

— Select a menu sure to appeal to a number of different palates. Include simple crowd pleasers such as fried chicken or pasta, a salad or other lighter dish and bowls of chips, pretzels and dips. A buffet works well in most party settings and will allow guests to help themselves over the course of the evening.

— Be original when deciding on entertainment. Although, traditionally, "entertainment" has meant stag movies or exotic dancers, guests may prefer attending a sporting event or hearing a good jazz band. And bachelor parties need not be a male-only ritual. Today's recently married men report enjoying dances and other coed parties to which they may bring their wives or girlfriends.

— Encourage guests to bring a gag gift to the festivities, but stress moderation. After all, the bride's father and brothers may be in attendance and this is not a good time to insult her family.

Stylish brides now pick golden rings

Today's bride is different from her predecessors. Chances are she's older, more educated, earning good money and has a style uniquely her own. She's a decision maker — and that includes the selection of wedding rings for herself and her husband-to-be.

According to the The Gold Information Center, the 1980s' bride and groom want their rings to have the high quality and sensuous appeal that gold provides. Whether contemporary or old-fashioned, simple or intricate, there are gold wedding rings to meet any desire.

Contemporary couples know image is important. Crisply tailored, highly polished gold rings styled with multidimensional planes or faceted angles might appeal to them. As alternatives, satin finished and sandblasted matte surfaces in bicolor or tricolor gold offer interesting color and textural patterns.

Equally suitable for the modern couple are rings that feature reflective, diamond-cut patterns or shimmering chiseled surfaces achieved through intricate etching.

For the more nostalgic couple, there has been a return to the romantic styling that once dominated the market. The "old fashioned" bride is as up-to-date as her contemporary counterpart, but she and her husband-to-be place more emphasis on traditional style.

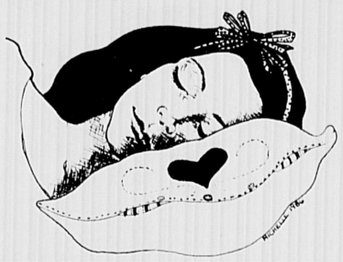

They might select a traditional yellow gold circlet featuring carved and embossed florals. Also popular for the romantic at heart are interlocking yellow, pink and white gold bands accented with tiny colored gemstones or granulated for an interesting surface effect. This couple also is likely to select matching ring sets.

Aside from wedding bands, more couples today are surprising each other with additional gifts of karat gold for the wedding day. For example, brides are finding tie tacks, collar bars and button covers, which produce the look of cuff links, for their grooms.

Grooms know that a gift of gold to their brides not only shows they care, but also can be the start of a gift-giving tradition. Gold earrings, chains and hammered cuffs are all favorites. The wedding day gift can be the start of a beautiful jewelry collection.

Do's: some acts may help manage conflict

A wedding. A time of excitement, a time for making plans, dreaming dreams, loving love. A time for figuring out where to sit Aunt Minnie. A time for deciding whether your third cousin George is going to get an invitation or be discreetly overlooked. A time for deciding at whose home the pre-wedding dinner will be held. The groom's home. The bride's home. No home.

A wedding. A most wonderful time in your life. But too often conflicts poorly handled can transform that ideal wedding into a nightmare.

Following are tips on how to come out in one piece and smiling when inevitable wedding day conflicts arise.

For many people conflict is taboo — a thing to be avoided at all costs. Indeed, when couples who once were happily married call it splits, the culprit named during divorce proceedings usually is "irreconcilable differences" — a fancy term for conflict.

What is essential to realize is that every relationship worth maintaining is subject to moments of conflict. In fact, if you are party to a conflict-free relationship, that might be a sign that you really have no relationship at all.

We tell ourselves it's disagreeable to disagree, that nice people don't "make waves." But such behavior is as unnatural as constantly lashing out at a person for no reason. If a relationship is a healthy one, conflicts will occur regularly. But — and this is the critical factor — they also will be handled effectively.

How should you handle conflict when it occurs, whether prior to or subsequent to your wedding day? If you were going to mishandle it, you might:

— turn into an ostrich and pretend the conflict didn't exist;

— turn into a turtle and inch away from discussing it;

— baa like a sheep and surrender to the person with whom you were in conflict;

— dance like a cuckoo bird in an effort to create a distraction so that you won't have to deal with the conflict;

— perch yourself on an armchair like an owl in an attempt to rationalize the conflict;

— act like a screeching parrot and tell the other person involved that it's all his fault, or — act like a gorilla and try to force those involved to see things your way.

Each of these methods announces to the world that you have not conquered the conflict — it has conquered you. It's essential to remember that when conflict surfaces between people, even if one is a bride and the other a groom, only person-to-person discussion will enable them to resolve it effectively.

If you succeed in handling wedding conflicts in a constructive way, you're apt to experience benefits that will last a lifetime.

Remember, conflicts are a part of life. Thus, they are a part of weddings. Whether they help or hinder your relationship, however, depends on how you react to them.

Avoiding wedding day disasters, worry

All brides have something in common — they worry about disasters occurring on their wedding days. But relax, there are some commonsense tips that can save a bride from beauty disasters.

— Invest in a massage before your wedding — it can help you rest and relax.

— Buy two pairs of the hose you are planning to wear. Often a little run can occur to the most careful bride at the most inopportune moment.

— Slip a pair of cushioned mini-soles into your shoes. They'll cushion the balls of the feet and stop the feet from sliding forward in new shoes.

– Get a breath spray or mints to keep your mouth from going dry, but never chew gum walking down the aisle.

— If you have a crying spell before the wedding, soak cotton in diluted cold milk and apply it to your eyes. This will reduce puffiness and redness.

— Keep the plastic that your gown comes in. Use it to cover yourself if it rains. Unlike a raincoat, the plastic won't wrinkle a gown. And don't fret if it rains, it's good luck.

— To avoid chipped nails, splurge on a professional manicure the day before. The morning of your wedding, put a clear coat on top. Bring your nail polish color for emergencies.

— Take a bag of makeup to the reception. Baby powder, deodorant, perfume, bring it all. And don't forget a cover-up in case of a breakout.

— Many brides are disappointed by unexpected rips in their gowns or trains. Bring a sewing kit and safety pins to the ceremony and someone will stitch it up in no time.

— Purchase a lace handkerchief that matches your gown to put in your sleeve for unexpected tears of joy.

The above tips were compiled by Combe Inc., makers of Johnson's Slip-Stops mini-soles.

Most married man

Possibly the most married man of all time was King Mongut of Siam, who is commemorated in the play, "The King and I." He is said to have had 9,000 wives and concubines.

King Solomon of the Old Testament had only 700. Queen Kahena of the Berbers had 400 husbands. August the Strong of Saxony had 365 wives — one for each day of the year. — CNS

'Happy' weigh less

A survey by Richard B. Stuart, professor of family medicine at the University of Utah School of Medicine, found that women respondents gained an average of 24 pounds during 13 years of marriage. Their husbands gained only 18.

Stuart's study also found that women who described themselves as "happily married" weighed an average of 30 pounds less than those who said they were "unhappily married." — CNS

What grooms pay for

What does the bridegroom pay for? Customarily, he pays for the bride's engagement and wedding rings, the marriage license, his medical examination, a present for the bride, the bride's bouquet and boutonnieres for men in the wedding party, flowers for the two mothers, the bachelor dinner, gifts for attendants, fee for the clergy and the honeymoon. — CNS

Quality. Why settle for anything but the best?

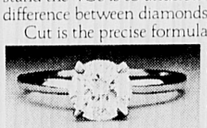

Quality is important to you in everything you own. But it's even more important when you're choosing a diamond. Because quality is what gives a diamond its rare beauty, its dazzling sparkle.

What is it that determines the quality of a diamond? The 4C's—Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight—are the important characteristics that give a diamond its value. And to understand the 4C's is to understand the difference between diamonds.

Cut is the precise formula for cutting a diamond to allow the maximum amount of light to pass through. Color refers to the different gradations from exceptional white to yellowish. Quality is also determined by Clarity, the degree to which a diamond is free of interior and exterior flaws. Finally, there is Carat-weight, the size of the diamond.

Fine quality diamonds simply look better, and will enhance any jewelry design. Come in and see our wide selection of fine quality diamonds in elegantly designed settings. You'll see that all diamonds are not the same.

Wedding co-star needs attention, too

Here comes the bridegroom. At the wedding he rates co-star billing, but he doesn't always enjoy co-star attention.

The bride and her attendants with their graceful gowns, flowing veils and bouquets of flowers often eclipse the groom and his attendants, who are destined to wear dark suits with only a single boutonniere for decoration.

Also, it traditionally is the bride and her family who plan the wedding. But the groom has his role to play with varied responsibilities beginning with the selection of the men's wedding attire.

"Whether the wedding is morning, noon or night, the groom and best man and, if possible, the ushers, should wear the same outfits," said D. Gordon Williams, president of Countess Mara, an authority in men's clothing and accessories.

"From my observations," Williams said, "the trend today is for semiformal weddings, but with all the elegant trappings of bridal gowns, veils and flowers."

For a semiformal daytime wedding, the groom and best man will be dressed suitably in oxford gray or dark blue suits, white shirts, four-in-hand ties, black shoes and socks and gray doeskin or suede gloves.

For a semiformal evening wedding, midnight blue or black dinner jackets, matching vests or cummerbunds and matching bow ties are appropriate. The white shirt may be pleated or ruffled. Black shoes and socks, of course, are essential.

For summer outdoor weddings, the groom and his attendants may show their colors in lightweight suits of blue, gray or white with coordinated ties.

It is customary for the groom to supply appropriate ties and gloves for the best man and ushers. The ushers' ties all should match, although the groom's and the best man's may be slightly different. In some cases, the groom may wish to coordinate the color of the ties with the bride's color scheme, but the ties should be conservative, a solid color and not overly decorated.

The bachelor party, usually held two or three days before the wedding, is a toss-up. If the best man or the ushers do not give it, then the groom does the honors.

At the bachelor party, the groom and his attendants exchange personal gifts. All the ushers receive the same gift from the groom, although the best man's gift may be something different.

"Cuff links, pen and pencil sets and leather wallets are perennial favorites," Williams said. "In addition, there are innovative accessories for men that merit attention."

Shaving paraphernalia are no longer mundane objects to be tucked away in a medicine chest. Stunning mirrored stands fashioned out of gold plate, brown marble or black enamel accommodate razors and shaving brushes. For a change of pace, smaller stands hold gold-plated or marbleized toothbrushes and razors.

At the party, the best man and ushers also make their presentations to the groom. When asked the best personal gift attendants can give a groom, Williams said money.

"Nevertheless," he added, "the groom should receive some permanent keepsake to mark this important event in his life."

A gold money clip or a gold master key for his new home are symbolic gifts. And, of course, there are old reliables, like gold cuff links with precious or semiprecious stones or a handsome leather wallet.

Widow most revered

In his will, German poet Heinrich Heine, who died in 1856, left his estate to his wife provided she married again, "because then there will be at least one man to regret my death." — CNS

Divorce wasn't easy

Until 1857, divorce in Britain was possible only by an act of Parliament. Then jurisdiction passed to the courts, but for the next 80 years the sole ground for divorce was adultery. — CNS

Traditional values remain among couples

Traditional sex roles die hard, even in "modern" couples, where both the husband and wife have careers. The man still expects to make more money than the woman, and the woman still defines at least part of her identity with her ability to care for the home, according to a recent study.

The best way for couples to cope with contradictions to traditional roles is to have good communication skills, according to Dr. Jan Ventura-Algozzini, a counseling psychologist at California State University at Dominguez Hills, in Carson, Calif.

Of the 31 couples interviewed, those with better communication skills were better able to break through traditional sexual stereotypes. Ventura-Algozzini also found that satisfied couples shared a sense of equity.

"That doesn't mean that an outsider would say it's very equitable — split 50-50 right down the middle. Maybe the couple has a sense of equity that one person is giving more now but that ultimately it will be the other person's turn," she said. "It's very subjective to the couple.

"They need to communicate a sense of equity, to express what it is that they need for the relationship," she said.

Management of time was another important issue to the happiness of dual-career couples.

"When I asked the couples how they spend their free time, after they stopped laughing, they said whatever free time they had they liked to spend with themselves, then with their spouses and then with family and friends," she said.

A lack of social interaction could create difficulties for couples, according to Ventura-Algozzini. A deficiency of friends outside the marriage could mean the people have no place to turn in times of stress.

Couples therefore have to be able to identify stress and then talk about it to find out how to handle it. If one partner is having job problems, for instance, maybe he can talk to his boss to modify the situation, she said.

"Or talk about what's going on at home that's causing stress. After you've expressed it, take a break to spend quality time with each other," the psychologist said. Or away from each other, if necessary.

"At times there's going to be a strong independence to the relationship. At other times there will be strong dependence on the relationship," she said. "You need to recognize that ebb and flow."

Involvement in careers was another factor of marital satisfaction for dual-career couples. For the marriage to succeed, each person must value a career both for himself and for the other person.

But the couples who had the highest level of satisfaction were those who were not too involved with their careers, she said. They had jobs where they could limit the number of hours, did not work weekends and did not have an extensive amount of overtime or time spent in travel away from home.

Wives give 30 percent

In two-income marriages, wives contribute about 30 percent of the household income, according to a study by the American Council of Life Insurance.

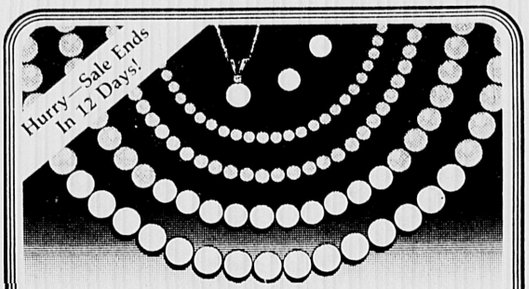

When both wife and husband work full time the year around, the wife's contribution amounts to 38 percent of the household's income, the Census Bureau reported.

Shower tips: how to make gifts fun, useful

A successful wedding shower — one that gives the bride and groom gifts they can use, without too much duplication — can be easy to plan.

Whether you plan a "ladies-only" event or the newer "couple" shower where both the bride and groom are honored guests, it all begins with the invitation.

The invitation not only can guide gift givers to select gifts within the couple's tastes and needs, it also can ensure that there is no duplication of gifts.

The invitation could read, for example, "Mark and Susan are decorating their home in the old-fashioned, homespun way, so think 'country' for this shower." You even could assign each guest a room for which to buy a gift.

Or, you could plan an "around-the-clock" shower for which you instruct each guest to bring a gift appropriate for use at a certain time of the day. The person who has 7 a.m. might bring an alarm clock or coffee maker; the person with noon, a picnic basket for weekend luncheons; the person with 7 p.m., candles and holders for romantic evening dinners.

If you or the couple are economy-minded or if you know your guests are on a budget, there are several fun theme showers to try.

At a grocery staples shower, guests bring non-perishable items such as flower, pasta, canned goods and detergent. If everyone brings just a few items, you can stock a whole pantry for just a few dollars a person.

At a group gift shower, all guests chip in to buy a single special item. A visit to the wedding gift registry where the couple has listed their preferences or a talk with the bride's mother usually will reveal a gift idea — whether it's a food processor, microwave or a television.

Whatever type of shower you give, Barbara Tober, editor in chief of Bride's magazine, offers these recommendations:

— The shower should take place at least two weeks before the wedding, sooner if it's a surprise so it doesn't interfere with the couple's other wedding plans.

— Ask the bride's mother or best friend for help with the guest list. It's always polite to invite the wedding couple's parents to come along, and members of the bridal party are traditional guests, too.

— The safest way to find out what the couple really wants as gifts is to find out what they have registered for. Their wedding gift registry list probably will include plenty of variety. And, especially with a theme shower, the hostess should keep track of what each guest is planning to bring to avoid duplicates.

Good Ideas from the Past • by Donald J. Berg

POISON IVY VIRGINIA CREEPER

Poison Ivy

From the book PRACTICAL HOUSEKEEPING, 1883

POISON BY IVY — An infallible remedy for poisoning by ivy, poison oak and other poison vines and plants, is good rich butter milk in which you have beaten some green tansy leaves until the milk is thoroughly tinctured. Bathe the parts often (indeed, you could not do it too often,) until relieved. Wet a cloth with the mixture at night, and lay on, wetting as often as it feels dry.

HOW TO DETECT POISON IVY — The poison ivy and the innocuous kind differ in one particular which is too easy of remembrance to be overlooked by any one who is interested enough in the brilliant-hued leaves of autumn to care for gathering them; the leaves of the former grow in clusters of threes, and those of the latter in fives. As somebody has suggested in a juvenile story book, every child should be taught to associate the five leaves in a cluster with the fingers on the human hand, and given to understand that when these numbers agree they can be brought into contact with perfect safety. It may spare our readers no little suffering to bear this point in mind during their October rambles in the fields.

For a list of new books that feature good advice and home & garden design ideas from the past, send $1.00 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Antiquity Reprints, Dept. S, Box 370, Rockville Centre, NY 11571.

WHAT STAYS WITH HOUSE?

Real estate is usually defined as the land and everything attached to it, such as: buildings, trees, shrubs, etc. The buyer normally gets all of the real estate, but none of the owner's personal property. A problem arises when personal property has become a part of the real estate. This is called a fixture and does pass with the real estate.

There are three usual tests which must be satisfied. Has the personal property been permanently affixed to the real estate? Is it intended to became part of the real estate? And finally, what is the local custom? Some fixtures might include: shades, heaters, ranges, screens, storm windows, and lighting fixtures.

It is important that the seller spell out specifically in his sales agreement exactly what he intends to give to the buyer as part of real estate. This will save misunderstanding at the closing, and sometimes save a sale.

Louise Ruma-Ivers is the immediate past President of the Greater Boston Women's Council of Realtors, and a past Director of the Marketing Institute for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. She is a member of the Arlington Historic Districts Committee.

Dot Stein is a Vice President of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and a Director of its Multiple Listing Service. She was a long-time Arlington Town Meeting member, and a member of the Arlington School Committee.

Good News for the Weekend Mechanic

Audi 5000S Sedan

If you do your own repair work, do the job right with genuine Audi replacement parts. First of all, they fit, so if you take your Audi apart Saturday morning, you know the parts you bought will get you back on the road without another trip. Second, every part has a 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty. At Audi, we care as much about your car as you do.

School board rejects report card changes

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

First, second and third graders townwide will bring home the same report cards next year as they did this year.

Members voted 3-2 Tuesday against revamping the grading system in primary grades. Chairman pro tem Michael Ronayne, member Stephen Powers and member Edward F. O'Connell voted against the proposal while members Donna Brandt Landry and Alice McCarter backed it.

Tension was thick and debate heated as school board members and a primary report card task force went head-to-head, debating pros and cons of a new grading system.

Joanne Martignette, chairman of the task force, urged members to eliminate the current letter grade system and adopt a new report card consisting of an extensive checklist.

The new system, Martignotte said, would be a N,G,O as opposed to A,B,C grading system. "N" would stand for "needs improvement" while "G" would mean "performing at the expected level of the majority of Winchester students" and "O" for would designate "outstanding performance."

The difference between the grading systems, she said, would be in an extensive breakdown of subjects. A student would no longer be given a B for his or her achievements in language skills.

The new system breaks the language curriculum into 16 different parts. In total, each student would be evaluated in 72 different "subjects."

Martignette said it is crucial for young children to feel good about themselves. "Self-esteem is so important at this age," she said.

Ronayne said, "I have a great deal of difficulty with the proposal. I can't seem to come to grips with it.

"The existing system has worked well for me. I have not heard a ground swell (of support) on this issue from the public," Ronayne said.

Landry disagreed. "There was a ground swell from the public," she said, citing a recent meeting at Vinson-Owen School when parents and teachers voiced concerns about the current letter grade system. Landry said she supported the new system.

"I worry the format would prove to be a bit of a burden to the teachers," said O'Connell.

Ronayne agreed. He questioned whether teachers would be capable of carrying out such an involved task. "I can't imagine these kinds of estimates being made by teachers," he said.

He called the proposal "arbitrary and difficult to understand."

Teacher Susan Bokil and assistant superintendent David Ackerman asked the board to consider the needs of students.

Ackerman said, "Hitting 6, 7 and 8-year-olds with letter grades can hurt their attitudes," he said.

McCarter also supported the new system. "From my experience with report cards, I liked seeing what information I might get broken down. I'm enthusiastic about it," she said.

Ronayne qualified his concerns. "I'm not married to the present system and I'm not dismissing the report. . . . I'm not sure we have found an appropriate alternative," he said.

Selectmen busy:
Clash with board of appeals

By GEORGE DERRINGER

The proper role of selectmen, an issue underlying several recent meetings of the board, surfaced again Monday night as a jurisdictional dispute with the zoning board of appeals.

Freely admitting his comments would cause more controversy, board chairman Wade Welch derisively called a June 18 letter from the board of appeals "cute."

Ferdinand Pacione, chairman of the board of appeals, wrote to ask if his group should "infer that the board of selectmen is in favor" of granting variances for a proposed development by the Trodella Corp. on McKay Avenue, near the town transfer station.

In fact, selectmen have developed a position in recent months, saying they wish to be informed of and comment about "major projects" proposed to the board of appeals. That board has the power to grant variances and special exceptions to the town's zoning bylaws.

But whether selectmen should comment as a board or as individuals is unsettled. Selectman Judie Muggia said Monday she would be "uncomfortable" if the board of selectmen took an official stand on an issue before the board of appeals.

"I'm not interested in having the board take a position," she said, although she might want to comment as an individual.

Selectman Frank Sopper, however, said the selectmen's silence might be interpreted as consent and/or endorsement.

Trodella manufactures electrical components and has proposed a 45,000-square foot structure on the present site of the Griet Brothers paper manufacturing building. The town has a special interest in the project because its right-of-way to the transfer station crosses the Trodella property.

Welch was more concerned with the action of Pacione in even writing to the selectmen.

"I thought the letter was cute," Welch said. "It's no secret that we've had some interesting discussions about zoning and that we've closely questioned members of some boards about it when we considered appointments."

Selectmen have discussed zoning frequently and Sopper calls the issue his "pet peeve," pointing out with irritation that most requests for variances have been granted by the board of appeals in recent months. He has demanded to know why developers can't live within the limits of the zoning bylaws.

"We invited the developer (Trodella) up here because this is an important project with a $3.2 million bond issue from the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency," Welch declared. "Yes, I'm generally in favor of the project."

But Welch said he wished the board of appeals would say what it means. "If you mean to say to stay out of it, I wish you'd tell us that," Welch said. "Don't invite error by

Selectmen want continued role in housing issue

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Winchester selectmen tried Monday to be sure they will have at least some say in the housing authority's dealings with the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD).

At this year's town meeting, members voted to provide seven units of low- to moderate-income housing. The EOCD threatened to cut off all state "discretionary funding" to the town if seven sites were not approved.

"Will we have any input?" selectman Mark Lombardi asked.

Town manager Chad Maurer said he spoke with Jerry Keefe, executive director of the Winchester Housing Authority, late last week.

"I was told the state will be out to look at the Palmer Street site and the Woburn Loop," Maurer said. Town meeting voted to put three units on Palmer Street and two on the Woburn Loop railroad right-of-way near Cross Street.

"There were three signatories to the agreement with the state" for seven units of housing, Welch said. They were selectmen, the housing authority and the planning board.

"It's proper to refer to the housing authority for the nuts and bolts of implementation but, hopefully, we could find out when they're coming out to inspect," Welch said.

"I just want to be informed," Lombardi said. "I would feel bad if the next word the selectmen got from the state was that we won't get any more state aid."

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, who attended a meeting last week with EOCD representatives and Keefe, added his impression.

Some EOCD representatives, especially EOCD administrator Carol Ford, were angry that Winchester's town meeting had approved housing sites never inspected or approved by the state.

Saltmarsh did not address that issue.

"The housing authority requested the state to review town meeting action," Saltmarsh said.

"The bottom line is that the EOCD should come back and look at all the sites," Saltmarsh said. "And they agreed to do that, particularly for the Palmer Street and Woburn Loop sites."

Saltmarsh also said EOCD people were unhappy Winchester approved two single-family sites because the state thinks single-family units are too expensive to build.

"But the town voted for it and will provide the land free of charge," Saltmarsh pointed out.

Welch asked if Saltmarsh could arrange a hearing about the Woburn Loop as soon as possible. Saltmarsh said he could "guarantee" a hearing.

The state requires a public hearing before any abandoned railroad right-of-way is used for a non-transportation purpose. But the state is also extremely reluctant to allow permanent structures on them.

Mystic Lake harvest of weeds slated

By PEG HAYKAL

Plans for a maintenance project involving weed harvesting and raking of forebays in the Upper Mystic Lakes were proposed Tuesday night at the Winchester Conservation Committee public hearing.

Removal of the weeds which thrive in the shallow bays and high phosphorous levels is expected to begin this summer, said town manager Chad Maurer, after the state finishes its specifications.

The state says there must be an intermunicipal agreement between Arlington, Medford and Winchester before the work can start.

"The problem came to us two years ago, but was delayed due to getting approval from Arlington and Medford," conservation committee member Jerome Cura said.

A contractor will remove the weeds, but not the roots. No chemicals will be used since they are harmful to the pond as an ecosystem. "Weed harvesting is environmentally relatively benign," Cura said.

Cura describes the process as "a maintenance activity, not a cure." He said, "We are relying on the state to give us the most effective treatment."

Maurer said the "total for both bays is a little over $30,000."

Ask Saltmarsh for more contact

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh visited Winchester selectmen Monday night to assure them he would work more closely with the town in the future.

Selectmen were unhappy the previous week to learn of various projects state agencies planned in Winchester without the knowledge of selectmen.

Saltmarsh said some of the poor communication may be caused by turnover on the board of selectmen but promised "to pump out" state documents earlier.

"Sometimes I don't like to do that they're in an embryonic stage," Saltmarsh said. "But I know all the players and can be a help to you."

Addressing planned improvements at the train stations in Winchester center and Wedgemere, which surprised selectmen last week, Saltmarsh said he had reviewed the proposed repairs and improvements with town officials and the MBTA last year.

William McDonald, assistant director of the commuter rail service for the MBTA, said Saltmarsh had asked him to "find money" for the stations. A bond issue approved by the legislature in December would provide the money, he said.

"We have $1.2 million to upgrade 38 commuter rail stations," McDonald said, "and $120,000 will be used for Winchester and Wedgemere."

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, said his board had not been concerned with the project itself but with the process that took selectmen by surprise.

"We wanted to know how to handle the state's input and, frankly, how to deal with you," Welch said to Saltmarsh. "But we're not against the project. We're grateful for the money."

Saltmarsh said the state is not "monolithic" but is instead "multi-faceted."

The state representative said he also hopes to get the MBTA to resurface the parking lots at both stations "but it's up to you."

On another state-related issue, Saltmarsh described the process leading to an erosion control project on the banks of the Aberjona River between Swanton Street and the high school.

Saltmarsh admitted, "I should have sent copies" of the plan to selectmen. He said the project, originally prompted by flooding, would not solve flooding problems.

"To address the erosion problem alone will take the entire $400,000" appropriated by the legislature, Saltmarsh said.

On yet another issue, Saltmarsh suggested the river bridge south of Wedgemere station needs to be reconstructed and is currently safe only for cars.

The state plans to resurface all of Mystic Valley Parkway, however, and Winchester should consider deeding part of Bacon Street which connects two parts of the parkway to the state, Saltmarsh said.

Saltmarsh said the town should put the issue on the warrant for the November town meeting. "Resurfacing the road, with or without the bridge, will run the better part of $6 million," he said.

On a final issue, Saltmarsh said the fill to be removed during the Aberjona erosion project would be moved at state expense but must be placed somewhere in town to be designated by selectmen.

Assessors will finish revaluation chore soon

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

Winchester's assessors are aiming for a visit from the state within the next three weeks, according to board chairman Francis X. Mahoney.

Assessors and hired consultants have spent the past 10 months revaluating all town properties.

Assistant assessor Jim Doherty said within the next week to 10 days the board hopes to wrap up all the paperwork and compile all the figures.

"There was no state deadline, but we had a target date of June 9 in our minds," said Doherty.

Mahoney said it is crucial that assessors be prepared when they inform the state. "If we're not ready, then we go to the bottom of the list," he said.

The board has been working since last fall to revalue all residential properties and businesses in town.

In 1981, about 1,500 homes were not entered by data collectors. Of those, the board was unable to revaluate about 400 to 450 homes.

Mahoney said, "There is no law that allows us to force our way into a home."

He suspects many homeowners refuse revaluation for several reasons.

"In one way it's unfair because we can't get a fair value, we can only give a curbstone assessment," he said.

"We have to assume they've done considerable amount of work with a permit or without," he said.

"There is an awful lot of work done in town without permits," Mahoney said.

William Maher is McCall's new assistant principal

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

After five rounds of voting and no discussion, school committee members agreed Tuesday to hire William A. Maher as the new McCall Junior High School assistant principal.

Superintendent Charles Mitsakos' first choice was Patricia Shea Scully. The board voted the same in three consecutive rounds. Members Donna Brandt Landry and Alice McCarter voted to accept Scully, while chairman pro tem Michael Ronayne and members Stephen Powers and Edward F. O'Connell voted against Scully.

Mitsakos next recommended Maher. In the first round, Powers and Ronayne voted yes and O'Connell, Landry and McCarter voted no. But in the second round, Powers, Ronayne, O'Connell and Landry voted yes and McCarter voted no.

The field of 36 finalists had been narrowed to three in time for interviews by the committee earlier Tuesday evening.

Maher comes to Winchester from Mastricola Middle School in Merrimack, N.H., where he was housemaster and subject coordinator for two years.

Earlier in his career, he was a team leader for grade eight interdisciplinary teaching teams at R.A. Nock Middle School in Newburyport. Maher graduated from Northeastern University with a bachelor of arts in education and received his master's in education in secondary adminstration from Salem State College.

Also Tuesday, school commmittee members voted unanimously to fire Morris Merrifield, a tenured Winchester High School math teacher who taught at the high school for 20 years.

Mitsakos recommended the dismissal of Merrifield due to "exceesive absence and refusal to cooperate." Mitsakos said Merrifield took a sick leave March 13 and never returned to the school to finish the year.

In other action, due to the absence of member William Jervey, no attempt was made to elect a new chairman. Senior member Ronayne will remain chairman pro tem through the summer. The board will meet again Aug. 26.

Mitsakos thanked the parents of Andrew Cook, a junior at Winchester High School who died unexpectedly this year, for donating Spanish books to the school library.

The board heard an annual report about special education in Winchester from the director of special education and pupil services, Frank J. Bianco.

The board accepted a report from the school bus seat belt and safety advisory committee, organized in March. Of the nine recommendations made by the group, the committee accepted unanimously the two non-budgetary requests.

One will be to establish a Winchester schools safety advisory committee consisting of one parent from each school, one bus driver, Winchester police safety officer Kevin Mawn and a representative from the school administration.

The other request granted will designate the first week in September as "Bus Driver and School Traffic Guard Appreciation Week."

Andersen thanked

George Andersen, right, was honored Monday night for 13 years of work on the board of assessors. Frank Mahoney, left, chairman of the board, presented an engraved plate to Andersen and Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh read a proclamation from the state House of Representatives. Anderson served from 1973 to 1986. He said it had been "a pleasure to serve the town." (George Derringer photo)

POLICE LOG

Police investigate house break

Police are looking for intruder(s) who broke into a Washington Street home and stole $1,310 worth of items sometime Monday.

Police said entrance was gained by smashing the front window.

The break occurred between 8 a.m. and 5:45 p.m.

Arlington man faces drunk driving charges

Rodger A. Christiansen, 37, of 65 Lancaster Rd. in Arlington was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol and failure to keep right.

Officer Eric Benson observed a yellow Volvo coupe traveling west on Wildwood Street. Benson stopped the car on Johnson Road near Ridge Road.

Christiansen consented to a breathalyzer test. The car was towed from the scene.

He was later bailed and is scheduled to appear in the Fourth District Court in Woburn.

3 more arrested at the fells

At 3:16 p.m., Sunday two Medford residents and one Rowley resident were arrested for fishing in the reservoir, police said.

Nine bicycles and one moped were stolen last week from homes in Winchester.

Two of the bicycles and one moped were found, police said.

On June 21 at 4:40 p.m., a Spruce Street resident told police someone stole a $1,250 red bicycle from the front of his home June 17 or 18.

At 11:05 a.m., a Dean Road resident told police someone stole his $100 10-speed blue bicycle.

At 6:39 p.m. June 19, a Loring Avenue resident told police someone stole his $200 purple bicycle from his garage.

At 9:41 p.m., a Taft Drive resident told police someone stole a dirt bike and a $200 10-speed cream-colored bicycle.

At 5 p.m., a Church Street resident reported two stolen bicycles. Police said the bicycles were later found.

Also June 19 at 11:40 a.m., an Everell Road resident told police he parked his $600 moped at McCall Junior High School and within 15 minutes, someone stole it. It was later returned, police said. Police said the owner chose not to press charges.

At 9:32 a.m. June 23 a Swanton Street resident told police a $300 bicycle was stolen from his shed.

At 5:34 a.m. June 24, a Wedgemere Avenue resident called to report a $140 green-chrome colored 10-speed bicycle stolen from his garage.

Monday, June 23

At 10:31 a.m. a Forest Street resident told police someone stole an AM/FM stereo and 36 tapes from his car. The items were valued at over $500. No damage was done to his car. The incident happened between 9 p.m. June 21 and 9 a.m. June 22.

At 5:13 p.m., police reported no personal injuries after a car accident at the intersection of Highland Avenue and Fairmount Street. An Arlington resident, driving a 1983 Mercury, was making a left turn onto Fairmount Street while the other driver, a Winchester resident, was also trying to make the same turn. Police cited the Arlington resident for failure to use care and caution while making a turn.

At 5:21 p.m., police cited an Everett man for leaving the scene after causing property damage on Azalea Road. Police said the man was driving a station wagon at a high rate of speed when the car crushed a wheelbarrow and caused damage to lawns on the street. The report said damage was over $500.

At 7:20 p.m., a Woodside Road resident told police someone damaged her lawn with his car and left the scene. Police ran a check of the car, a 1973 blue Oldsmobile, and found the owner, a Woburn resident. Police cited him for leaving the scene of an accident after causing property damage.

At 7:45 p.m., police cited a Medford man for driving an unregistered, uninsured car and attaching plates. Police pulled a 1978 Chevrolet Malibu over on Symmes Road. The car was towed.

At 9:19 p.m., police arrested an Arlington man on two warrants.

Officer Eric Benson observed a blue Datsun 280Z traveling on Main Street with an expired inspection sticker. Benson stopped the car at the White Hen Pantry parking lot.

After running a warrant check, police found a default warrant from the Burlington police for non-suuport and a traffic warrant from Medford police, police said.

At 10:25 p.m., the man was taken into custody by Burlington police.

At 12:12 a.m., a Thornberry Road resident reported her gold and diamond necklace, valued at more than $1,000, stolen. She told police it was missing after a high school graduation party at her house for her daughter.

At 12:47 a.m., police responded to a car accident on Cambridge Street. A Woburn resident told police he was driving on Pond Street when he lost control of his car and it skidded in the rain. The car hit a fence rail on a driveway, causing less than $1,000 worth of damage, police said.

Sunday, June 22

At 7:50 p.m., a Cambridge Street resident told police someone stole her purse. Police said the woman was gardening in her yard when the intruder came into her home and stole her purse. Stolen were $80 in cash, credit cards and a checkbook.

Saturday, June 21

At 8:29 p.m., police cited a Marlborough resident for riding a moped without a license or a permit.

Friday, June 20

At 4:42 p.m., police reported a minor car accident at the intersection of Everett Avenue and Cambridge Street. A Medford resident was driving a 1965 Chrysler sedan when he turned onto Cambridge Street from Everett Avenue and collided with an Arlington resident driving a 1986 Chevrolet sedan. Damage to both cars was minimal, police said.

At 7:46 p.m., police arrested a Fairmount Street resident on an outstanding traffic warrant from Burlington police.

At 8:44 p.m., a 23-year-old Cross Street resident was arrested on an outstanding Winchester traffic warrant.

Sergeant Fred C. Cammon, right, of the Winchester police department receives a certificate of graduation from the New England Institute of Law Enforcement Management at Babson College in Wellesley from the institute's director, John F. Kreckler. Cammon completed the institute's three-week command training institute.

HEALTH

Cancer prevention is seminar topic

A special one-evening program about nutrition's relation to cancer prevention will be presented at the Choate Hospital in Woburn from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 25.

Elvira Johnson, nutrition coordinator for Choate-Symmes Health Services, will conduct the program. Johnson will discuss myths and factual data about foods, nutrients and ingredients which may help to prevent cancer.

Pre-registration is required. Please call 933-6700, ext. 377. A $5 charge will cover all materials and handouts.

Red Cross orientation set

The Eastern Middlesex Region of the American Red Cross will conduct a volunteer orientation program from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, July 9 at the Winchester office, 39 Church St.

The program will cover the history and structure of the Red Cross as well as volunteer opportunities.

Volunteers are essential to the planning and delivery of all Red Cross services. There are several positions open for drivers, blood-drive coordinators and workers, and the disaster relief team. Interested individuals are encouraged to attend the program or may call 665-1351 for more information.

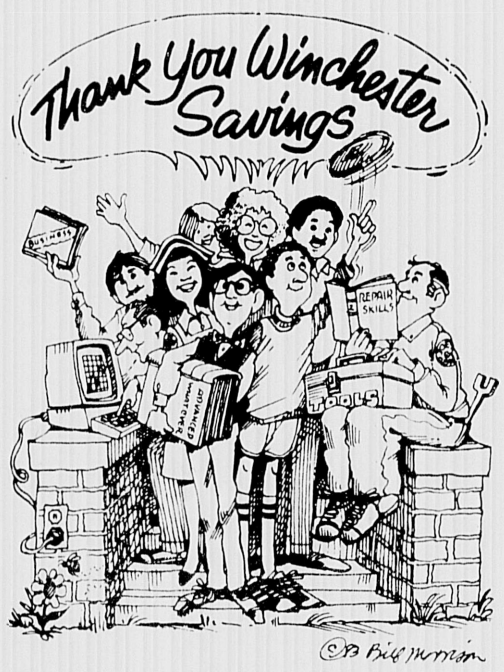

Ambrose School group elects

A luncheon Thursday, June 12, at the home of Bill and Marty Hood welcomed the new board of the Ambrose School Association for 1986-87 and said goodbye and thank you to last year's board.

The new board includes: President Alice Madio, First Vice President Susan Kemp, Second Vice President Ann Hoagland, Treasurer Debbie Hall and Secretary Janet Pallotta.

Ways and Means, Joanna Pywell, Karen Brown and Joan Wallwork; fifth grade fundraisers, Mary Fiorentino, Bernice Clemente, Gretchen Racek and Janet Senna; environment, Kathy Green; social, Pam Johansen, Connie Doherty, Jan Carrigan and Judy Myhra; room mothers, Ava Juwa and Kathy Interess; and nominating, Noel Bleier, Dee Pedulla and Mary Gillespie.

There's more than one way to finance an education!

With educational expenses on the rise and financial assistance more restrictive, families are looking for alternatives to pay for school. At Winchester Savings Bank, you'll find loans specifically for students . . . loans for parents of students . . . and even loans for students or parents who own homes. And in most cases, there are no restrictions on age, the type of school you're attending (or plan to attend), or if you're a half-time or full-time student.

HELP Loans: Administered by the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation, this federally sponsored program offers low-interest loans to undergraduate and graduate students. Parents are not required to co-sign, the first payment is deferred until after graduation and you have up to 10 years to repay.

IS BANK REALLY MORTGAGE HOLDER?

You borrowed the money for your home purchase from your local bank or savings and loan association. You make your monthly payment to the very same bank. Does this mean that your bank holds your mortgage? Not necessarily. In fact, the chances are better than 50-50 that they have sold it on the secondary mortgage market.

Two of the most dominant forces in the secondary market are Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Association) and Freddie Mac (Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.). They buy well-secured mortgages at a discount.

To the average homeowner, the shift in banking roles has little impact since the local lenders continue to issue and service the mortgages. However, the ability of local lenders to package and sell loans on a secondary mortgage market helps keep a continuous flow of money available to buyers at affordable rates. When adequate funding for home buying is available, everyone benefits.

No. 1 in Winchester because we care... It's more than just a business with us... it's you and the professional service we provide for you that is the cornerstone of our continued success... that's why more buyers and sellers select ANN BLACKHAM & CO. to be their Real Estate broker.

Casey hosts Sports Night

Friends of Paul Casey, candidate for representative of Winchester and Stoneham, gathered June 19 at the Knights of Columbus in Stoneham to meet professional athletes, enjoy refreshments, and to question the candidate.

Autographs were signed and photographs were taken of the stars and their fans as all listened to descriptions of everyday life in National Hockey League.

Sports enthusiast John Doherty, said "It's a great idea to get professional sports figures to mix with the public, especially since it's free!"

Other eagerly awaited the drawing for door prizes as Casey gave away calculators, radios and a pair of Red Sox tickets.

New hours set at archives

Zoning appeals board approves five requests for variances

The Winchester board of appeals approved five of 11 petitions last week after a public hearing.

The board approved:

•A petition submitted by Anthony F. and Carol A. Albiani of 85 High St. for a variance to erect a two-car garage and a driveway.

•A petition from Jama Realty Trust for a special permit/variance to erect a four-by-two-foot free-standing sign at 968 Main St.

•A petition from Dr. Ronald F. and Binnie Stein Backer for a special permit/variance to change a residential structure to a part business/part residential structure. Also, a special permit/variance to put an addition on over the garage at 9-11 Elmwood Ave./22 Park St.

The board refused:

•A petition submitted by Richard C. Penna for a special permit/variance to construct an open deck at 9 Sheffield West.

•A petition from Samuel A. and Kathleen Rotondi for a variance to maintain a tennis court at 54 and 58 Sunset Rd.

•A petition from Stanton Rome for a variance to construct a single-family dwelling that does not have the required lot width at 59 Highland Ave.

A petition from C.B. Westgate for a special permit variance to erect a free-standing sign at 63 Shore Rd. was withdrawn.

Valet parking to be a permanent town fixture

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Valet parking at Winchester restaurants will apparently be a permanent fixture.

Selectmen decided Monday that their experimental "pilot program" with valet parking for the Ristorante Lucia on Mount Vernon Street had been a success, although a few problems must still be solved.

Anna Frattaroli, owner of the restaurant, said 30 to 40 cars per night are parked by a contracted valet service but the restaurant has problems keeping its two assigned valet parking spaces open.

Selectmen, however, were more concerned about town insurance liability for the valet parking arrangement. Town counsel Doug Randall said until recently he would have been confident the town would be no more legally responsible for designating valet spaces than for designating bus stops or taxi stands.

"But the court is leaning over backward in favor of town liability for any activity the town engages in, including design of an intersection," Randall said, referring to a recent decision of the state supreme court.

"The town should named as co-insured because it is tangentially involved in the activity by designating spaces," Randall urged.

Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen and also an attorney, agreed. "When there's an accident, people look around for the deepest pocket," he said. The town usually has "the deepest pocket" or the most money, Welch said.

After more discussion, selectmen agreed to write rules and regulations in the next week to prohibit double parking while waiting for a valet, to create new signs designating the two parking spaces for valet parking between 6 and 10 p.m., and to require insurance for the town.

In the biggest change from the pilot program to the full program, police will be able to enforce rules allowing the spaces to be used only for the restaurant.

If the regulations are completed in time, the new program will become effective June 30.

In other business, selectmen:

• Appointed Allan J. Eyden, executive producer of "News 19" on cable TV, and incumbent member Madeleine Maxwell to the cable advisory committee. One vacancy still exists.

• Delayed making any appointments to the council on youth.

• Granted the request of Faith Fellowship Ministries to have an outdoor drama presentation on the Mill Pond green at 3 p.m. Sunday, July 6. The New Life Drama Co. of Cleveland, Tenn., will be on stage.

• Gave general support to the plan presented by town engineer Jake Ciarcia for parking and signage in Winchester center. The number of parking spaces will remain the same.

• Declined to demand that the North Suburban Emergency Medical Consortium remove a claim to "serve the community of Winchester" from its letterhead. Selectmen Mark Lombardi and Frank Sopper lost a 3-2 vote on the question.

• Accepted the resignations of Lois J. Dallow from the beautification design review committee and Kathleen N. Sweeney from the personnel board.

College beckons for 78% of Winchester graduates

More than three-quarters of the Winchester High School class of 1986 say they will attend a four-year college in the fall, according to a survey by the guidance department.

Of the 269 graduates, 210 or 78.1 percent will attend a four-year college. Another 13 will attend a two-year college with six going to specialized schools and three to Bridgton Academy, a preparatory school. Together, 86.3 percent of graduates plan to continue their education.

Only 24, or 8.9 percent, will take jobs while 10 are undecided. Three plan to enter the armed forces.

Although private colleges will attract 152 graduates and public colleges only 71, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will get the most Winchester graduates, 13.

Boston College will receive 10 Winchester graduates, Tufts University nine, the College of the Holy Cross eight, the University of Lowell eight and the University of Hampshire seven.

The University of Maine and Merrimack College will each receive six graduates and Northeastern University five.

Colleges each planning to welcome four Winchester High School graduates are Bentley College, Boston University, Middlesex Community College and Salem State College.

Three students each will go to Fitchburg State College, Harvard University, Lesley College, New York University, Rhode Island School of Design, St. Michael's College, Smith College, Suffolk University, Syracuse University, the University of Vermont and Wellesley College.

Schools chosen by at least one member of the class of 1986 include 98 four-year colleges, 10 two-year colleges, four specialized schools and one preparatory school.

French Honor Society inducts

Thirty-seven Winchester High School students were recently initiated into the local chapter of the Societe honoraire de francais, the French Honor Society.

In order to be eligible, a student must be enrolled in French III or higher, have an A- average in the last three semesters of French study, and have at least a B- average overall.

The initiation ceremony was preceded by a slide presentation about the 1986 French exchange program by seniors Linda Guild, Jennifer Tobiason, Julie Nevins and Alex Levin.

New members are Kathleen Ahearn, Vivek Ahya, Vanessa Biggs, Alethea Black, Melissa Black, Julienne Brackett, Jennifer Bussell, Katherine Carroll, Wing-Harn Chen, Christin Collins, Karen Cramer;

Amy Derry, Randall Hesse, Catherine Keane, John Keane, Melissa Letteri, Chester Liu, Mark Lundin, Kent McCord, Courtney McMillan, Caitlin Mullin;

Audrey Nacamuli, Katrina Nelsen, Elizabeth Papas, Phoebe Porter, Kristen Pywell, Tina Ravanis, Brian Riley;

Loreto Serrano, Kimberly Shubrooks, Elizabeth Small, Kimberly Small, Colin Stryker, Sara Tobiason, Jun Urano, Andrew Waltman and Jane Williamson.

The Societe honoraire de francais is organized by the American Association of Teachers of French. The WHS chapter is funded by the French Club and advised by teachers Alfred Duhamel and Leslie Hastings.

Alice Colan, left, and Winchester resident Russell Wyse participated in recent festivities marking the seventh anniversary of Country Club Heights, a retirement complex adjoining the New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn. Wyse was recently appointed director of the facility, which has 103 residents.

Selectmen plan closed-door talk with developer

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Selectmen want to negotiate in private with A & T Realty before agreeing to provide water for an 18-lot single-family subdivision south of Sussex Road, next to the town forest.

Town engineer Jake Ciarcia proposed Monday that water to the development be routed through a 12-inch main buried under a trail in the town forest to North Gateway.

The line would be built at the developer's expense and is estimated to cost around $70,000, Ciarcia said.

Ciarcia said the plan would both supply water for the development and "be beneficial to the town's present water distribution system in the area and assist in future development."

The same firm owns another parcel north of Sussex Road, also adjacent to the town forest.

But selectmen weren't sure the plan was good enough from the town's point of view. Wade Welch, chairman of the selectmen, pointed out that the conservation commission has proposed taking the lot by eminent domain and adding it to the town forest.

Welch said, however, that selectmen would be "receptive to the concept" of the new water main but "should face the developer in executive (closed) session."

Selectman Mark Lombardi said he would be willing to meet the developer in executive session although it would be "something new for this board."

"It's a new world," Welch said.

Selectman Frank Sopper also said he wanted to "negotiate" with the developer.

"I see support for the general idea," Ciarcia summarized.

Primary students will keep same report cards

dience he would have liked to have seen a more extensive sampling of parents in town. "I value a letter grade, definitely, for second and third graders, maybe not for first," said Powers.

Several parents voiced approval of a new system. One parent said, "The more you (a parent) can find out, the better off you are."

She said having a lengthy checklist would help her understand where her child needed help.

O'Connell asked Martignette to come back with her colleagues at the first August meeting with more information. Martignette said, "I feel my work is over this evening. I can't be back Aug. 26."

Following a half-hour break, Landry proposed a recommendation to field test the new grading system townwide with only first graders. The recommendation got three votes in favor with Powers, Landry and McCarter voting yes while O'Connell and Ronayne voted no. A two-thirds majority was needed for passage of the proposal, however.

In other action, superintendent Charles Mitsakos reported the fire that broke out at the high school last week caused an estimated $20,000 in damage. Mitsakos said repairs and replacements will be made by the end of August. The money will come out of the maintenance budget of the department of public works.

Mitsakos commended and congratulated:

•Martha Whitney, a sixth grade Ambrose School teacher, for her work with a future problem-solving program.

Saltmarsh promises faster communication with town

wanted more tests to be done on the soil first, which will cost $2,500 to $3,500," Saltmarsh said.

Town wary of new agency

Selectmen surprised Sally Kincaid, the town's representative to the advisory board of the North East Solid Waste Committee (NESWC), when they were suspicious of giving the group state-recognized status.

Kincaid said the committee of 22 towns, which uses the system to dispose of its solid waste through a waste-to-energy contractor in North Andover, has no official legal status.

A bill before the legislature would give NESWC an official status.

"I'd like to see the bill first," Welch said. "My concern is that it would make NESWC a body politic, like the turnpike authority, the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency and the Mass Housing Authority.

"You'd have a board of directors, who hire a staff," Welch said.

Welch said he was wary because if NESWC is given official status by the state, "we'd have to buy all subsequent amendments made by the legislature. We'd lose control and the state legislature would take it over."

"That's a problem," Welch said.

Kincaid said the NESWC legal counsel "never mentioned that, but said it was an act to protect the communities."

"But once you're a creature of the state, we (the 22 towns) won't have any control any more," Welch concluded.

Saying he could be wrong, Welch suggested Kincaid check again with the NESWC lawyer.

Assessors finishing job

several calls from local residents reporting their neighbor's business, Mahoney said.

"We don't care if it's a new bathroom or a new kitchen, but if it is an addition to a home, we want to know about it," Mahoney said.

Doherty said properties not personally assessed by the board will have little effect on the overall picture.

"It's a small percentage," he said. Of the town's 7,200 homes, 400 were not revaluated.

"We have to assume they're hiding something," Mahoney said. This means that when a home is assessed from the "curbside," assessors must assume the home has all the most modern, up-to-date facilities.

After the state visits Winchester to check the assessors' revaluation work, the town will wait another week to two weeks for the state's report. Mahoney and Doherty are optimistic their work's accuracy will be confirmed.

The next step, Doherty said, is making the information available to the public. The assessors will hold public hearings on all personal properties if owners wish to discuss or dispute their personal assessments.

EnKa Society conducts annual meeting

Special to The Star

The EnKa Society of Winchester recently held its annual meeting at the Church of the Epiphany. Preceeding the luncheon, a reception welcomed new provisionals to their first meeting.

To the applause of the entire membership, Lorraine Ingraham, recovering from a serious illness, offered a special grace of thanksgiving for Suzie Reno, herself, and the entire membership. Barbara Haddad and her committee prepared and served a lovely luncheon to more than 130 members.

Mary Ann Crockett, presiding over her final meeting as president, called upon committee chairmen for reports.

Highlights included a report from Phyllis Johansen, American Beauty's Fair chairman, acknowledging the tremendous success of this year's fair. All proceeds are used to support Winchester activities.

Jacki Heffernan, co-chairman of the EnKa Exchange, presented a check representing the profit for the year. This, too, is used to support activities in the community.

Jean Donahue, gifts chairman, announced the following organizations will receive gifts from the society: Support Committee for Battered Women, Winchester recreation department for summer concerts, Winchester A.B.C., Jenks Center Expansion Fund, Winchester Scholarship Foundation, and Winchester Youth Center. The gifts represent only those during June.

Mardi Crawford, civic chairman, reviewed the many activities that accounted for a busy and successful year, including Meals on Wheels, The Mount Vernon House, A.B.C. House, and the Visiting Nurses Association Christmas and Easter gift projects.

Social service chairman Anne Everett reviewed projects overseen by her committee, including the campership program, the Roxbury tutoring program, and special cases handled individually and privately.

Elaine Delaney, nominating chairman, read the proposed slate of officers for the 1986-1987 year. Elected to office were: President Carol Johnson, Vice President Gretchen Racek, Secretary Grace Dignam, Treasurer Betty Stebbins and Assistant Treasurer Norma Zettler.

Committee chairmen include: Street Fair, Joyce Cummings, chairman; Nancy Clarke and Sandy Thompson, co-chairmen;

Enka Exchange, Shirley Mulvaney, Dorothy Beattie, Christine Murphy and Martha Barry;

Civic, Mary LaGatta; social services, Florence Gosselin; meetings, Susan Taylor; membership, Gerry DeGeorge, chairman, Dorothy Dexter, Jacqulin Cvinar, Clare Keane, Lenore Frazier, Terry Seferian and Elaine Delaney;

Blood drive slated July 1

In the time it takes to think up a good excuse for not giving blood during the New England Memorial Hospital Red Cross blood drive Tuesday, July 1, a donation could already be on its way to helping save someone's life.

Giving blood might not be as exciting as saving a child from a burning building, but the results are the same. By taking a few minutes (about 30) to donate one pint of blood, donors can provide lifesaving components to one or several recipient patients. Blood donation is completely safe, and donors receive a mini-physical.

To do a good deed and donate blood, call 665-1740, ext. 319 and make an appointment or drop in between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. July 1 in the NEMH cafeteria.

Library's vertical file is the source of up-to-date material

"Library News" was designed to provide information on library programs and services, and to highlight resources which are less well known to partrons than our book lending service. This week's "hidden asset" is the vertical file, located in file cabinets in the Winchester Public Library's reference room.

"Vertical File" is a term used to describe a library's collection of pamphlets, brochures, newspaper clippings, dissertations and other nonbook material. Because of the odd size of many of these pieces, and the limited time for which they may be useful, they are not cataloged and shelved like books, but kept in file cabinets.

Usually this material is very up to date; often a library's most recent materials on current events are located in the vertical file.

The Winchester Library's vertical file also contains extensive information about Winchester and Winchester public schools.

The reference staff is updating, cleaning out and improving its vertical file by making sure materials in it are up to date and by adding new items to the collection.

In addition, subject cards for the vertical file are being added to the subject card catalog, to alert library users to the existence of the file and the materials it contains.

Sign-up for a special four week workshop in simple bookmaking for children entering grades 3-6 begins tomorrow, June 27, in the junior library. The workshop will be run by children's librarian Joan Barron on Tuesday, July 15, 22, and 29, and Aug. 5, from 2 to 3 p.m. Participants will make several blank books in different shapes, decorate the covers, and make marbled paper for end papers. Finished volumes will be suitable for use as diaries, autograph books, photo albums or personal notebooks.

Space in this workshop is limited, so sign up soon, or call the junior library at 721-7140 for more information.

Saturday night senior dances

Once a month on Saturday evenings, with the exception of July, seniors gather to enjoy moving to the music of Dick Brogna and his band. It is a social time with an atmosphere of jollity prevailing during the entire evening from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Ticket takers at the door are Dr. Leonor M. Rich, former president of the Winchester Seniors Association, Helen O. Dame, Chairman of the Winchester Council on Aging and Anne Feuss, who organized the dances and who serves as hostess.

Mini van changes pick up schedule

Every Friday, the mini van is available to pick up seniors at their homes or apartments for appointments in Winchester or for shopping in town.

Those wishing this service must call the Jenks Senior Center to make a reservation, giving the destination and time of pick-up and return. On Friday mornings, the driver will confirm the ride by telephone from the center.

There will be two monthly Burlington Mall trips, on the second and fourth Fridays, leaving the center by 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. for the mall, to pick up passengers along the way. The last return trip from the mall will be at 3 p.m.

The mini van capacity is limited to eight seniors. There is additional room for two wheel chairs. If space allows, escorts can accompany seniors on the van.

The van is through the courtesy of the Aberjona Nursing Center. The volunteer transportation committee at Jenks continues to offer transport services Monday through Friday, when arranged 24 hours in advance through the center.

TOWN HALL OPENINGS

Beautification committee

One member is sought for the town's beautification design review committee.

The committee assists the department of public works in developing procedures and reviews final design plans for implementation of beautification improvements to Winchester center.

Interested citizens should submit their qualifications, in writing, to the board of selectmen, 71 Mt. Vernon St., by July 3. They should also include a daytime telephone number.

Arts lottery council

Selectmen seek two members to serve on the arts lottery council for two-year terms until July 1, 1988.

The council establishes guidelines for the local and regional arts councils regarding the use of arts lottery funds and determines if applications comply with guidelines.

Interested people should submit their qualifications and a daytime telephone number, in writing, to the board of selectmen by July 8.

Fair housing committee

Selectmen seek two members to serve three-year terms on the fair housing committee until June 1, 1989.

The committee identifies potential barriers to the implementation of fair housing goals, ensures that the goals and objectives of the fair housing plan are attained and acts as the clearing house for information about agencies and services available for assistance in securing housing.

Interested people should submit a letter showing their qualifications and a daytime telephone number to the selectmen at 71 Mt. Vernon St. by July 8.

Procedures and penalties for first-time offenders

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

Winchester police have made 22 drunk driving arrests since Jan. 1, 1986. Three of those 22 resulted in convictions.

The overwhelming majority of the alleged drunk drivers arrested by Winchester police are first-time offenders.

Unlike second and third offenders who face convictions, first time offenders for the most part do not. But they do face "punishment," according to Winchester town prosecutor James R. Pierce.

No first offender is legally convicted because his guilty plea is continued for a one-year probation, but he faces punishment from the court, Pierce said.

When a person is arrested for the first time for drunk driving, he is required to go through Community Alcohol Safety Education (CASE), a 10-week $490 program. Other fees for first offenders include: $40 for a car towed; $12 a day for car storage; $15 bail Magistrate's fee; $1,800 for a defense attorney; a $100 minimum fee; $675 insurance assessment for three years; $150 for loss of safe driver credits for three years; reaching a total of $2,792. These are average costs for a first offender with a clean driving record.

To best explain the court process, there are set steps that judges and prosecutors follow.

When a person is arrested for operating under the influence for the first time, it is procedure to formally charge the person the following day at an arraignment. About two weeks later the defendant returns to court for an appearance, waiver and conference.

Pierce said the two-week lapse is to enable the defendant time to find a lawyer to represent him or her. Often, at the time of appearance and waiver, a first offender will admit to sufficient fact and await entrance into the CASE program.

No matter what, all first offenders effectively lose their driver's licenses for 30 days when they admit to "sufficient fact," Pierce said.

After admitting to sufficient fact a probation department steps in and reviews the defendant's background to decide whether he is a suitable candidate for the program.

According to Pierce, there are exceptions. He said the majority of first offenders enter the CASE program. Exceptions are when a first offender causes serious injury while driving drunk or when a first offender has a prior record. Pierce said the judge will not recommend the CASE program when he thinks it will not benefit the person.

After the probation department completes its report, it is submitted to the judge. The judge renders the final decision.

If a person registers a high reading on the breathalyzer test, he will likely face an additional eight weeks in the CASE program, on top of the required 10, Pierce said. This is known as a phase II candidate or the intensive after-care program.

The usual course of action for a second or third offender is as follows.

After the arrest and arraignment, the judge or the prosecutor has the right ask for pre-trial probation.

"Every time I have a second or third offender I ask for it (surrending the license)," said Pierce.

The next steps are similar. There is an appearance, waiver and conference followed by a trial or admission.

Pierce said by requesting the surrender of the alleged offender's license, the court is keeping the drunks off the road.

Pierce said after a period of six years, all prior offenses are not considered when the judge renders a charge on a defendant. However, a judge may use prior offenses, that occurred more than six years before, for sentencing purposes.

Victory for free speech

The First Amendment won one Monday at the town selectmen's meeting.

When Faith Fellowship Ministries asked to use town property for an overtly religious drama presentation, some officials were a bit nervous.

But Wade Welch, chairman of the board, rushed to the rescue.

"If the church wanted a parade permit or a carnival permit, we'd have to give it to them," Welch said. "And anyone can go on public land at the Boston Common and set up a soapbox to talk about anything."

Welch said the First Amendment to the Constitution, guaranteeing free speech, protected the church and the town. Saying she was "delighted to know the board's policy is so inclusive," selectman Judie Muggia moved for approval.

It was given by a unanimous vote. Score one victory for free speech, which would be a hollow phrase if everyone didn't enjoy it.

George Derringer

Secret deals not legal

Winchester selectmen want to negotiate with subdivision developers in closed-door "executive" sessions.

Without considering whether such activity would usurp the prerogatives of some other town board, secret negotiations have one other problem.

They're illegal.

According to the Massachusetts Open Meeting Law, public bodies and their subcommittees can meet in executive session for only seven reasons. They are:

(1) To discuss the reputation and character of an individual, provided the person discussed is invited to be present.

(2) To consider charges against a public official or employee, again only if the individual is invited to be present.

(3) To discuss or engage in collective bargaining strategy or actual litigation (not threatened litigation), but only if an open meeting would have a detrimental effect on the position of the governmental body.

(4) To discuss security personnel or devices. Personnel to be discussed must be invited.

(5) To investigate charges of criminal misconduct or to discuss the filing of criminal complaints.

(6) To consider purchase, exchange, lease or value of real property, but only if open discussion will have a detrimental effect on the negotiating position of the governmental body.

(7) To comply with the provisions of any general or special law or federal grant-in-aid requirements.

"To get a better deal from the developers" is not an allowed use for an executive session.

If those who say they believe in the town's zoning bylaws really mean what they say, they know the town should be concerned only with enforcing the bylaws, not with getting something from a private corporation in exchange for something else.

To engage in secret negotiations with A & T Realty, as selectmen suggested Monday night, would jeopardize both the credibility of selectmen and the developer's interests, since actions taken in illegal executive sessions can be and often are voided by the courts.

Common sense says the town is better served by open government than by secrecy, where citizens are left to blindly trust or mistrust their leaders.

George Derringer

Judges need guides

Superior Court judges in Massachusetts desperately need the governor's "presumptive sentencing" bill. So do the people of the Commonwealth.

Judges can shoulder a major portion of the blame for criminals — including drunk drivers — running around on the streets.

Gov. Michael Dukakis knows that people are outraged when three-time drunk drivers receive zero days in jail, when convicted child molesters are put on a year's probation, when even killers are given three years' parole and no time in jail.

The governor's bill would outline a narrow range of sentences for each particular crime. For conviction of each crime, the judge would be strongly encouraged to assign a sentence between two absolute limits — not less than one year nor more than three years, for example.

To give a sentence shorter or longer than the limits, the judge would have to give his or her reasons in writing.

Superior court judges don't like the bill. Last week, 47 of 61 judges declared themselves against it in testimony at the State House.

District attorneys, including Middlesex DA Scott Harshbarger, favor the bill. They say it would "ensure that people who commit serious crimes and affect the lives of other people will be punished certainly and uniformly."

The bill doesn't guarantee time in jail for any conviction; it just makes judges more accountable for their sentencing decisions.

It's about time.

And it's time legislators and judges stopped using "overcrowding" at the prisons as an excuse for lenient sentences. The governor said senators who vote against presumptive sentencing on that basis would be "abdicating their responsibility."

Absolutely.

Roaring '20's: dressed up like two sad kids

I was leafing through a book about the Roaring Twenties recently, and found myself pausing at a photo of Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald taken at the crest of their fame.

They look, in this old snapshot, like two sad children dressed up in party clothes. That's what they were, of course: twenty-two and twenty at the time of the photo; in their twenties still for most of the long decade of sin and hilarity that followed. They were children up past their bedtime, kids trying to swim in currents too strong for them, casualties, by the end of that era: Zelda fighting for the sanity she'd lose finally; Scott sinking ever deeper into alcohol's fierce hug.

The Twenties, it looks like, are not easy to survive, whether you're a country or an individual. The America of our century certainly didn't come through them unscathed; Scott and Zelda didn't. And, Lord knows, young people today don't.

In former times, by the mid-twenties a man was in the job he'd hold down for life; a woman was 2 or 3 kids into motherhood. Nowadays, it's different. Adulthood doesn't seem to begin, even, 'til a person turns 30. Kids in their twenties are exploring still: changing jobs, changing apartments, experimenting with various life-styles. The result, for some, is vertigo.

In other eras, historic events stepped in to define life for a young person. In the 30's there was the Depression to try to live your life around: Later, it was the War. The sense of tumult that those in their twenties today feel arises in part perhaps from the fact that we're a country at peace, with a healthy economy. There's time to experiement for young people today; there's room, in life, to get lost, at least for a while.

I took on adult life in a time of peace and prosperity. I too had a turbulent twenties.

I was luckier than some, though. I was matched with my life-partner by then, and thus grounded somewhat emotionally. More important, I had as my job the enviable task of working with high school kids as a teacher of English.

It was my privilege to take that whole body of learning down off the shelf of memory, dust it off, and have another look at it. I got to re-read King Lear each year, float down the Mississippi with Mark Twain, range through the woods at Walden with Henry Thoreau. I got to go through high school again, you might say, this time without the distraction of wondering who'd ask me to the Prom. I spent seven years in the presence of people just beginning to wonder what life was about. I wondered with them. We didn't find all the answers, but we thought up some real good questions. I've been chewing on some of them ever since.

And I still keep in touch with those kids. They're 30 now, most of them, survivors themselves of the Difficult Decade. One works as a carpenter in the big city. Another earns her living as a physician. A third makes movies, and a fourth drives a cab. One young woman quit high school, joined the Army and moved to California. Now she's earning her Master's in Biochemistry. Most have not married. All seem happy. And none, with the exception of the doctor, feels he's doing now what he'll do for the rest of his life.

Last week I heard from a student I'd seen twice in the decade since he sat in my class. He called from a Drug Rehabilitation Hospital in another state. He called with bandaged wrists.

In the course of our conversation, we asked the big questions again. "I'm 28 years old," he said. "When will I know how to live?"

What could I say to him? That life is difficult? That lots of people get very turned around? That it takes years of study to find out who you are? I did say these things. I don't know if they helped.

I think of him now, and all the young men and women struggling to find direction in today's world. These are rough seas to plot a true course in. Those just setting sail in their frail small ships need all the support we can give them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CSA offers group's thanks

TO THE EDITOR:

The Community School Assocation thanks the Winchester school system's director of music, Lynn Rahmier, and the entire music department staff for their considerable efforts on behalf of the Community School Association and the children of Winchester in preparing for a successful concert May 15, at Winchester High School.

Proceeds benefited the Community School Association's scholarship fund. The recipients of this years' scholarships are Stephen Todisco in art and Katherine Mortenson in music.

The Community School Association also thanks art direcotr Tom Tracey and his staff, who worked very hard this year on behalf of the Community School Association to organize the first art show Town Day at the Lincoln School and the Winchester Town Hall.

Many pleased parents and Winchester residents viewed art works of students in grades kindergarten through 12.

Our grateful thanks to all. The Community School Association is looking forward to another successful program next year.

Sincerely,
The Community School
Loretta Verrechia, secretary

Drunk drivers should get help

TO THE EDITOR:

I think drunk driver's licenses should be suspended until they have gone to get help, or go to a course to help them stop drinking.

When they can prove they have stopped drinking and driving, their licenses should be returned.

I also think we should take into mind that they could serve however many hours working for the DPW.

Wilson professes Franciscan vows

Franciscan friar Brother Anthony Wilson, 34, professed final vows in the order during a June 21 mass in St. Francis of Assisi Church, New York City.

Currently serving as deacon at Holy Cross Church in the Bronx, Wilson was born in Winchester and graduated from Xavier High School in Concord in 1969.

After working as an electronic and computer technician in the Boston area, he entered the Franciscan order at St. Francis Friary in Brookline in 1980.

Wilson professed simple vows as a Franciscan in 1981 and received his bachelor of science degree from St. Francis College in Brooklyn in 1982. He began studies at the Washington Theological Union in Silver Spring, Md., while residing at Holy Name College there.

He graduated with a master of divinity degree on May 9, 1986. His ministerial activity has included hospital ministry, working with Spanish-speaking people in the Washington, D.C., area, and parish work in New Jersey.

writing cute letters. I'm not pleased with this approach."

Welch said he would continue to care about zoning issues. "Since the people are concerned about zoning, I'm going to be concerned with zoning," he said firmly. "But I don't want to be back-handed" through letters.

Discussion ended on a lighter note. "I could send them a videotape," Sopper offered, referring to his previous controversial practice of showing videotapes to document alleged problems.

As a result of previous discussion, selectmen have agreed to conduct a public forum to see if townspeople favor "strict enforcement" of zoning bylaws. Monday, they agreed to schedule the forum sometime in September.

Lombardi asked June 2 to conduct the forum to see if residents are happy with the current practice or if they want stricter enforcement of rules and a crackdown on "bootleg apartments," generally located in single-family zones.

Winchester is contributing $10,000 and the state $20,000. There are no funds involved from Arlington and Medford. "It's a one-time funding and there must be a regular effort afterward by the town," Maurer said.

Regarding the future, Maurer said, "Financial provisions for fiscal 1987 will have to be made. Nothing has been done so far."

The conservation Committee decided to leave the hearing open until 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 8, pending receipt of the state's specifications.

Kevin Chandler: A Perfect Face For Aging America

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Kevin Chandler, son of Winchester, has the perfect face for a slightly aging America.

A professional model, Chandler is among the new breed of models at age 36, now about America's average age. In the late 1960s, the average age was 25.

"Modeling isn't as glamorous as you might think," Chandler says. "It can be very boring. Sometimes I have to read while someone fusses with my hair."

Even now, Chandler pursues other interests and works as a Congressional consultant for several companies.

He spends at least a couple of days each month in Washington, although he lives in New York.

Unlike most models, Chandler never intended to become one.

After graduating from Winchester High School, he went to Holy Cross and majored in government, economics, French and Italian. Four years later, he enrolled at Georgetown University as a graduate student of "international studies."

Chandler was well on his way to the diplomatic corps but he was new in Washington and needed a job.

"I started pounding the pavement," Chandler says. "I happened to be in the right place at the right time."

At the age of 21 and in Washington for only a month, Chandler became a legislative aide to House Speaker Tip O'Neill.

He only stayed 10 months. AVCO Corporation, a conglomerate whose best-known company is the Aerospace Technologies plant in Wilmington that builds MX missiles, brought a tax problem to O'Neill's office and liked Chandler's resolution.

AVCO offered Chandler a job as a lobbyist, officially "Director of Congressional Relations," and Chandler stayed there 10 years.

The company was taken over by Textron, however, and Chandler took severance pay with full benefits and left.

"I had been pretty independent. My appetite had been whetted for owning my own business," Chandler says.

Modeling is Chandler's business now. Despite being represented by Wilhelmina, with Ford one of the two top modeling agencies, Chandler must do a lot of his own promotion.

A longtime rower, Chandler was rowing with friends on the Potomac River one day when a crew came down to shoot magazine ads for Head Sports, which makes everything from tennis rackets to outdoor wear popular with "yuppies."

"The company needed people who knew how to row. They couldn't just send any model out on the river if he didn't know how to row," Chandler says.

Chandler got the job.

"First I signed with the Ford Modeling Agency, which had just opened a Washington office," Chandler says. "But the agencies really just tease new models; you have to really want and work for assignments."

Modeling is a "fiercely competitive business," Chandler says.

"Every week Wilhelmina has an open day when 300 to 400 people come down, just wanting to be seen," he says. "Most weeks, nobody is chosen."

When a newcomer does seem interesting, agencies require him or her to put together a portfolio. "You have to do that at your own expense and you incur a lot of cost," Chandler says.

The graduate of Mystic and McCall Schools was not an overnight success. "I had a tough year or so before I could count on $2,000 a day jobs," he says.

While still at AVCO, Chandler served on the transition team for the newly-elected Ronald Reagan in 1980.

"AVCO took an active part in the Reagan campaign and was asked to send a representative to the transition team," Chandler said. "Most of the corporate supporters sent a representative."

How does working for Tip O'Neill, one of the president's favorite political targets, fit with working for defense contractors and serving on the Reagan team?

"Yes, Tip and the president are often on the opposite sides of the fence," Chandler says. "But a lobbyist in Washington has to play every side of the fence for all it's worth."

Chandler says he "had difficulties" representing the company that makes the B-1 bomber and the MX missile.

"After 10 years, it was the perfect time for me to get out," Chandler says.

In little more than three years as a model, Chandler has appeared in print advertising for Saks Fifth Avenue, Ralph Lauren, Lanvin and Courreges.

He's been in TV commercials for both the Marriott and Hyatt hotel chains, Macy's and the Washington area department store Woodward & Lothrop.

"I'm doing well because I know how to handle clients. It helps to work with them on a shoot," Chandler says.

What does a model actually DO for a living.

"It's not posing; that's a bad word for it," Chandler says. "What I do is really more like acting, and I take a lot of acting lessons."

Like an actor, Chandler must assume a particular character for each role. And he must stay "in character," he says.

"Girls 15 or 16 years old aren't real models," Chandler says. "They're just an interesting face but they can be only one kind of model."

In other words, they can play only one role.

How did Chandler ever break into the business at 33? "It's very unusual," he says. "At that age, most people aren't willing to put up with nonsense you have to.

"But I did and I guess a lot of people were looking for an older, mature face with a fresh look."

Ambrose School awards promotion certificates

Certificate of promotion were presented to 45 Ambrose School sixth graders by principal George Flynn and their teachers in an afternoon ceremony Wednesday, June 18.

Proud parents, teachers and friends enjoyed seeing the girls in summer dresses and the boys in slacks and sport coats as each received congratulations and a certificate.

Presidential Academic Fitness Awards, including recognition pins and framed certificates signed by President Ronald Reagan and U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett, were presented to Eric Fertman, Laura Johnson, David Murphy, Joanna Pasciuto and Sydney Sawyer. Flynn read a congratulatory letter from Reagan.

Twelve students chose to address the group with speeches which highlighted their memories of their Ambrose years. Karen McCall, 1986 Winchester High School graduate, received the Ambrose Scholarship Award and encouraged students to make the most of their school days and the opportunities they have.

The featured guest speaker of the afternoon was Terry Marotta, Winchester Star columnist and finalist in NASA's Journalist in Space program. Marotta spoke to the students about the appreciation of differences within themselves and each other.

The following sixth graders received certificates:

Christopher Almquist, Michael Arian, Emily Banks, David Bauman, Meredith Caci, Jeremy Carroll, Mark Cloherty, Sean Colson, William Cunningham;

Leah O'Donnell, Sarah O'Grady, Alison Otis, Joanna Pasciuto, Jessica Power, Erin Pullen, Anthony Raymond, Maura Riley, Jessica Romer, Jennifer Rubenstein;

HEALTH

Hospital sponsors TV health program

Winchester Cable Television subscribers are encouraged to focus on health with Winchester Hospital and WNCH-TV, Channel 19, through a series of health-related news spots which recently debuted as part of WNCH's "News 19" show.

The segments, a cooperative effort of Winchester Hospital and Continental Cable, will help viewers make the right decisions in today's health care system, show them recent developments in medical technology, and introduce them to the people who make it all work, according to Winchester Hospital president Eugene Loubier.

"Health care can seem like alphabet soup today," Loubier said, "with HMOs, PPOs, HCHPs — so many options with so much to know before making a choice."

Loubier said Winchester Hospital "still delivers personalized care in a familiar community setting, just as it has for nearly 75 years." He urged viewers to use Winchester Hospital not only when medical attention is needed, but as a resource for information and physician referrals.

Choosing a health care provider and using emergency services are only the first of many topics. Future segments will look at day surgery, maternity care and the special care nursery and other health care programs designed specifically for women.

Another key goal of "Focus on Health" will be to "demystify" some of the high technology medical equipment at Winchester Hospital. Upcoming episodes about the CT scanner and the bone densitometer, a unique tool for early detection of osteoporosis or bone loss caused by calcium deficiency and other causes, will be structured to answer questions about their use in diagnosing and preventing disease.

Also in the works is a special program about cancer that will allow viewers to telephone the studio with questions. The "Cancer Today" program will feature discussion with oncology specialists. "Cancer Today" will be broadcast at 7 p.m. July 23.

Colonial Travel Can Customize A Vacation To Fit Your Wants And Needs.

Whether your vacation takes you across the state, across the country, or around the world, whether your needs are more toward the economy vacation, or money is no object, or whether you prefer the excitement of the fast lane or serenity of seclusion, Colonial Travel, located at 564 Main st., Winchester, can customize a vacation to fit your wants and needs.

With more than 27 years of experience as travel agents between them, Colonial's co-owners Elaine Mahoney and Tony Sampson have tailored vacations for thousands of satisfied clients to all corners of the globe.

"What many people don't realize is travel agents don't charge a service charge," explains Elaine. "Our fee does not affect the price our client pays."

Instead, booking through a travel agent is not only easier, but it can also be cheaper. With access to plane fares, hotel rates, and car rental fees at their fingertips on computer, Tony and Elaine can assure you the best rates and can book a reservation simultaneously.

In addition to helping you get the best rates, Colonial can make your vacation more pleasant by meeting your needs with corresponding accommodations ranging from standard to deluxe or superior.

"Some people prefer to travel alone, while others want the security of a group," explains Elaine. "Some travelers want a more free schedule while others prefer a guided tour. In any case we will make the arrangements to fit their needs."

Some other benefits of booking through travel agents include their knowledge of special discounts, their awareness of the atmosphere, weather conditions and economic state of the place you are traveling to, and their ability to assist you in planning and getting ready for your vacation.

Tony and Elaine can assist you with passport needs, rate of exchange, and will make you aware of any other necessary information to make your trip easier and more enjoyable.

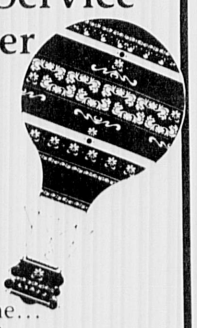

Has Colonial Travel seen any effects on European bookings as a result of the situation abroad?

"Bookings to Europe are down," explains Elaine, "but that has led to a noticeable increase in bookings to places like Hawaii, the Carribean, Bermuda, cruises, and U.S. destinations."

In any event people are vacationing and the smart ones are letting Colonial Travel find them the vacation they desire at the price they want to pay.

To have Colonial Travel arrange and fit your vacation to your needs, call Tony or Elaine at 729-4700 or visit their office at 564 Main st., Winchester. They are open Monday through Friday 9-5, Thursdays till 8 p.m., 11-3 on Saturdays, and both Tony and Elaine are available any other time by appointment.

STAR SPORTS

Dennis Clarke, third from left, son of Nancy and Dick Clarke of Winchester, receives a scholar-athlete award from the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame. The presentation was made by Ron Burton, former All-American at Northwestern and halfback for the Boston Patriots, with Clarke's parents in attendance. Clarke graduated this month from Winchester High School and plans to attend Harvard University in the fall. He recently played in the Shriners' football classic and was a Globe All-Scholastic and Middlesex League all-star selection.

Svahn earns track letter

Averil Svahn, a senior from Winchester, has earned a varsity letter this spring with the Denison Big Red women's track team.

A 1982 graduate of Winchester High School, Svahn expects to receive her bachelor's degree in economics in May 1986.

Soccer club sponsors camp

The Winchester Soccer Club will sponsor a soccer camp the week of July 14 at Manchester Field for players age six to 18.

Certified British soccer coaches will instruct campers for three hours a day, helping them improve individual skills and team play techniques.

Glenn Dorsam, right, of Winchester High School was named to the 1986 Boston Globe all-scholastic track team and given his award by Larry Ames, left, the Globe's high school sports editor. Dorsam won the Eastern Mass Class B title in the long jump with a leap of 21'10¾''. He also placed second in the state coaches' meet and had a season's best at 22'1½''.

McDonald given police promotion

James F. McDonald of Burlington has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant in the Massachusetts State Police.

A 1961 graduate of Winchester High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McDonald of Winchester and the husband of Sheila McDade McDonald, formerly of Watertown. The couple has two children, James F. Jr., 13, and Kimberly A., 11.

McDonald earned an associate's degree in law enforcement from Middlesex Community College in 1970.

Presently assigned as Framingham shift commander, McDonald enlisted in the state police in 1963 and has been assigned to troops in Middleboro, Framingham, Logan Airport and Holden before receiving his current assignment.

McDonald was commended in 1980 for his part in the apprehension of three armed suspects in a handbag theft in Acton during July 1979.

Cook, Ellis earn Wellesley degrees

Allison Hilary Cook of Grove Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael C. Cook, received a bachelor of arts degree in Spanish.

She graduated a Durant Scholar, magna cum laude, and was elected to membership in Sigma Delta Pi. The Spanish department awarded her honors for her thesis and she also received the Justina Ruiz-de-Conde Prize.

Katherine Therese Ellis of Dartmouth Street, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Ellis, received a bachelor of arts degree in political science.

Wellesley alumna Diane Sawyer, CBS news correspondent and co-anchor of the TV show "60 Minutes," was the main speaker.

Soccer team marches in the state tourney

Goalie Andy Shao held four teams scoreless and scored one goal himself in an easy Winchester victory.

The Winchester crew started with an 8-0 shutout over Windham, Maine, as Shao scored his first and probably only goal of the season.

Coach Theo Devrieze's squad blanked a Nashua, N.H., team 3-0 in its second appearance, easily downing the team that had won the cup for its age group in Granite State competition.

Vandy French scored Winchester's first goal in the first half. Only 20 seconds into the second half, Ken Fowler took a cross from Mike McGeehan and put the ball in the net for a 2-0 Winchester lead. French added an insurance goal later in the second stanza.

Winchester's most precarious victory was a 1-0 triumph over Weymouth in the third round. Winchester needed only a tie to reach the finals but McGeehan and French combined to give the eventual champs a victory.

In the final game Monday, Winchester topped Granby, Conn., 3-0. "They gave us good competition for about 15 minutes," Devrieze said. "But then it was all us."

Jason MacConkey put Winchester ahead 1-0 and French headed a corner kick from Paul Erbafma into the net for a 2-0 Winchester bulge at halftime.

Winchester will compete in the Massachusetts championships this weekend at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

"It looks like Winchester High School is going to continue to have a fine team for the next two or three years," Devrieze said.

Seniors commend children for efforts

Participants in the Town Day activities at the Jenks Senior Center involved children from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades who demonstrated their spelling skills. Students in the Junior High and High Schools wrote essays on the subject, "Why The Jenks Senior Center Is Important To The Community." Young people deserve commendations in both of these categories.

Trophies were given for the spelling bee to: Grade four, Emily DeDowell, Lynch Elementary School; Grade five, co-winners; Lisa Mills, Ambrose School and Takahito Higashigama, Muraco School.

The 27 contestants from several schools in town are to be congratulated on their willingness to compete in this age-old test of acuity applied to auditory responses.

The winners are given praises by the Jenks Senior Center committee for contributing to the success of the Town Day observance at the center. Pauline McHuigan coordinated the activities.

Essay awards were given to winners at the Junior High and High School levels in the form of $100 bonds. With the cooperation of the high school and junior high school faculties in th English department, the most effective essays were submitted to the judges at the center.

Because of the high quality of the thoughts expressed by students, it was difficult to make final decisions concerning winners.

The following young people won in the contest: high school, Pattie Hollaran (senior), first prize; honorable mention was given to Randolph Hesse, high school student; Grade seven, honorable mention was given to Elliott Breuer; and Grade eight, Amy McGrath, first prize.

Haggerty completes Air Force class

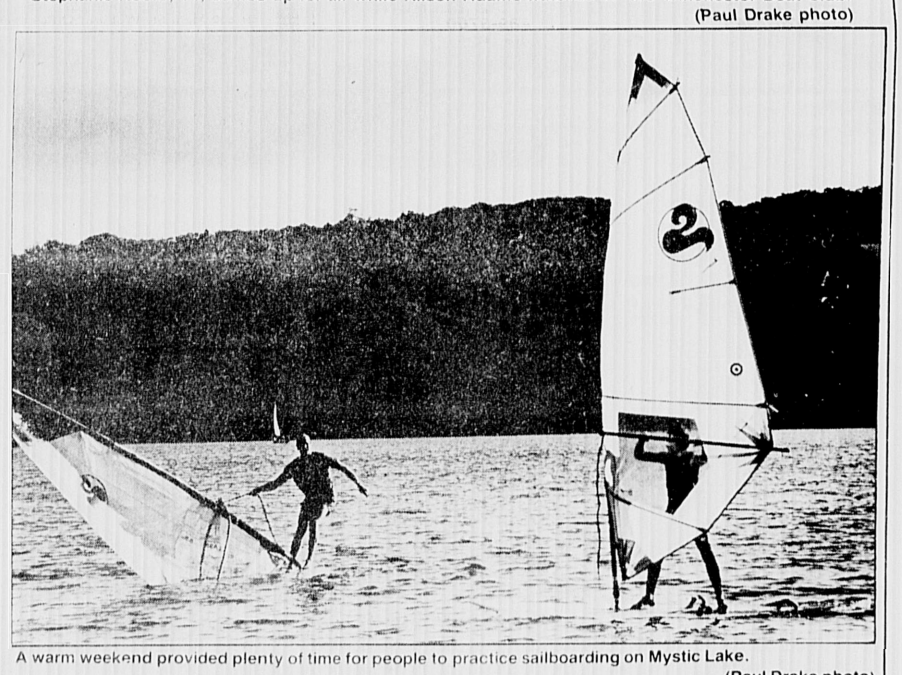

Airman Richard P. Haggerty, son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Haggerty of 28 Glenwood Ave., has graduated from the U.S. Air Force inventory management course at Lowry Air Force Base in Colorado.

During the course, students were taught property accounting, customer support, stock control and equipment management for a base supply system. They also were taught to inventory supplies using electronic data processing machines. The graduates earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

INVESTING IN REAL ESTATE

Many people who play the real estate investment game are doing very well. The potential for income, appreciation and tax savings makes investment property especially attractive.

Before you dive in, it's important to get professional advice. You may want to start with a personal financial advisor who can help you set your investment goals. Then your Realtor can help you select a competetively-priced property that meets these goals; and he can answer questions about why a particular property is a solid investment. What features would make it easy to rent? What kind of maintenance expenses are you likely to incur? What will your cash flow be, and how will the tax savings affect the bottom line? Is it in a neighborhood where property values are likely to increase or decrease, or will the prices remain relatively stable?

At Bixby & Porter Company Realtors, our professional Realtors are especially knowledgeable about investment property. Please give us a call at 729-7000 or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson St., Winchester.

What To Do

Festive 4th!

Boston's promises

For those not traveling to New York this July 4th weekend for the rededication of the Statue of Liberty, there is plenty of celebrating to do right here in Boston.

The Boston Harborfest offers 130 events to choose from in its fifth and biggest year of Independence Day celebrating.

The five-day festival, running from July 2 to 6, offers something for everyone — from clambakes and a chowderfest to parades, fireworks, concerts, boat cruises, and children's events, says Cynthia Fuguet, assistant to the president for Harborfest.

Most of the events take place in a concentrated area along the Boston waterfront, from the Charlestown Navy Yard to the New England Aquarium, including Faneuil Hall and State Street.

"If you're running to different events with children, it's not too long of a haul. Things are easy to get to," says Fuguet.

Traditional favorites mark the Harborfest calendar.

The Chowderfest, July 5, features New England clam chowder prepared by the chefs of 12 area restaurants. It's held on the Harbor Terrace behind the Aquarium.

For $5 ($2.50 for children), participants may sample all the chowder they want, return later in the day for more, and help judge which restaurant deserves the title of "Best Chowder in Boston."

Also popular is the traditional turnaround cruise of the USS Constitution on July 4 — an annual event necessary to maintain the ship's commission with the Navy and status as the oldest commissioned warship in the world.

Harborfest participants wishing to view the turnaround in style may purchase tickets ($28 for adults, $20 for children under 12) to the Dixieland Brunch from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Aquarium's Harbor Terrace.

They can enjoy a summer brunch buffet, the music of the Winiker Dixieland Band, and a commanding view of the Constitution and her escort of antique and classic ships.

The warship is also towed to Castle Island, where she offers a 21-gun salute to the nation.

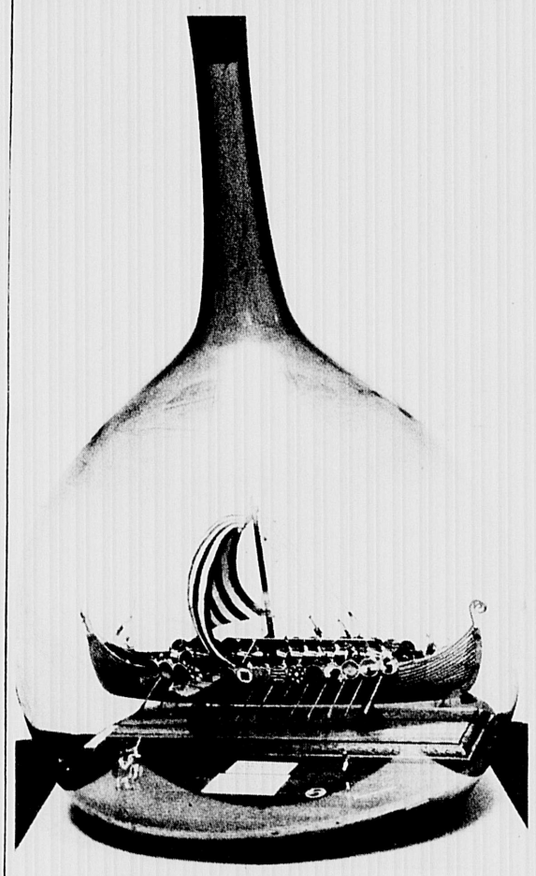

Always drawing a good crowd are concerts offered throughout Harborfest by navy, air force, and army bands.

The Northeast Navy Show Band, with its big band sound, returns this year for a few performances, including the Harborfest opening ceremonies at Faneuil Hall Marketplace noon on July 2.

Another musical suggestion: bring a picnic dinner and grab a spot on the grass at the Charlestown Navy Yard to enjoy a free military concert by the Pees Air Force Band, 8:25 p.m., before the Harborfest fireworks begin.

Along with traditional favorites, new Harborfest events, such as the Great Harbor Hunt, offer variety for Harborfest-goers from previous years.

New England Dodge Dealers for the Harbor Hunt ($5 in advance, $7 on July 6, the day of the event), teams of five members, including at least two children under 12, can compete in a huge trivia quiz/treasure hunt on Boston information.

Teams receive questions, clues, and a map at noon, Museum Wharf. They then must find answers at various monuments and landmarks.

"For the sort of person who enjoys the Boston Freedom Trail, this will be just as exciting, just as enjoyable, and just as educational, but in a fun way," says Fuguet.

A highlight of this year's Harborfest is an opportunity for Boston to celebrate with New York in the historic lighting and rededication of the Statue of Liberty.

Viewers can come to City Hall Plaza on July 3 at 9 p.m. to witness the unveiling of the Statue on a giant screen TV.

Although the televising of the Statue of Liberty focuses on New York City, the Harborfest is otherwise purely a celebration of Boston.

"It's much more than just an Independence Day celebration; it's a celebration of Boston's historic monuments and Boston's role in shaping the history of the United States...what makes it really neat is that it is so Boston-oriented, so Bostonian. It uses all of Boston's resources," says Fuguet.

"The best thing about Harborfest is that even though it has 130 events and attracts thousands of both in-state residents and tourists from other places — even across the Atlantic,...there is nothing slick or commercial about it. To me, even the largest events feel like festival events, summer fairs," she says.

If the prospect of a million people trying to take advantage of Harborfest activities is a deterrent to the would-be visitor, Fuguet says that the presence of 130 different events does much to disperse crowds.

In addition, many events, such as helicopter tours, Coast Guard drill ceremonies, seal talks at the Aquarium, walking tours, and visits to the Harbor Islands, are offered on a continuing basis, keeping lines short.

"It's easy to get in and out in terms of tickets. You don't have to reserve six months in advance...It's not an unpleasant, hot, sticky experience fighting the crowds," says Fuguet.

One way to minimize crowding further is to leave cars outside the city. Since Harborfest activities are so close together, visitors can walk from one place to another with ease or use buses and subways.

Harborfest is organized to be a family event. Specifically for youngsters are tours and picnics on the Harbor Islands as well as a sea kayaking workshop.

Many of the Harborfest offerings are highly visual and contain much pageantry, which appeals to children, says Fuguet. The fact that most events occur outdoors is less confining for children as well.

"Families don't feel like they've been dragging their kids around, being bored, hassled and too hot. They've found that the kids have been interested," says Fuguet.

Fans of the Boston Pops will not be denied the traditional concert and fireworks on the Esplanade because of the Pops' participation in the Statue of Liberty celebration. The orchestra returns from New York City to perform on the Esplanade July 5, 8 to 10 p.m.

Harborfest began in 1982.

"It was conceived for a variety of reasons," says Fuguet. "Boston — ever since 1976, the bicentennial celebration — had seemed to become more aware of its role in the independence of America. It began to really sit up and take notice of its historical buildings and monuments.

"Boston needs a Fourth of July celebration. We didn't want everybody running out of Boston and going everywhere else and never enjoying their own city for what it could offer."

Today, Harborfest represents a year-round organizational effort. A nonprofit organization, Harborfest relies on corporate and private donations and the support of volunteers.

Any tips for planning to participate in Harborfest?

Aside from leaving the car outside the city, visitors might bring a good map of Boston and wear comfortable clothing.

Be aware that two events require advance reservations — the Dixieland Brunch and Lobsters, Lobsters, Lobsters! ($25 per person), where crustacean connoisseurs can visit a lobster pound, talk to a lobsterman, and order lobster for lunch.

For more information, call Boston Harborfest at 227-1528.

Actors dazzle in Pantomime on BSC stage

REVIEW

Suppose the black race had inherited the earth, that they had enjoyed 300 years of social and technical advancement and success, and the white race, the cannibals of Africa, had been subsequently enslaved by the blacks; what would be the reaction of whites today?

This is the intriguing question West Indian playwright Derek Walcott poses in his political satire, Pantomime, on the boards through June 29 at the new 75-seat downstairs theatre of the Boston Shakespeare Company, 52 St. Botolph St.

That the evening proves rewarding is due to the author's dialogue, often lyrical and richly textured; the sensitive direction of Kay Matschullat; and the scintillating performances of two most adroit actors, Terry Alexander and Chuck Stransky.

However, as Wolcott strives to unify the black world and the white world, the Caribbean culture and English literature, by verbally balancing creole songs and island fables while dealing explicitly with racial tensions and violence, Pantomime occasionally becomes sluggish with soapbox preachiness, contrived speeches, and an uneven flow and build-up to the major confrontation.

Alexander, a black, and Stransky, a white, represent a microcosm as they play out the story of the Robinson Crusoe saga and explore the master-servant relationship between the white man and the black man.

The play is set in the gazebo of a ramshackle guest house in the tropical paradise of Tobago in the West Indies.

Harry Trewe (Stransky), is a British subject who turned his back on the acting profession and sought refuge as a hotel owner in a peaceful island retreat. His employee Jackson Phillip (Alexander), is a Trinidad citizen haunted by the island's colonial past and his ambivalent love for the island. They engage in a series of acting games as they try to conjure up entertainment for the guests when the hotel opens six days hence.

Jackson and Harry play role reversals, with circumspect Jackson insisting upon protocol and a code of ethics. As they debate the merits of classical acting versus creole acting, and Harry's determination to do a political satire on hotels and manners, they undercut each other. Jackson notes that Friday "followed Crusoe for a hundred years, like a shadow, his pantomime" and emphasizes "the shadow's hopeless obedience . . . until servant dominates master."

It is not until Harry suggests a black Robinson Crusoe and a white Friday, however, that things heat up. During Jackson's improvisation, an overturned table becomes a boat and, turned upright, becomes a hut. As Jackson asserts himself and relegates Harry to the roles of a hunge white bird, a goat to be killed for clothing, and finally a white naked cannibal, Harry becomes annoyed and wants to forget about the whole thing.

Weaving in and out of the acting games and ingrown prejudices, Harry confesses that he is basically a music hall performer, not really good enough for classical acting. He fled England after his son's death and his ex-wife's status as a star on the legitimate stage. Jackson has fathered three children, but never recalls being married. In the end, Jackson, wonderfully animated, reflects, "An angel enters a house and leaves no imprint of a shadow on the wall."

'Pirates' drop anchor at ASF

The Pirates of Penzance has cruised into the American Stage Festival in Milford, N.H., and weighs anchor through June 28 with an upbeat, bouncy version of the classic Gilbert & Sullivan musical that marks the opening of the 1986 summer season.

This version, a huge Broadway success, is a magical evening of theatre with a zany pirate crew whose swash never buckles. The wacky tale revolves around the young, dull-witted Frederic, who is accidentally apprenticed to a band of pirates because his hard-of-hearing nanny thought his father said "pirates" instead of "pilots." The error is further compounded when Frederic reaches his 21st birthday, only to discover his servitude is not at an end. Born on the 29th of February in a leap year, he has 63 years to go to complete his obligation!

The lovely maiden Mabel is dismayed, but Frederic's able-brained nanny saves the day with a last-minute revelation and the tale ends happily for the young lovers, the pirate crew, and for the audience as well.

ASF Artistic Director Larry Carpenter has transformed Pirates into a madcap romp for all ages. "Gilbert & Sullivan took a popular entertainment form — in this case vaudeville — and hung it on a story," Carpenter pointed out. "This was a great novelty in those days and they were, literally, the toast of their world."

Tickets are available at the box office or by calling ASF at (603) 673-7515. Credit cards are accepted.

The Bard comes to Newton Arts Center

Shakespeare's comedy As You Like It is currently being presented

By Dann Kosow

by the New Repertory Project, Theatre-in-Residence at the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, Newtonville, through July 4, with a special outdoor performance July 5 at the Jackson Homestead in Newton.

Set in the enchanted Forest of Arden, As You Like It is a love story in which the clever Rosalind woos her love Orlando disguised as a boy.

Here are some of Shakespeare's most vivid and colorful characters: the wry and witty Touchstone, the melancholy Jaques, and a fantastic gallery of country eccentrics. Here, too, is a subtle play of ideas about freedom and control, truth and disguise, and people in and out of love.

The mounting, on a simple thrust stage, emphasizes action and character rather than scenic effects. Original music, performed by a live ensemble on eastern and western instruments, is by Margaret Ulmer. Costumes by Janet Bobcean evoke a magical, mythical world, part medieval, part oriental, that moves from the wintry court of Duke Frederick to the wild and delicate Forest of Arden.

The play is directed by New Rep Founder and Artistic Director Larry Lane, who recently staged the company's post-Holocaust drama, The Workroom. Derek Campbell plays the cynic, Jaques, and Steven McConnell appears as the clown, Touchstone.

Performances are 8 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays, and 2 and 7 p.m. Sundays (July 5th performance at 6:45 p.m.). Tickets are $8, and $5 for seniors and students with I.D. For reservations and further information, call 964-3424.

Red Sox comedy scores at Hasty Pudding Theatre

The Red Sox will have some unexpected help in the bullpen this season, but not the kind you might expect.

Bullpen is Steve Kluger's Red Sox comedy, produced by Page Layne Miller, and it is barreling into the Hub on the heels of its sell-out Los Angeles run.

Bullpen opens at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 24, at the Hasty Pudding Theatre, 12 Holyoke St., Harvard Square, Cambridge, and will play 8 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and 7 p.m. Sunday, with 2 p.m. matinees on weekends. Special previews are slated for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, June 20 and 21. Tickets are $17 on Friday and Saturday evenings, and $14 at all other performances. For reservations call 547-3600.

Bullpen got its start in Cambridge in Jan., 1985 with a staged reading at the American Repertory Theatre, prompting sportswriter Peter Gammons to call it "A 'Bullpen' that Boston could love!"

On the basis of the staged reading Bullpen was recently named in "Best Plays of 1984-1985."

The action takes place in the Fenway Park bullpen. The story focuses on six unique personalities: the burly yet sensitive Boomer, the ex-alky Harvard grad, wise-cracking Ripper; Moose, in his final season and clearly impatient with youth; Tank, great on stats, but otherwise a dimwit; energetic and Brooklyn-loud Frito; and Duke, a hipster who's both college educated and street smart — all veteran ballplayers and teammates for years.

A conflict surfaces when they learn that a young "phenom" is coming up from Pawtucket and that one of them is going to get the axe.

Bullpen enjoyed almost a year's run in Los Angeles, playing to sold-out houses.

The Hollywood Reporter noted: "Bullpen is great fun. And you Don't even have to be a jock to enjoy things. It's about all of us . . . We get to see the characters under the jock nicknames, and soon we see folks very much like ourselves. Waiting to be replaced isn't just for baseball players, it's a startling metaphor for all of us."

Encore at the A.R.T. stage

The American Repertory Theatre brings back its acclaimed premiere production of Robert Wilson's Alcestis June 27, for final performances through July 10.

Alcestis performed to a 99.3 percent full-house in the initial portion of its run, and received extremely favorable reviews from both national and international press.

All members of the original cast will be returning and Mr. Wilson will rejoin the company to recreate his original staging.

For tickets and reservations, call 547-8300 or stop by the theatre at 64 Brattle St., Cambridge. Tickets range from $11 to $24. Performances are Tuesday through Sunday, 8 p.m., with 2 p.m. weekend matinees. Theatre party, student group and senior citizen discounts are available.

Imelda's rise and fall

The American Repertory Theatre will offer The Rise and Fall of Imelda Marcos, 8 p.m., June 30 and July 1, in the Agassiz Theater, 10 Garden St., Radcliffe Yard, Cambridge, as its final show of the current season.

Imelda Marcos is a one-woman performance piece that delves into the life of the recently deposed and much-celebrated First Lady of the Phillippines, focusing on a fantasized account of her last hour at the Malacanang Palace in Manila before her late night flight into exile.

The play takes place in Imelda's boudoir where she is frantically packing. Fantasy sequences and quotations are taken from the onslaught of recent press concerning the Marcoses, as well as passages from Shakespeare's Macbeth, the Elizabethan equivalent of the Ferdinand and Imelda story.

Slide projections of propaganda photos published by Manila's Department of Information as well as other recently published photographs are also prominently featured in the production.

Tamara Jenkins, the author and star of The Rise And Fall Of Imelda Marcos, is a 1985 Massachusetts Artists' Foundation Fellowship recipient, and her recent work includes the acclaimed performances of Waiting, a multi-media, one-woman show at the Brattle Theater.

Tickets, $4 for A.R.T. subscribers, students and senior citizens, and $5 general admission, can be purchased at the box office (64 Brattle Street in Cambridge) or reserved by calling 547-8300.

Jazz at the Starlight Roof

Jazz stars continue to headline at the Starlight Roof at 575 Commonwealth Ave. in Kenmore Square (atop Howard Johnson's Hotel).

Showtime is 9 and 11:30 p.m., with reduced prices on Wednesday and Thursday nights. Tickets are available through Concertcharge (497-1118). For further information, call 267-6059.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — What you thought was a loss could turn out in your favor so take the initiative and go after what you want. Money to buy a prized possession could come in very unexpectedly. Keep your options open and act on your bright ideas.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — A personal problem could be magically resolved, your charisma is high and romance is accented. You may be rewarded handsomely and gain recognition for your career or job performance. Accept as a challenge a new responsibility.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — A setback or delay will work out to your benefit so don't get upset. Use this time to make valuable contacts, to organize and straighten out your life. Holiday plans will fall in line and you'll have a great Fourth of July!

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — A wish could come true — you have friends and associates to back you. Be decisive, speak your mind and your rewards could be great. Gather a small group and be the center of attention for a happy holiday celebration.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — There are opportunities for a breakthrough in career or on the job so be alert. Make the best impression possible — dress for success. Open and frank discussions on the Fourth can resolve a potential conflict in your favor.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Don't be obstinate about changes — you'll like them a lot, you'll see. Social life is accented and good news could come in from a distance. You could be the center of attention at a Fourth of July celebration, enjoy!

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — You could be full of grandiose ideas and extravagant with money so don't overreach yourself. Stick with the tried and true in both finances and romance. On the holiday conflicting opinions erupt so be tolerant and tactful.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Curb feelings of resentment to avoid tension and attend to routine. Communicate clearly and pleasantly — don't expect others to know where you stand without telling them. Look at a current situation more realistically.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Express your desires and ideas for changes in the workplace. Let loyal co-workers and associates know that you appreciate their loyalty. Have a long talk and make compromises to fulfill each other's needs in a relationship.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Time to enjoy family, romance and in general have a good time. Be sure you are seeing things as they really are in the love department though, you may be "falling in love with love." You could have work to do on the Fourth.

AQUARIUS: (Jan 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — The accent is on home, family and property matters. Good time to get estimates on your assets — you could be pleasantly surprised! Discard self-doubts or fear, you're up to the challenge so forge ahead with confidence!

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Let others know about your ambitions and you could get new responsibilities that help you achieve your goals. It may be time for a personal make-over — you'll be getting lots of attention. Have a quiet Fourth.

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

Four of painter Peter Sobin's cast of bathers stand in the shore's sand.

Summer: Flight of fancy

Summer is here.

The release and freedom from interior spaces, wool coats, mittens and steamy radiators inspire a myriad of associations. Activities that seemed a world away are now deliciously accessible.

As if in celebration of freshly discovered possibilities of the season, The Marlborough Galleries, 165 Newbury St., Boston, has filled its walls with the turquoise skies, peachy-white sands, nude bathers and striped beach towels of Newton artist Peter Sobin's Beach Series.

The paintings are all acrylic on paper, all marked by a flatness and simplification of their — all female — figures, and all undeniable acknowledgements of the sky-sea horizon line's visual and spiritual attraction.

Sobin's vertical figures often interupt that horizon line with their heads, waving arms or flag-like beach towels. These bathers, with their elongated necks topped by oval heads and identical haircuts, differentiate themselves only by their poses.

Pointing, waving and hoisting their towels, the figures assume the still poses of Tai Chi or of some lighthearted ceremonial tableau.

Sobin does not seem to ask that the viewer take either the beaches or the bathers literally.

Clouds are sometimes like puffy white chrysanthemums, sometimes like chiseled marble with deep putty-grey shadows. Ankles disappear under a blur of brushwork.

Scale denies reality with one figure appearing connected to another's arm rather than being overlapped by it. Anatomy and atmosphere are given barely a nod.

The generalizations and liberties of these scenes shape their fanciful tone. There is sensed an almost innocent delight in the artist's discovery of contained color areas making themselves into images, and images that can be broken down and seen as color-shapes.

The most interesting and strongest of the works is also the most abstract and painterly. Titled The Beach Series #12, four figures have subtle and mysterious presence. They are larger relative to their surroundings and compositionally integrated with the whole of the painting.

One white towel covers and connects two figures backs. Airy neutrals soften the sometimes heavy-hued surface that the acrylics take on.

Since Sobin comes to the beach series from a background of abstract, non-representational works, the paintings on exhibit become a matter of curiosity in his development.

Will the theme of these beach figures and their surroundings be further explored in terms of its imagery? Will it lead to other representational paintings based on other themes? Or will the shapes and colors dominate over references — fanciful or otherwise — to the real world and become once again abstract?

Are the beach paintings Sobin's own momentary flights of fancy?

See the work during gallery hours from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and by appointment Sunday. Call 267-8350.

Legendary Jewels

From the beginning of time, gemstones always have been highly regarded treasures — whether for the simple, elegant beauty of the jewel alone, or for the alleged curative properties that have been associated with certain stones.

Clear quartz crystal has been singled out as the magical stone of divination and clairvoyance. Piezoelectric properties in this stone have given it the reputation of being able to help a person align his consciousness with the electromagnetic energies of the universe.

You can order clear quartz, amethyst quartz, crystal pendants, gemstone pendants and necklaces, and colorful amulets through the Prisma catalog. You also can learn something about the folklore of each gemstone sold here — each stone lists the ancient properties ascribed to it.

You'll also find gold chains, astrological charms, bangle bracelets and little sculptures depicting wizards, Merlin the Magician, dragons and sorcerers.

Puppy love: pet can ease loneliness

By Dean Carroll

If you're a senior citizen in search of a magic potion to help ease those pangs of loneliness a little, you might consider a stroll through your neighborhood pet store.

A pet may be just the ticket to chase away those "I'm all alone" blues. Many psychologists say pets provide the affection and companionship elderly people need. Pets are one of nature's sources of love — one of the most important health tonics known to man.

"Unlike humans, animals offer unconditional love and affection, which makes them ideal companions," says Patricia St. John, a Toycemore School English teacher in Evanston, Ill., and the creator of the Pet Pals program.

An affectionate puppy or kitten may actually make you feel better physically, too. The Pet Information Bureau says several studies into the human-companion animal bond have already shown pets can reduce blood pressure and increase life expectancy, and numerous research projects are further exploring the possibilities.

A University of Pennsylvania study concluded that coronary patients who own pets live longer than those who don't.

Pets like dogs may even motivate their owners to get more exercise than they would normally since most canines love a brisk walk daily.

Being a pet owner brings social benefits as well. It's much easier to break the ice and start a conversation with a stranger who is accompanied by a pet, and dogs are a great source of protection, especially for someone who lives alone.

There are a few things to keep in mind before buying an animal.

Evaluate your lifestyle and ask yourself some questions. Where do you live? How big is your yard? Do you feel comfortable walking in your neighborhood, or do you spend most of your time in the house? How often are you away from your home?

Use your answers to determine what pet, if any, is right for you. If you have plenty of room in your yard and lots of free time, a dog might be the best pet for you. If you aren't active and usually stay indoors, a small dog or cat might suit your needs. For minimal care, consider a bird or an aquarium filled with colorful fish.

Pet store employees and veterinarians also can lend good advice on which pet to choose. Kal Kan, a pet food company, offers a computerized dog selection service where participants fill out a questionnaire describing their lifestyle and then receive several background sheets on dog breeds appropriate for them.

Once you've decided on the right pet and are ready to buy, check pet shops, animal shelters, animal adoption agencies and private owners. In some communities, Humane Societies offer special discounts to senior citizens.

But no matter where you find your new friend, be sure the animal has the appropriate shots and licensing. Find out exactly what must be done to keep it healthy. If your new pet is a dog or cat, you might also want to have it spayed or neutered.

What about those bound to nursing care facilities? In some areas, the pets are coming to them through the Pet Pals program. The program, sponsored by community volunteers, involves taking pets like kitten, puppies and rabbits, on regular visits to local nursing homes.

If you wish to create your own Pet Pals program, St. John offers a few suggestions for getting started.

First, check the community health regulations to determine whether a Pet Pals program violates any ordinances.

Then, locate an appropriate nursing home by contacting a local commission on aging or social services for help. Meet with the staff to work out details since some facilities might prefer bedside visits while others will require residents to gather in a central activity room. In all cases, visits should be arranged for a time that's convenient for staff and residents.

Finally, locate and screen appropriate animals. All animals should be checked carefully by a veterinarian for any medical or behavioral problems.

The theory behind matching seniors and pets is simple. A lot of people are alone as they get older, and there are a lot of pets who need homes, or at least a few hours of attention each day. Seniors want love and attention, and so do the animals. So, the arrangement can benefit both.

Senior Care Specialists to the rescue

By BARBARA HOROWITZ
Special to the Section

Perhaps the most difficult decision a family ever has to make is what to do about aging parents unable to continue to care for themselves and you know that you can't take care of them.

It's not that you don't want to, you love them dearly. But the worry when you're at work about the stove not turned off, the sleepless nights, the special diet neglected, the medications inappropriately taken or forgotten, the shots, etc.

You can't do it. Love doesn't replace medical expertise and time. They need both. You feel guilty, afraid, unsure and don't know where to go for help.

"Senior Care Specialists" addresses this complex issue.

Their service is unique.

Not only do they assist in the decision of what to do, but in the transition of a move to an alternate setting where quality health care is provided.

They have already compiled the information that can answer questions without the process of screening each facility, especially when everything seems so confusing and overwhelming. But the most reassuring aspect provided is the monthly follow up visit to the resident by one of the consultants.

The concept of "Senior Care Specialists" is a project of the heart.

Both owner-consultants Barbara Horowitz and Jane Brady have more than 35 years of combined experience. Barbara as a Nursing Home Administrator and Jane as a clinical and administrative nurse.

For a long time they recognized the difficulties of making such monumental decisions.

They speak the language, they understand what everything means, they know what questions to ask, who to ask and what to do with the answers.

All of this provides families the assurance that the best possible decision has been made.

Gardens reap bounty of growing benefits

By Gregg Howard

For many seniors, retirement means a long-awaited break from working in their field; others head straight to their field the minute they retire.

Their "field" is more commonly called a garden plot, and senior gardeners are using the extra hours retirement brings to grow their favorite fruits, vegetables and flowers. They save money by growing their own produce and raise nutritious food at the same time. Gardening also is a great way to make friends by rubbing shoulders with other gardening enthusiasts.

Developing a sense of independence is one of the most important results of gardening, according to Union Carbide Agricultural Products Co. Inc. It offers seniors a chance to get outdoors for some physical exercise and creates something to look forward to — a bountiful harvest.

Many enjoy gardening in groups or clubs, like the Tillers and Toilers Garden Club in Sun City, Fla. The gardeners, all retired, have their own assigned plot where they grow a vast array of vegetables, fruits and flowers.

Other seniors prefer to share the responsibilities by working in a community garden. Group plots are located at many senior citizen centers, on vacant land near retirement communities and at many nursing homes around the country.

Seniors who don't have their own yard or access to a community garden might enjoy container gardening. This way, it's possible to grow flowers, vegetables and herbs on a balcony or patio. A good soil mixture is a top priority, according to Union Carbide, and containers must have adequate drainage.

Window boxes and hanging baskets are two other options. Fresh herbs, simple to grow and delicious when used for cooking, are a favorite for window boxes.

Gardening does require a lot of lifting and bending, and some of the tools can be a challenge to operate. To make gardening easier for seniors, the Spokane Rehabilitation Center has devised some handy ways to modify tools.

Seniors with limited grip can apply putty on tool handles and mold it to shape to the hand. Lining tool handles with pipes of foam rubber also will aid gripping power. Wrist splints or Velcro bands can be added to tools to increase balance and keep tools from falling.

Long-handled tools can be adapted with handle attachments to make them easier to use and reduce back and arm strain.

Seniors with sight limitations can better identify tools if bright yellow paint or tape is applied to the handles. Crops are easily identified when they're tagged with large labels.

After a day in the garden, tools should be stored in a convenient location. Wheelbarrows and carts are much more maneuverable when they're built close to the ground and have two wheels. Aids like stools with handles and soft cushions help seniors comfortably and steadily lower and raise themselves and kneel without injury.

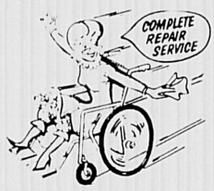

By making a few motifications with tools, seniors can keep the benefits of retirement growing.

Hobbies satisfy creative urge, fill time

By Dean Carroll

When your world is filled with raising a family, a full-time job and a calendar full of social activities, extra time is a rare and much-needed blessing.

Many don't have the time to find a hobby until they've retired, raised their family and, all of a sudden, there are dozens of free hours each week. What's to be done with all the spare time?

Why not take up a hobby, one that satisfies the creative urge while filling up spare time with a rewarding activity.

Whether it's tole painting, racing radio-controlled cars, participating in adventure gaming, needlework, gardening or taking up any of the many hobbies popular today, there's certainly one pastime just right for you, says Hobby Industries of America.

Hobbies play an important role in many lives. Studies have shown some enthusiasts rank hobbies right after the necessities — food, clothing, housing, transportation and families — in terms of importance.

The Hobby Industries of America estimates some 66 percent of Americans participate in some form of hobby activity. Some turn to hobbies to escape the pressures of everyday life, relax and satisfy a creative urge. Others like to take their hobbies to shows and fairs and compete with others. Sometimes, hobbies are simply entertaining.

Many retirees like to make a little money while doing what they enjoy, selling what they make in craft cooperatives.

"What seniors are discovering is that their beautiful handwork that was such a joy to make can turn a tidy profit," says Mary Colucci, executive director of The National Needlework Association.

What's the best way to find a hobby? Getting started might be the most challenging, but also most interesting part. One of the best ways is to visit a convenient hobby or craft shop. Many store owners got into the business because they were enthusiastic about a hobby, and they can offer tips and advice on what's right for you and how to get started.

Some shops will let you "test drive" a new hobby by taking a class or watching a demonstration. Just browsing can be helpful, too.

Some craft shops offer special discounts for senior citizens.

Once you find a hobby, check newspapers and community bulletin boards to find supporting clubs geared for a specific hobby. The meetings give members an opportunity to exchange ideas and hear experts speak on their hobby. It's also a good chance to meet new people with whom you have something in common. Many clubs prepare a newsletter, so even if you're homebound, you can keep in touch with others who share your interest.

Whatever your goal, a hobby can generate new insights and new directions that will lead to a more rewarding and productive life.

Writing a will can be insurance for wishes

By Carol Roberts

When there's a will, there can be order and dignity in the distribution of an estate.

If there's no will, there's bound to be trouble.

It's not hard to see why many seniors put off making a will. It's time-consuming to assess every facet of an estate, and heart-wrenching to decide who gets what after you pass on.

But you are doing friends and relatives a favor when you take the time to write a will. Without a will, the state — through the court systems — takes over to evaluate, settle and distribute an estate. The process is usually time-consuming and expensive. The results are often a far cry from your wishes.

A will allows you to choose an executor. An executor sees that the property is disbursed in the way you specified in your will. You have many choices when it comes to deciding just how you'll state those wishes.

The standard will is prepared by you and legal counsel. For a simple estate, the preparation of a will may cost less than $100; a larger estate might take more time to assess, so the bill will be more. Either way, the cost will ultimately seem small compared to the savings from administrative costs of settling an estate if no will has been made.

Tax implications also make the time and cost of will preparation worthwhile. Legal counsel can advise you of these as you resolve the distribution of your estate.

Since each state has its own set of laws concerning filing, the witnesses and other factors, it's a good idea to seek council and assistance to ensure the job is done right.

Do-it-yourself wills may be an attractive option because of a reduced preparation cost. Some states even have customized forms — the text is written according to the state's laws. How a do-it-yourself will fits a person's needs will depend on his personal and financial situation and how he wants to dispose of the estate. These wills are usually recommended for people with uncomplicated estates. The document must conform to state regulations

A living trust is becoming a popular estate planning tool. The trust is an arrangement where the trustor signs a document naming one or more persons, a bank, or a combination of both, as trustee, according to the law firm of Strauss & Wolf, a New York law firm that specializes in the legal problems of the elderly.

This document contains specific instructions and guidelines on how the assets and income of the trust are to be managed and distributed. Your property is then transferred to the trust.

This device can bypass probate, a time-consuming process for even the most thorough wills, because the property is legally owned by the trust and not the creator of the trust.

Be sure to do your homework before you visit a lawyer. Take inventory of your assets, including real estate, life insurance policies, bank accounts, investments, profit-sharing and pension funds. No matter what option you take, the will writing process will go a lot smoother when the facts are in hand.

Senior travel options mean savings

By Eric Jude

Almost everyone dreams of basking in the sun on the French Riviera, window-shopping in downtown New York City or sampling chocolates in a Swiss confectionery.

But often these dreams never materialize. Traveling can be a costly and time-consuming endeavor, then disappointing when you find crowded beaches and mile-long lines of tourists blocking the attractions you wanted to see.

If you're a retired senior citizen, however, you can sidestep these roadblocks with minimal effort. When you, instead of your job, dictate how, when and where you want to travel, there are more options for saving money and enjoying your vacation to the utmost.

By traveling off-season, you'll find loads of savings and probably enjoy your vacation more since you won't be vying with masses of other tourists. Rates are lower in the off-season and tour guides, hotel and airline personnel will most likely have more time to serve your needs.

Find out what locations are off-season at various time of the year by asking a travel agent.

The advantage of traveling off-season can be heightened if you travel on off-days. Many hotels that cater to people on business offer sizable discounts for Sunday through Thursday nights.

If there are virtually no limitations on your time, you can explore out-of-the-ordinary options, some tailor-made especially for seniors.

Passages Unlimited, based in Stamford, Conn., offers an "At Home" program especially for travelers over age 55. Instead of just getting a taste of places like London, Paris and Israel on a whirlwind tour, guests live in the area of their choice for as long as they like, exploring and sight-seeing at their own pace. Accommodations have kitchens, televisions and telephones, and guests are charged a weekly rate.

Another good way to get an in-depth look at an area while vacationing is to take a tour offered by a college or university. These tours are conducted by faculty members who are experts on the designated area. Several classes often precede the tour, so guests already have a background of the area before they see it.

If you've traveled a lot and know certain areas by heart, you too, might be considered a travel expert. You might inquire about the possibility of being a tour guide for those areas since some travel clubs and agencies offer guide positions to older adults who are experts on certain destinations.

Some seniors hate the thought of traveling alone. Groups like Partners-in-Travel of Los Angeles specialize in helping travelers find someone who has similiar interests, maybe a potential traveling companion.

Families with children might also be looking for a traveling companion. There will most likely be financial compensation involved; families often pay expenses or a salary to the person who accompanies them. Travel agencies and newspaper ads are great resources for locating someone interested in finding a traveling companion.

Explore your options and decide what travel plan is best for you.

Choate-Symmes Center for the Health Care and Development of The Older Adult

AT CHOATE-SYMMES, we believe that GOOD HEALTH IS AGELESS... and we're working to make it happen.

ACUTE CARE:

- Expanded inpatient units benefit from a two-year study done in conjunction with Brandeis University and supported in part by a grant from the John Hartford Foundation, New York, which makes Choate-Symmes a national leader in innovative care for older adults.

INDEPENDENT LIVING:

- Through Choate-Symmes' Lifeline Program, now the largest in Massachusetts, emergency medical help is available at the push of a button.
- Older and Growing discussion groups share common concerns.
- Home Care and Optional Overnight Stays in the hospital (following one-day surgery) strengthen independence.

WELLNESS:

- Senior Sunday Brunches offer a delicious meal and educational program or entertainment.
- Speakers' Bureau programs are available to groups.
- Meals-on-Wheels provide balanced, prepared meals five days a week.
- Fitness over 50 classes encourage appropriate levels of exercise.
- New technologies strengthen diagnostic and treatment capabilities.
- We're even planning a Life Care Retirement Community in Lexington. Marketing will begin in the fall.

Medical care options are offered to elderly

By Monica Perez

For some ailing seniors, there's no place quite like home.

Unlike many others not so fortunate, some seniors don't have to leave home to check into hospitals and nursing homes just because they need medical attention.

They're taking part in a return to the days before hospitals and nursing homes became convenient. In those times, doctors and nurses traveled to patients. Now, in the '80s, health care is coming home again.

The dramatic increase in the number of elderly has also meant an increase in the number of older and chronically ill adults. That has created a need for new health care and social services, particularly non-institutional, long-term care services.

Home health care is one answer. Also called community-based health care, home health care provides care and supportive services to patients in their homes. It is now one of the fastest-growing fields for health professionals — between 1974 and 1983, Medicare increased expenditures from $100 million to $1.5 billion for home health services.

Saving money is one benefit of home health care; experts say home health care costs are significantly lower than a lengthy hospital stay.

Studies have also proven home health care can improve the patient's quality of life and speed recovery, according to Stephen Nagy, president of Foster Medical Division of Avon Products Inc.

The introduction of high-technology equipment that can be used at home is another factor that has spurred home health care. If patient at home needs a personal full line of equipment, he can get it through hospital equipment retailers.

With specialized equipment, professionals also can treat those who require respiratory and ventilator care, antibiotics and other forms of intravenous therapy in the patient's home environment.

Nurses, physical therapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists and housekeepers come into the home through visiting agencies, home care divisions of hospitals or even temporary employment agencies.

An adult day-care center is another possibility for patients who want to live at home, yet need extra care.

Once exclusively for children, there are now more than 800 day-care centers providing daily care for approximately 25,000 American adults nationwide.

Most centers are sponsored by hospitals, nursing homes or other health care service organizations and allow patients who aren't totally independent to receive the care they need during the day and return home in the evenings.

Types of services vary with each program, but most offer transportation to and from the center, nursing care, physical therapy, speech and hearing therapy, psychiatric counseling and referral services. Most programs also include recreational activities and often provide meals. The staff usually includes a registered nurse trained in geriatrics, social workers, therapists and part-time volunteers and medical staff, according to the American Hospital Association.

Home health care and adult day care provide intermittent, not continuous, care. Very sick patients with unstable conditions require inpatient care in a hospital or nursing home.

Classes, clubs ease solitary living

By Sharon Williams

Living alone — the phrase can bring visions of a quiet home, uneventful days and an empty mailbox.

Being alone can be painful for seniors who are far away from family, or for those who have just lost a spouse or close companion. But there are ways out of the loneliness trap, ways to make life alone tolerable, maybe even enjoyable.

A good way to start is by finding others with common interests. Hobbyists, homemakers, veterans, retirees and church members have organized clubs, and most seek and welcome new members.

Senior citizens centers are another way to meet new people. Plan to eat lunch there occasionally, or make yourself a regular at the Monday night bingo game. There will be plenty of new faces to meet and soon the regulars will be familiar.

You're never too old to learn, and many cities have community colleges and universities that offer night classes on just about any subject imaginable. If there isn't a facility nearby, check university extension offices for credit and non-credit courses they might offer in nearby public buildings, or find out about adult education classes offered through the public school district.

The mail is something many seniors look forward to; an empty mailbox is a constant reminder they're alone.

If you're not getting enough letters and enjoy writing, you might join an international pen pal organization. These groups, like the International Penfriends of Valhalla, N.Y., match interested writers with others who share common interests and are of the same age group. Some offer foreign contacts.

Feeling safe around the home and neighborhood is another important part of living alone happily.

Make sure your home is safe: keep hallways, staircases and dark rooms well-lit; make sure stairs and traffic areas are clear; and get help if any repairs that you can't handle are needed. Staircases should all have sturdy railings; you might also consider grip bars in the bathrooms if you're afraid of falling.

When you're out walking the dog or on the way to the store, it's a good idea to decide where you're going and how you're going to get there and back. People who have a purposeful air about them are less likely to invite muggers than people who walk aimlessly along, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

Plan your walk on a street where there is a lot of activity since vandals thrive in deserted areas. When possible, tell a friend or relative where you're going, especially if it's going to be for a few hours. And always lock doors and windows before you leave.

When stopping along the way, be aware of what's going on around you. If your thoughts are miles away, you may not see trouble approaching. If you're using public transportation, wait and board the bus or train in a place with plenty of lights and lots of other people.

The telephone can be a reassuring tie to friends and family, and even a measure of security. Phones with automatic dialing can be programmed to keep dozens of numbers in the memory. At the touch of one digit on a key pad, the phone will dial the number of a neighbor, pharmacist, ambulance service or doctor. This feature is particularly important during a crisis, when it may be difficult to remember or locate important phone numbers. Automatic dialers can be hooked to existing phones.

Sometimes it's comforting to have several phones in the home. Extra extensions are easy to obtain and kits are available for installing additional phone jacks if your home only has one or two.

Some seniors and volunteers have organized daily call-in services to check on ailing or homebound friends.

Reaching out to others through volunteer programs is another way to combat loneliness. Foster Grandparents, a national program, brings together people over the age of 60 and children with special needs. These meetings take place in classrooms or other facilities for several hours five days a week.

The idea behind the program is to provide the child with an older, helping, non-judgmental person — a loving grandparent.

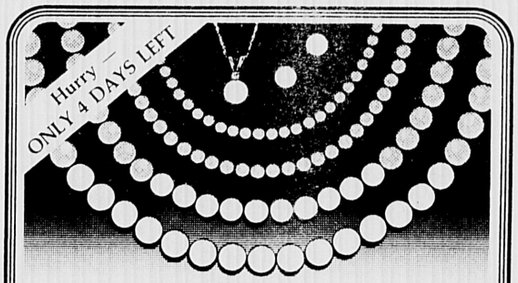

Seniors can also check hosptials and community organizations like a local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons for other volunteer opportunities.

Lonely seniors can be a lot of help to their own families. "By simply 'being there,' grandparents perform a valuable function," said Vern Bengtson, a professor of sociology and gerontology at the University of Southern California Andrus Gerontology Center. "Their mere existence is an expression of family continuity. They serve as an anchor of stability."

The presence of the older generation can exert a calming influence during times of transitions, such as divorce. When parents divorce, grandparents often step in to provide direct assistance as well as emotional support.

Grandchildren thrive from the friendship of a grandparent. "Listen. Children get listened to so seldom. Teachers and parents are always telling them what to do. They'll appreciate someone who pays attention to what they have to say," Bengtson said.

Provide some rewards — it doesn't have to be much. But don't do it for good behavior. Do it just for them being there with you, he said.

Summer fun has begun

(From page 5)

The Mundell Lowe/Bill Berry All Star Quartet performs Thursday through Saturday, June 26-28. With Mundell and Bill will be drummer Artie Cabral and bassist Whit Browne. Guitarist Lowe is well-known for his eight year stint with the NBC orchestra and his work with Peggy Lee, Ellis Larkins, Red Norvo, and Billy Taylor. He is also a composer and is responsible for scoring documentary films.

Trumpeter Berry has worked with Duke Ellington, Terry Gibbs, Louie Bellson, Scott Hamilton, Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, Ray Charles, Cleo Laine, Bing Crosby, and Tony Bennett.

Tickets are $5 on Thursday, $7 on Friday and Saturday.

Dorothy Donegan takes center stage July 2-5. With this swinging, boogie woogie jazz pianist will be Alan Dawson on drums and Whit Browne on bass.

Born in Chicago, Donegan started her career as a church organist, later branching out to cocktail lounges, and eventually Hollywood, where she appeared in Sensations of 1945. Her lengthy engagements at the famed Embers Club in New York have become legend as she mixes her performance with music and visual antics.

Ticket range is $5 to $10.

The Axmasters appear July 10, featuring Boston's best horn men — Sal Spicola, Ken Wenzel, Rick Hammett and Greg Badalato — backed up by Bruce Gertz on bass, Jeff Covell on piano, and Bob Gullotti on drums. And, Boston's own Any McGhee on sax and Charlie Harris on vocals move in for the next two nights.

Tickets are $5.

Rebecca Parris, with pianist Eddie Higgins, is featured July 17-19. Accompanying them will be Ron Murray on guitar and special guest Mike Monaghan on sax (Fri. and Sat. only).

Tickets are $5 on Thursday, $7 on Friday and Saturday.

Gloucester Stage opens with Hard Times

The Gloucester Stage Company opens its seventh summer season July 2, 8 p.m., with the American premiere of Hard Times, adapted from the Charles Dickens novel by English playwright Stephen Jeffreys.

Jeffreys will be in residence in Gloucester during GSC rehearsals to offer artistic guidance to director Grey Cattell Johnson.

Hard Times was first performed in 1982 at Pocket Theatre Cumbria and then in 1984 at Richmond's Orange Tree Theatre.

The London Theatre Record described Hard Times as "taut, emotive and vibrant," an, another reviewer, as "compelling."

Hard Times follows the fortunes of the residents of Coketown, a northern mill town in London, and focuses on Mr. Gradgrind, headmaster of the local school, and his two children, Tom and Louisa.

It previews on July 2 and 3, and opens officially on July 4, running Wednesday through Sunday until July 20 at Two Main St. in Gloucester. Tickets are $10 on Wednesday and Thursday and $12.50 Friday through Sunday. Performances beigin 8 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and Sunday, and at 6 and 9 p.m. Saturday. For further information and reservations call 281-4099.

CHECK OFFER WITH CARE

Your home has been for sale, inspected and the latest enthusiastic prospect presents you with an "offer" to buy. Review this offer with care. It's an extremely important part of the sale.

Are all names correct? Is the property correctly described? Is the mortgage information accurate? Can you move by the possession date? Is the purchase price satisfactory? Then double check your calculations to be sure you know how much cash you will receive. If you have any doubts about points contained in the offer do not sign it until they have been completely removed from your mind.

The offer to purchase is binding on the purchaser for the amount of time stated in the offer. You can accept it without change. You can let it expire, or you can consider changes. If you change anything in the offer you are reversing the process and making an "offer to sell" to purchaser who then has the same options.

Before you sign, be certain that it clearly states all the points of agreement because the sale will be according to the letter of that script.

Louise Ruma-Ivers is the immediate past President of the Greater Boston Women's Council of Realtors, and a past Director of the Marketing Institute for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. She is a member of the Arlington Historic Districts Committee.

Dot Stein is a Vice President of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and a Director of its Multiple Listing Service. She was a long-time Arlington Town Meeting member, and a member of the Arlington School Committee.

Audi Remanufactured Parts. Built Like New. Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit — alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts — is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts.* The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

*Ask for Autobahn or Audi Limited Warranty at our Parts Department.

Do You Remember?

This "30" Raceabout was a rare sports model of the well known auto maker.

Back in 1912 you relied on Moon to make a quality automobile. Nowadays, we make it our business to uphold that quality in everything we sell.
